

Abducted Child Was Found

BIG SEWER WORK PLANNED

GROWLING OF DOG

Resulted in Discovery of Child Who Was Stolen

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The growling of a bulldog in the room of a down town hotel next to that occupied by Benjamin Boulton of Montpelier, Vt., and ten-year-old Mabel Bryant, led to Boulton's arrest here today. Boulton was charged with abducting the child. She is the daughter of a Salvation Army officer of Montpelier.

When arraigned in police court Boulton said that the parents of the child had asked him to take the little girl from Montpelier to Winsted, Conn., where she was to enter school. This he did, he said, afterwards obtaining permission of the captain of the barracks to bring Mabel to New York for a few days.

Besides the abduction charge, one of a more serious nature was also lodged against Boulton.

VERY NARROW ESCAPE

Big Electric Light Pole Dropped in Middle Street

Just why nobody was killed or injured in Middle street this afternoon is one of the miraculous events that now and then attract public attention.

Usually about 1 o'clock in the afternoon lower Middle street is crowded with autos, carriages and their occupants as the result of the traffic regulations relative to the crowding of Central street. Today the horse and carriage of Willis E. Dodge, the well known Central street real estate broker, stood outside of Carroll Bros.' store, alone.

Across the street in front of the Joyce company's new saloon stood a huge pole bearing a swinging electric light and shortly after one o'clock this pole without a moment's warning toppled over and fell across the street, striking Mr. Dodge's horse on the hind quarters bearing it to the ground as if the animal were shot. The pole crashed through the carriage and across trees of the carriage, smashing them to atoms while the lamp struck the sidewalk with a resounding crash. A man who

CARPET LANE CASE

Supreme Court Sustains Bigelow Co.'s Exceptions

The supreme court has handed down its decision in the case of the exceptions taken by the Bigelow Carpet company in its case against Burton H. Wiggin, G. F. Parsons and Peter Davy, which grew out of the attempt of the Bigelow Carpet company to close the passageway running from Market street to the counting room of the Carpet company opposite the plant of Adams J. C. Ayer company which connects with Carpet Lane, so-called, the latter running parallel with Market street.

In the rear and meeting another passageway next to Peter Davy's property which connects with Market street thus making a through passageway in the rear of the property from the upper part of the Bigelow Carpet company's property to the lower end opposite Palmer street which has been used for about 50 years.

When the Carpet company attempted to close up the upper passageway for the purpose of building over it, Hardy in the superior court with this shutting off a through passageway to the rear of the property of all the Bigelow Carpet company; Pratt and Devine of this city for Peter Davy, Judge Pickman for George F. Parsons and Dunbar and Spaulding for Mr. Wiggin. The petitioners started to put in their case first, but Judge Hardy ruled that the respondents should have the opening and closing of the case to which the petitioners took exceptions and the case went to the jury under the procedure laid down by Judge Hardy. The jury after hearing the evidence returned to the answer "Yes" to the question which before them which meant that the respondents had acquired the necessary easement and that the Bigelow Carpet company could not close the passageway. But the case went on exceptions and on the exceptions to Judge Hardy's ruling as to the manner of procedure the supreme court sustains the exceptions which virtually means that the petitioners should have begun and finished the case instead of the respondents. Thus it would appear that if the Bigelow Carpet company desires another trial, they are entitled to it. But the facts to be presented will be the same as in the former case when the jury found for the respondents. From a layman's point of view the case thus far appears to be a technical victory for the petitioners but a practical victory of the respondents.

A BEAUTIFUL EDIFICE

Is Star of the Sea Church in East Boston

Lowell friends of Rev. Wm. H. McDonough, formerly attached to St. Peter's church, new pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, East Boston, will be interested to learn that he has in process of construction one of the finest parish churches in all New England. Indeed when the structure shall have been completed, Fr. McDonough will have within the confines of his parish, some of the finest property in the archdiocese of Boston. It is just a little over four years ago that Fr. McDonough assumed the pastorate and in that short space of time he has accomplished much for the benefit of the parishioners.

The new church, the basement of which is completed, takes the place of the wooden structure, which will be utilized by the parish societies. The edifice when completed will be of absolutely five proof construction of the first class, with the exception of the steeple, and wooden material in the organ. It will be of everything that makes for stability and is put into its construction so that 100 years hence, the church will be in as good condition as on the day of its dedication. The steeple is concealed under the eaves, the only portion of the heating apparatus exposed being the radiators. The pews have a slope of 2 1/2 inches from the last pew to the first, thus affording a view of the beautiful marble altars.

The flooring of the altar is of a cement like construction. The stations of the cross, are built out as it were from the walls, a portion of the wall serving as a framework, while the pictures depicted in the stations are painted over copper. The Rev. Fr. McDonough and his parishioners are enthusiastic over the new church, and the work of building the superstructure will be pushed along steadily.

KILLED BY AN ENGINE

Malden Man Met Death on Grade Crossing

MALDEN, Sept. 9.—"Dead man's" crossing, as the place where the Saugus branch train cross Main street in this city, is called, claimed another victim last night in Michael Burke, 70 years old, living on Evans court off Eastern avenue. Burke had lived in Malden more than 50 years and during nearly all that time had worked in the rubber shoe shops at Edgeworth. He leaves a wife and a grown-up son. He was returning from work shortly before 6 last night and when he reached the railroad crossing the gates were down but no train was in sight on account of a curve in the tracks. Burke stepped under the gate and started to cross the tracks ahead of an inward bound freight train and stepped directly in front of an outward bound passenger train.

The locomotive struck Burke and he was thrown 50 feet. He was picked up unconscious and hurried to the Malden hospital, where it was found he had a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. He died about an hour later. This crossing has been the scene of several fatal accidents and many near accidents. On two occasions teams have been hit and horses and occupants killed. Electric cars loaded with passengers have narrowly escaped being hit by trains at this crossing more than once.

There has been an unsuccessful effort made to have the grade crossing at this point abolished. It is one of several bad railroad crossings in this city. The Pleasant street and Bedford street crossings of the Western division have been abolished in recent times.

MISS CLARA BARTON

HEAD OF RED CROSS SOCIETY SERIOUSLY ILL

OXFORD, Sept. 9.—Miss Clara Barton founder and for 23 years president of the American Red Cross society, is critically ill at her summer home on Charlton street.

Two trained nurses are in constant attendance. The attending physician, Dr. Robert S. Fletcher, stated today that death was only a matter of a few days.

She came here several weeks ago from her home in Glen Echo, Md. Her health has been poor all summer and has gradually grown worse.

MORE THAN $2000

Worth of jewelry, silverware and other valuables were taken by thieves last Saturday night from the residence of Nathan Jacobs, 529 Newbury street in Boston. The valuables were taken from a safe that stood in Mrs. Jacobs' bedroom. The safe was burglar-proof and the combination was known only to Mrs. Jacobs. The burglars did not damage the safe and left the door open. Apparently they found the combination by listening to the clicks of the tumblers. From the safe were taken a diamond ring worth $1000, a cash and about $500 worth of silverware. Other articles of value were taken from the bedside and all while the family were at the aviation meet.

The Lesson

If there is a greater folly than for a family to have on the premises a "burglar-proof" safe, it will trouble one to name it. What more attractive inducement could be devised to bring the burglar in? Suppose the safe-breaker is intercepted in his work—what then? Is he timid, is he provided with protection, will he hesitate to kill? Truly, is it not remarkable that a thinking man will consent to have a safe in the same building he and those he is supposed to protect, live and sleep? Years ago there might be excuse, but not today. The SAFETY DEPOSITOR BOX in the modern bank vaults is the place, the only place for valuables.

The price for yearly rental is very reasonable and within the means of all. The Middlesex Trust Co., 200 Commercial street, in the corner of Palmer street, has a store in that they delight to show the public. The customer has absolute control and access to box. The box is burglar-proof, fire-proof, proof against one's own careless methods.

IN WIGGINVILLE

Two Routes Have Been Outlined for Sewer by City Engineer

Out of the sewer loan of $50,000, made the first of the year, the sum of $34,260 has been appropriated for sewer work and that amount includes the work that is being done at present, as follows: Cumberland road and Orleans street sewer, 1250 feet, $5,170; Willard street sewer, 152 feet, $1492; Burlington avenue, 185 feet, $870; Richardson street, 210 feet, $1690.

The two most important sewer questions entertained by the city at the present time have to do with the Oaklands and Wigginsville sewers and these propositions are up to the city engineer for estimates, details and action.

Two routes have been outlined for the Wigginsville sewer. One for a trunk sewer from the present sewer in Lawrence street at South Whipple street to Billerica street, a distance of about 2000 feet, and the city engineer estimates the cost at $25,000. The other scheme is to run a sewer across the river from Lawrence street to a point on the premises of the American Hide & Leather company, thence along the railroad tracks to Lawrence street and then to Billerica street. The distance via this route would be about 4000 feet and the cost as estimated by the city engineer is $35,000.

At a recent meeting of the committee on sewer the engineer was instructed to confer with the Boston & Maine railroad company relative to rental along its tracks and also to ascertain how much of the cost should be paid by the American Hide & Leather company. City Engineer Kearney will treat with both of those companies as soon as possible.

The Oaklands Sewer
Naturally enough the people in the Oaklands district would like to see the big sewer that was started a few years ago pushed through, gradually. They realize that a speedy completion is impossible because of the great expense but they believe that the city should expend from $25,000 to $30,000 a year this sewer.

A majority of the committee on sewers, however, seems to think that the city's finances at this time do not warrant the expenditure of any great amount of money on a job that will not show immediate results and the committee favors the installation of a pump, to pump the sewage from the present filter bed in Rogers street to the top of Wentworth avenue. There are two kinds of pumps suggested, an automatic electric pump or another, presumably gasoline, that would require the manipulation of human hands.

The city engineer allows that the automatic electric pump scheme could be accomplished for about $2500 and that would include pump, building, pipes, etc. The other pump, not being automatic, would annex the existing touches on the macadam job in Lil-tra cost of labor and that would mean the employment of three men. There would have to be a man there all the time and the eight hour law was not made to be broken.

The Highway Commission
In the proposition to run a sewer through Princeton street to Webster street and thence to Middlesex street

lay avenue and the next thing to be done there is to all the street. A gang of men has been working in Washington street and that job is about done so far as the laying of stones is concerned.

Mr. Putnam said today that he expected to tackle the paving job in East Merrimack street from the railroad tracks to Howe street on Wednesday of next week. The street railway company will start in on Monday morning and get through in time to make way for the street department.

Other small jobs are being cleaned up and Supt. Putnam allows that Jack Frost will not catch him this year unless he puts in an appearance earlier than usual.

AFTER BALLOON RECORD

PITTSFIELD, Sept. 9.—Seeking to break the record held by A. Leo Stevens for a balloon flight, H. Percy Shearman, president of the Williams college aeronautical society and a graduate of the college from here, will start Monday night from here with Montreal, Canada, as his objective point. He will be accompanied by a passenger.

BIG MOVING CONTRACT

OLDTOWN, Me., Sept. 9.—The biggest and most difficult moving contract in this state has just been completed at Great Works dam. H. H. Brown of Bradley had successfully moved a dredging scow weighing over 200 tons a distance of 350 feet from a point above the dam to the level of the river below. The task has taken a month and not a mishap has occurred.

AEROPLANE DAMAGED

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Colliding with a tree when but a few feet from the ground, an aeroplane operated by Charles Kolstadt, a youthful aviator, was damaged and the amateur operator shaken up in Quincy today. The airplane was manufactured by two brothers, Charles N. Kolstadt and Henry W. Kolstadt. Today was the first time the machine had been tried out.

Work on the Streets

The street department has been thrown a little out of gear because of so much wet weather of late. Supt. Putnam allows that both the paving jobs in Merrimack and Gorham streets will be finished within two weeks, unless too much bad weather is encountered. The Merrimack street job is nearing the end. About all that remains to be done there has to do with the intersection of side streets.

The department is putting the finishing touches on the macadam job in Lil-

MAN WAS FOUND DEAD

Body of Eugene E. Leavitt Found in His Home in Central St.

Eugene E. Leavitt, aged 70 years, was found dead on the floor of his house nearby he spoke to the girl and so far as can be learned the child was the last person to see Leavitt alive.

The neighbors grew suspicious when none of them saw him or any signs of activity in the house for several days and the matter was reported to police and last night Serg. Ryan and Patrolman Lane forced an entrance and found the man dead on the floor.

The medical examiner was notified and will make an examination although the death was from natural causes, probably old age.

The only known relative of the dead man is Charles Farrington of Andover street, who was notified last night and will take charge of the body.

THE LAWRENCE LOAN

Expert Says That $200,000 Should Not be Borrowed

LAWRENCE, Sept. 9.—Lawrence is not entitled to borrow $200,000, which Mayor Cahill thinks should be allowed, in the opinion of Attorney Fred N. Chandler of this city, who is making the investigation of the city's finances for the Old Colony Trust company of Boston.

Yesterday Mr. Chandler presented a supplementary report to the one of Thursday. This report dealt with the debts owed by the city outside of the bonded debt, and those owed to individuals, including the drafts for June, July and August, which Mayor Cahill ordered held up. The state of affairs, he said, was much worse than he had feared at first. The books are, he said, in a very bad condition. In his opinion, the city is entitled to borrow some money, although not the amount desired by Mayor Cahill, but he would not state just how much. He said that the report he had sent the Boston company was very favorable to the city, that he had tried to make it absolutely impartial and fair in every way. As Mr. Chandler has been an ardent advocate of a new charter this is taken as a favorable sign by the members of the city government.

While the report does not mean that the city will not be able to borrow any money, it means a delay, and if the loan is approved today it will be Tuesday, at least, before the money can be given, for it will take time for the necessary amount of red tape to be gone through.

At present there is less than $6000 in the treasury and at the rate that this is going, it will last but a day or two more. It is certain that the payroll will have to lay over until the latter part of next week, if it is paid then.

WORK TO BEGIN SOON

On the New Hamilton Wall Building in Central Street

Work on the erection of the new building on the Hamilton wall property, so called, in Central street, will begin within a few days. The property, as has already been stated in these columns, has been purchased by C. B. and W. J. Bradley of Essex street, Lawrence, and a permit to build was issued to them this morning at the office of the inspector of buildings at city hall.

The application for the permit called for a two-story store and office building in Central street, north of Jackson street and opposite Warren and Hurd streets. John Ashton and A. H. Innes, of Lawrence are the architects.

The building will be of brick with terra cotta trimmings and will be 35 feet high. It will be heated by exhaust steam from the Hamilton mills and the estimated cost of the building is $30,000. The building will be in three sections with brick walls between.

The building will contain 15 stores. Thirteen of the stores will be on the first floor and the store on either end of the building will include both floors. The total number of offices will be 29. The building will be 290 feet on Central street, 60 feet deep and 272 feet in the alley between the new buildings and the mill.

LOSS IS $2500

LIVELY BLAZE IN A BUILDING IN WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Sept. 9.—Fire starting in the basement of the building at 271 Main street last night did damage estimated at about $2500.

The flames, which shot across an alley separating the block from the Taylor State hotel, were discovered by Anton Johnson, frat porter at the hotel, who happened to glance out into the driveway. Four lines of hose, including three cellar pipes, were used in extinguishing the flames.

Anderson & Swenson, clothing dealers at 273 Main street, were the heaviest losers. John H. Anderson, senior member of the firm, estimated that he had $25,000 in stock, the greater part was now all goods received this week. He is partly insured.

In the rooms of the Worcester reform club a meeting was in session when the cry of fire started. Nothing daunted, the meeting proceeded until the heavy clouds of smoke drove the members out into the street. Butler Bros' store suffered from smoke and water, while the other occupants, A. E. McDonald and the Salvation Army, suffered from smoke.

TWO LITTLE SWIMMERS

Are Making Great Records at Long-Sought-for Pond

Boston may boast of the wonderful prowess of Rose Pitonof as a swimmer, but Lowell has her Violet Victoria L. Hobson, and when Miss Hobson has reached Miss Pitonof's age there is no telling how great will be her record. Miss Hobson is well loaded with names but that does not affect her swimming in the least. She is only 11 years old and her wonderful performances at Long-Sought-for pond in vacation season were fully as scientific and vastly more entertaining than many of the so called professional exhibitions.

These two wonderful young swimmers are the children of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hobson, and the efficiency which they have attained in the art of swimming is due to the careful instructions which they received from their father who is master of the various strokes and a strong long distance swimmer. Mr. Hobson is engineer at the State Normal school in Broadway and the children to whose ability as swimmers this story relates, attend the Highland school.

Their teachers and friends marvel at their splendid physical development due to their frolics in the water and life in the open air. Swimming has proved for them not only a splendid sport, but it has built for them a foundation that will stand them in good stead in years to come. There is an old saying about sound mind being in a sound body, and that is absolutely true in the case of the Hobson children who are as much interested along educational lines as they are in swimming.

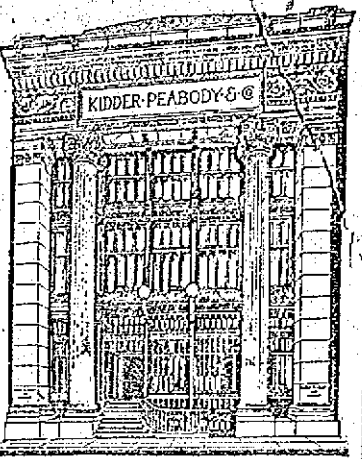

The writer had the pleasure of witnessing a sort of every day swim by the Hobson girl at Long-Sought-for pond. It was not an exhibition swim and it was not one of her long swims, though she swam the length of the pond, about a mile and a quarter. Her father and brother followed her in a boat and the writer went out in another boat to meet them as they neared the finish. She laughed and talked as she glided through the water, her stroke was strong and when assisted into the boat at the end of the course she said she was not any more tired than when she started. Several times during the summer she has covered the pond two ways making a distance of over two miles and then wanted to do it all over again but her father would not permit her to do so lest she might over exert herself. Mr. Hobson says he does not want either his daughter or son to swim far enough to become absolutely tired for he says that becoming tired tends to discourage one. The boy,

WOMAN WAS KILLED

Doctor Seriously Injured in an Automobile Accident

ATTLEBORO, Sept. 9.—As a result of an automobile accident here early today Mrs. Lillian May Shoemaker, wife of Dr. A. B. Shoemaker of this town, is dead and Dr. N. C. Bullard, also of Attleboro, who was riding in the machine with her, is in a serious condition at the Emerson hospital, Boston. After passing the evening at the Shoemaker home Dr. Bullard took Mrs. Shoemaker for a ride upon the suggestion of her husband, who was called out. Speeding down the turnpike on the road from Providence the automobile skidded and turned turtle. Both occupants were thrown to the ground with considerable force, Mrs. Shoemaker being killed instantly and Dr. Bullard rendered unconscious. He was later removed to Boston in an automobile. Mrs. Shoemaker was 26 years old and the daughter of Supt. Ryan of the waterworks at Paterson, N. J.

EX-OFFICER SEARS INDICTED

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 9.—Eben W. Sears, a former policeman of Lynn, who ran for mayor of that city, was indicted on the charge of extortion. It is charged that he attempted to get money from Hugh Ferguson, a saloonkeeper of Lowell, by representing that he was a member of a Law and Order league and, for a consideration, would protect Ferguson.

learned from the Hobsons. Mrs. Hobson is methodical and a genius, too. He is one of the few men who can do most anything and is just as much at home in the woods as he is in the city. Everybody admires the Hobson camp at Long-Sought-for pond, and Hobson himself built it. It was built to accommodate four people. Mr. and Mrs. Hobson and their children, and it's as unique as it is cozy and comfortable, but the Hobsons haven't a great deal of use for the inside of the camp. A wide, well screened piazza, where the wind whistles as it passes from shore to shore, is their sleeping place and for four and five months, beginning in May, they live in the open air. The Hobson quartet is a rugged one and they're just as happy as the day is long. Mr. Hobson and his children took their first swim this year at Long-Sought-for on May 6 and since that time they have been in the water every day.

Speaking of swimming, Mr. Hobson said: "Swimming is fine. Healthful sport, for anybody and everybody can swim if they care to try. Confidence in one's self is all that's required. Keep your mouth shut, breathe through your nose, muster up a good supply of confidence, and you'll learn to swim in no time. It's the simplest thing in the world and the greatest exercise that I know of."

EX-PRESIDENT'S SON

Wants Brest for Port

for Steamers

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Claude Casimir Perrier, son of the former president of the republic, is making a campaign in favor of substituting Brest for Havre as the French port for steamers from the United States. He admits that the inferior place held by French steamers in Atlantic traffic is due to the activities of the Germans and English in building larger and faster steamers but contends that the French could better their position by reducing the distance between France and New York which a change to the more westerly Brest would bring about. The distance from Brest to Paris is considerably longer than that between Havre and Paris. Nevertheless, M. Perrier declares, the inauguration of a series of fast express trains would notably decrease the existing train voyage and the total saving of time between Paris and New York would be at once a distinct advantage to French transatlantic traveling.

The remarkable and constant transparency of the atmosphere was the cause of the terrific heat wave in France, according to M. Deslandres, director of the observatory of Meudon. M. Deslandres made this report to the Academy of Sciences. He added: "This transparency, long continuing, has brought about the high temperatures. I may add that it has been an uncomfortable thing for man it has been a helpful condition for astronomers. We have been able to make some remarkably clear observations of the heavens."

The Catholic population of Savoie, forming an impressive procession of many thousands, participated in the transfer of the ashes of Saint Francois de Sales and Saint Jeanne de Chantal. The ceremony was held at the village of Annecy. The ashes were taken from the old convent of the Visitation where they had reposed during three centuries and placed in the new convent which the sisters of the Visitation have recently built on the heights overlooking the beautiful Lake Annecy.

Leon Cavallio, now staying at Montecatini, Switzerland, is well along in the composition of a new opera to be produced in Milan and New York. It is named "La Foresta Marmorea" and has only two acts. The story is from a romance by Krolewski. The libretto is by Enrico Cavacchioli.

French hunters are cleaning their shot-guns for the annual hunting season opening during the closing days of August and which this year is particularly alluring. Game is abundant. Partridge, pheasant, hare, rabbits, roebuck and even deer have been sighted in unusual numbers in the considerable areas of woodland which do not come under the heading of private hunting grounds.

These private grounds there are many. M. Lebaudy, the so-called "game king," pays $10,000 a year for the right to control the hunting in the famous forest of Fontainebleau. But even so, the forest is a public domain and any person who wishes may follow the Lebaudy hunts. In France hunting comes within the ambitions of many of the masses of the people who have a fancy for that form of sport. The only requisite after the sun and payd is a governmental permit which costs about $5.00 yearly.

Quantities of game are found within a short distance of Paris. Invitations are already out for the more pretentious hunts of the rich man on his estates. In these custom dictated by two men a valet and a third—the gun-carrier. The gun-carrier carries the weapon to the guard who gives it in turn to the valet who hands it to his master. This custom is a relic of the magnificence of the French court of France when the joyous hunt of hound and horse, and valet and "liquor" rang through the court of the chateau.

To the modern hunt many prominent Frenchwomen of today are ardent devotees. The young Duchess of Nemours is a clever shot, and the Countess de Fols, and Madam Georges Raoul-Duval, du Gast, and Brazier all have won their laurels as good markswomen.

CONTRACT AWARDED

For a Big "Dreadnought" Battleship for Turkey

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Turkey has at last definitely awarded the contract for a battleship of the so-called "Dreadnought" type to W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company of Newcastle-on-Tyne and to Vickers Limited, the latter to furnish the armament. The government reserves the right of ordering another vessel at the same price.

The new battleship, it is said, will be the largest warship in the world. The price to be paid is considerably higher than that at which the Bethlehem Steel company of America in conjunction with another English firm offered to build the ships. However, as the grand vizier candidly told a diplomat who was supporting the tender of the American company, Turkey, by placing the contract with the successful tenderers will obtain compensation in other directions which will more than make up for the increased cost of the ship.

It has not yet been disclosed what these compensations will consist, but it is generally understood that the British minister at Constantinople was able to inform the port that the acceptance of the Armstrong tender might induce the British government to look with a kinder eye on the certain questions outstanding between the two countries. Among these were questions arising out of the steamboat monopoly held by a British company to operate steamers on Turkish rivers; non-interference with Turkey's plans in Albania; and the long-standing dispute over the building of the Bagdad railway. On the latter subject active negotiations are now proceeding in the Turkish capital, with good prospects of success and the ultimate completion of the line.

Besides the support of the government the British shipbuilders have secured press agents, and frequent parades appear in the London papers in which it is intimated that among other contracts that for the building of the Chilean warships is to be given to England. As a matter of fact these contracts have not been let and it may be months before they are. American, British and continental firms all have agents in the Chilean capital and even before the fall of the late government very little progress had been made towards the signing of the contracts.

An effort is at last to be made to relieve the newspapers of England from some of the evils they suffer under the present law of libel. Besides having to pay many claims of a black-and-white character, invariably when the jury gives the claimant heavy damages, very often against the advice of the judge. To avoid this Sir George Tounin has introduced a bill in the house of commons, which provides that if a judge is satisfied that the alleged libel is trivial, and that the words complained of have been published in good faith, he may stay all proceedings, unless the plaintiff gives security for the defendant's costs.

Other provisions of the bill are that fact and accurate reports of public meetings, proceedings in court and the finding of the courts, although the finding be subsequently varied, and any fair and bona fide comment thereon, shall be privileged. At present a paper cannot comment on any verdict until it has reached the final court, by which time in many cases, all public interest in the matter has been lost.

The house of commons has lost one of its oldest and most popular figures. In the sudden death of Collins, the head writer of what is known as the exclusive rooming house, one of the members cannot introduce a stranger, Collins, an Irish cockney, was one of those quiet, unobtrusive servants of the old school, who knew the wants of all his clients and took them their accustomed drink as soon as they entered the room. He, too, was full of information and a Chancellor. Lloyd George once said that when he wished to know what the house of commons was going to do he went to the best informed man—Collins.

One of the interesting features of the procession of the Gorsedd Bards to the Mystic Circle at the Elstedford, the national assembly of Welsh bards at Carmarthen, Wales, was the presentation of a daughter of the poet Henry W. Longfellow to the venerable Archdruid.

In company with a party of 100 Welsh-Americans the poet's daughter made the pilgrimage from Boston and the Welsh-Americans expect to make an annual pilgrimage to the gathering. Before the presentation a representative of the Breton Gorsedd mounted the Logan stone and made an address in excellent Welsh. The same day also saw the investiture and initiation of the successful candidates for bardic degrees.

The town of Wolverhampton is all excitement over the refusal by its anust officials of a presentation portrait of Captain Webb, the famous channel swimmer. Captain Webb was a native of Wolverhampton; in the painting he is shown wearing the customary swimming trunks only, and this brevity of attire affected the sensibilities of local officials. George Phoenix, the artist, in presenting the picture, recommended that it be hung in the municipal baths, which, of course, are used also for public meetings.

In a letter acknowledging the artist's offer the town clerk says that the chairman of the baths committee considered the portrait an excellent one in every respect but could not recommend the committee to accept it. The artist is inviting the public to his studio to pass upon the propriety of his work, and local feeling runs high.

DR. DWIGHT DEAD

WELL KNOWN MEDICAL TEACHER PASSED AWAY

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Dr. Thomas Dwight, Parkman professor of anatomy of Harvard medical school and prominent in church and charitable organizations of Boston, died at his summer home in Nahant, just after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Dr. Dwight was 63 for some time and had been in a very serious condition for two weeks.

Dr. Thomas Dwight was born in Boston, Oct. 13, 1843, the son of Thomas and Mary Collins (Warren) Dwight. His early education was received in this city and he graduated from Harvard in the class of 1866. He took his M.D. from the Harvard medical school in 1867, and in 1873 the degree of A.M. was conferred upon him.

After two years abroad in the study of medicine Dr. Dwight returned to Boston in 1873 and established a practice here. In 1874 he became instructor in comparative anatomy at the Harvard medical school and until 1876 he was a lecturer and professor of anatomy at Bowdoin college.

After serving as instructor in histology at Harvard from 1874 to 1882 and as instructor in topographic anatomy from 1880 to 1883, Dr. Dwight in that year succeeded Oliver Wendell Holmes as Parkman professor, holding the chair until his death.

From 1873 to 1878 Dr. Dwight was editor of the Boston Medical Journal, and in 1884 he delivered a course of lectures at the Lowell Institute on the "Mechanism of Bone and Muscle." In 1889 the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by Georgetown university.

COL. ASTOR WEDS

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 9.—Colonel John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeleine T. Force were married this morning at "Beechwood" by Rev. Dr. Joseph Lambert, pastor of Elmwood Temple Congregational church.

William H. Force of Brooklyn, the father of the bride, gave his daughter away.

The other witnesses to the ceremony were Miss Katherine Emmons Force, a sister of the bride, and Vincent Astor, the son of Colonel Astor.

"Beechwood," Colonel Astor's Newport residence near Mrs. O. P. Belmont's marble palace, was beautifully decorated with flowers in honor of the event. The Norms, the steam yacht on which the wedding party made the trip from New York, was a veritable floating hotel.

The Norm arrived in the harbor about eight o'clock this morning. Vincent Astor rushed to be the first person to board the yacht. He was beaten in the race, however, by Deputy Sheriff King, who was the first up the gangway and who served Colonel Astor with a writ of summons, issued by a Providence law firm, representing Mrs. Bridget McCrohan and her children, in which damages of $30,000 are asked on account of the accidental electrocution of Mrs. McCrohan's oldest son, Eugene, while working at "Beechwood" in July, 1910. McCrohan was employed by the Providence Telephone Co. While inspecting the telephone wires in the basement of Colonel Astor's summer house he came in contact with an electric feed wire, the shock causing his death. The writ is returnable in the superior court on Oct. 2 next.

Vincent Astor then joined the party on board the yacht and after all had breakfasted on board, the party came ashore in a motorboat. Colonel Astor was at the wheel. The party landed at the foot of Wellington avenue. In an auto the party went to city hall, where a marriage license was issued. During the city hall proceedings Colonel Astor appeared greatly agitated and nervous but soon recovered his composure.

The announcement of the engagement of the couple was made this summer. Previously, Mr. Astor and his first wife, who was Miss Ann Willing of Philadelphia had been separated after a decree of divorce. Soon after the engagement was announced several prominent prelates of the Episcopal church, including Bishop David Greer of New York, William Doane of Albany, William Lawrence of Massachusetts and James Perry of Rhode Island publicly repudiated the pending marriage because Col. Astor's first wife was still living.

During the past few weeks several clergymen were requested to perform the ceremony but none of them would accept the commission until Mr. Straight, a retired Baptist minister, consented to officiate. Two other Rhode Island clergymen had previously refused to unite the couple in marriage although it was said Colonel Astor's legal representative had offered a fee of $1000 to the minister who would perform the ceremony.

The secrecy with which the arrangements for the marriage were made and the ceremony performed led to the report that Edwin Straight, a retired Baptist clergyman at Providence, at present working as a journeyman carpenter, had officiated and it was not until some time after the wedding that it was announced authoritatively by a member of the Astor household that the clergyman who united the couple was Rev. Dr. Joseph Lambert, pastor of the Elmwood Temple Congregational church in Providence.

Miss Katherine Force was her sister's bridesmaid and Colonel Astor's son, Vincent, was the best man. Others who were present were Mrs. Force, the mother-in-law, Mrs. Elder of New York, a friend of the Force family, former Congressman Sheffield of this city, Colonel Astor's Newport attorney, William Bobbitt, Colonel Astor's secretary, and Thomas Hadda, an employee of Colonel Astor.

moments later they were on board the Norm, which sailed immediately. The destination of the yacht has been kept a secret.

When Col. Astor and his bride departed from "Beechwood" for the boat landing they made the trip in a taxicab hired by one of the newspaper correspondents. The Astor auto was not on hand, the chauffeur evidently believing that his services would not be needed so soon. Later the correspondent whose taxicab was used as the bridal car was brought into Newport from the Astor residence in the colonel's private automobile.

Just after leaving "Beechwood" Col. Astor gave a statement to the Associated Press. It follows:

"Now that we are happily married I do not care how difficult divorce and remarriage laws are made. I sympathize heartily with the most straight-laced people in most of their ideas but believe re-marriage should be made possible, as marriage is the happiest condition for the individual and the community."

400 CHINESE SAILORS

To Enjoy the Sights of New York City for Short Time

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Four hundred pig-tailed sailors holidaying along Broadway and the Bowery and in the narrow streets of New York's Chinatown will furnish a novelty for New Yorkers next week. They will arrive some time tomorrow on the Chinese cruiser Hanchi and for a week will have shore leave and the freedom of the city, a courtesy not offered to the ordinary subject of China. H. R. Sisson, the Chinese inspector of the local immigration bureau, declares that his authority does not extend over Chinese subjects on a man of war. Accordingly, the visitors will get all the courtesies and privileges and entertainment that are usually the joy of foreign sailors in the American metropolis.

Trips to Coney Island, a visit to Grant's tomb, a theatre party and a big feast or two are planned with their fellow countrymen in this city as hosts, headed by the Chinese chamber of commerce and the students organizations.

The Hanchi's officers will be more formally entertained by American officers at the Brooklyn navy yard and by army men at Governor's Island. Both officers and crew will have a chance to be impressed by three or four of the big ships of Uncle Sam's navy. Monday they may see the first rivet drawn into the keel plate of the giant warship New York, destined to be the biggest thing of its kind in the naval world.

The Hanchi is the first Chinese warship that has ever visited American waters and she will receive an official welcome from city, state and federal authorities worthy of the occasion. The rank of her commander, Admiral Ching Pih Kwang, who lacks but one place of being the head of the Chinese navy, will entitle her to a robust salute as she passes the forts at the harbor entrance.

RETREAT IS ENDED

Imposing Ceremony at Oblate Novitiate

The retreat of the Oblate Fathers which was started Sept. 1 at the Oblate novitiate in Tewksbury, came to a close yesterday morning with imposing services at which a number of Brothers made their vows in the order.

The retreat was preached by Rev. John P. Flynn, O. M. I., of the Sacred Heart parish. At the closing of the retreat yesterday, Rev. Fr. McKenna, O. M. I., superior of the novitiate, celebrated a high mass and preached the sermon, taking as his subject, "Dignity of Religious Vocation." After the communion of the celebrant, the following members of the community made their vows: Bros. Albert McDermott, Lowell; William Mahan, Boston; Lewis Baschind, Clyde, Kan.; Joseph Moriarty, Newboro, Ont.; Henry Burns, Everett, Thomas P. O'Brien, Buffalo.

At the close of the mass the blessed sacrament was exposed and all those on retreat renewed their vows and the imposing ceremony was followed by a dinner.

Last night, the vigil of the feast, Frank Hill of Boston was made a scholastic and the following were received as lay brothers: William Murphy, Dorchester, and John Dillike of Chelsea.

POLICE BALL GAME

Next Tuesday the members of the baseball team of "the finest" will cross bats with the bluecoats of the Lynn department. The battle will be on the grounds at Spaulding park at 11 o'clock and it goes without saying that there will be something doing every minute. Of course Lowell will win but the Shee City aggregation has been practicing for the game and it is expected that the battle will be a hot one.

GERMANY'S REPLY

In the Moroccan Dispute Received,

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The text of Germany's reply to France's proposals offered with a view to settling the Moroccan dispute only reached the French ambassador, M. Cambon, last night. The draft of the German counter proposals was revised after the interview between the French ambassador and the German foreign minister, Herr Von Kiderlin, Wachtel, last Thursday and the text is not expected to reach the French foreign office until tomorrow. No immediate development in the situation therefore is likely. The general impression here is that much further negotiation is likely before an agreement is reached.

RINDGE FAMILY

HAVE DECIDED TO FORM A CORPORATION

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 9.—Members of the Rindge family, well known to Cambridge, Mass., residents, have decided to incorporate their vast land holdings in southern California and yesterday, through Atty. O'Melveny, for the Rindge estate, filed papers for the Rindge company, with a nominal capital of $450,000.

The directors of the company are to be Mary K. Rindge, Samuel K. Rindge, Frederick H. Rindge and Henry W. O'Melveny.

It is merely to obviate some of the difficulties of handling some of the Rindge properties as individual pieces and to prevent other trouble that might arise in the future that the incorporation had been made, merely a matter of convenience for the family and nothing at all to do with the distribution or segregation of the properties, as reported by people who think they know it all," said O'Melveny.

GANG OF BURGLARS

HAS BEEN AT WORK IN VERMONT

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Sept. 9.—Since the Joke on the burglars who blow open an empty safe at Darling's grain store in East Burke early Thursday morning has become known it has also developed that nearly the entire official force of Caledonia county were among those fooled. In some manner State Atty R. W. Simonds learned that a break was intended and, accompanied by Sheriff Worthen and six deputies, went to East Burke by auto.

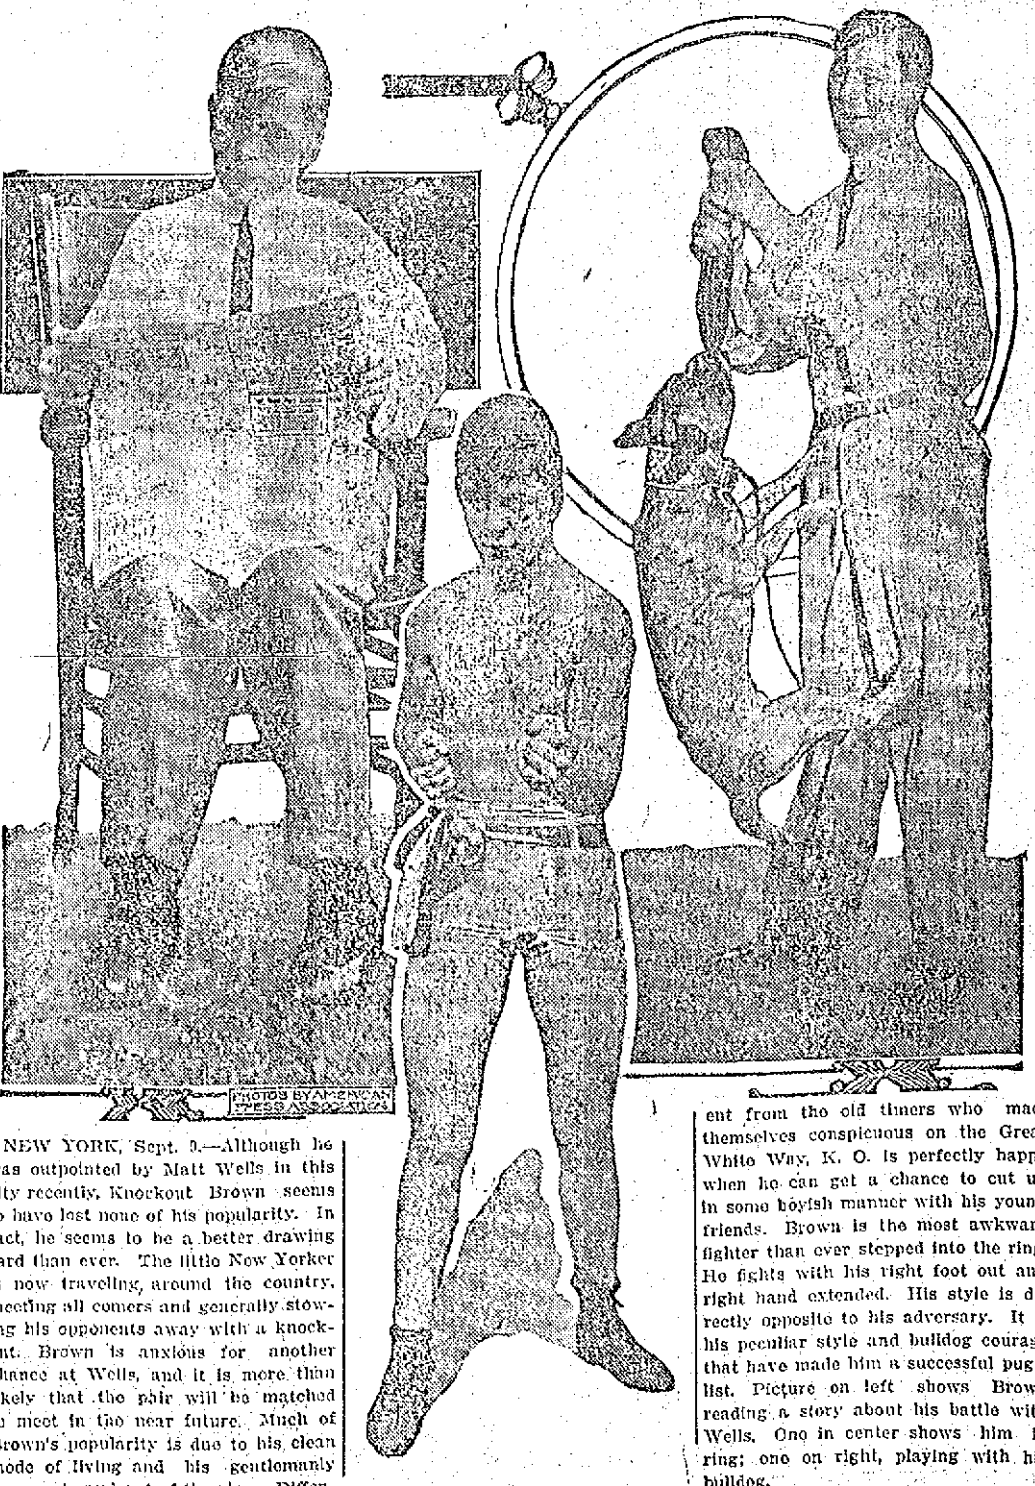

There they were stationed in and around the building, where they remained until 2:30, when it was decided that the job had been called off. The watch was broken and the official force started back, on the way meeting another auto which it was afterward learned contained the cracksmen. They had made the trip from White River Junction and arrived at East Burke just half an hour after the sheriff's posse had left.

The break is believed to be the work of an organized gang which has been working in Vermont for the past year.

THREE VIEWS OF KNOCKOUT BROWN, ONE OF THE MOST INTERESTING CHARACTERS IN THE RING TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Although he was outpointed by Matt Wells in this city recently, Knockout Brown seems to have lost none of his popularity. In fact, he seems to be a better drawing card than ever. The little New Yorker is now travelling around the country, meeting all comers and generally stowing his opponents away with a knockout. Brown is anxious for another chance at Wells, and it is more than likely that the pair will be matched to meet in the near future. Much of Brown's popularity is due to his clean mode of living and his gentlemanly manner in and out of the ring. Different from the old timers who made themselves conspicuous on the Great White Way, K. O. is perfectly happy when he can get a chance to cut up in some boyish manner with his young friends. Brown is the most awkward fighter than ever stepped into the ring. He fights with his right foot out and right hand extended. His style is directly opposite to his adversary. It is his peculiar style and bulldog courage that have made him a successful pugilist. Picture on left shows Brown reading a story about his battle with Wells. One in center shows him in ring; one on right, playing with his bulldog.

PRESIDENT TAFT WILL DEFEND HIS ADMINISTRATION IN TOUR OF COUNTRY

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 9.—President Taft's coming "swing round the circle" will prove one of the most extended tours ever undertaken by a president of the United States. The trip, beginning Sept. 15 at Boston, will last forty-eight days, during which period the president will visit no less than 115 cities. Among the cities he will visit are: Syracuse, N. Y.; Erie, Pa., Sept. 16 and 17; Detroit and other Michigan points, Sept. 18 to 21; St. Louis, Sept. 22; Kansas City, Sept. 24; Des Moines, Sept. 25; Denver, Oct. 3; Salt Lake City, Oct. 6; Seattle, Oct. 9; Portland, Ore., Oct. 11; Minneapolis, Oct. 24; Milwaukee, Oct. 26; Chicago, Oct. 29 and 30; Pittsburgh, Oct. 31. The president returns to Washington Nov. 1. He will be accompanied by Major Archibald Butt, his military secretary. Mr. Taft will deliver a series of addresses in support of the policies of his administration.

LAWRENCE WON OUT

But it Took Them 10 Innings to Do it

Lowell lost a heart-breaking 10 inning game to Lawrence yesterday afternoon before a small attendance which was over half from Lowell, including quite a number of Lowell ladies. The game looked good for the visitors up to the ninth when Lawrence tied up the score. In the 10th Lowell got three men on bases but failed to score while Lawrence pulled off the winning run in the 10th.

An unusual and amusing feature of the game was the fact that both pitchers, Yount and Kolset, two of the most indifferent batters in the business, each knocked home runs over the centre field fence with a man on base and each did it in the second inning.

Lowell scored one in the first on a single by Barrows followed by Carlstrom's fumble of Cooney's grounder and Fluharty's timely single. In the second with one out, Huston got a base on balls and then Duckie Yount surprised himself and everyone else by knocking the ball over the centre field fence for a homer.

Lawrence got one in the first after ton beat the ball out and there were two on. Then Cooney fled—out to Carlstrom and there were two out. Kolset walked Magee and the bases were full. But Fluharty flied to Briggs. In the home team's half Kennedy opened with a two-bagger. Catterson sent him to third with a single. Briggs hit to Boulters, who threw Catterson out at second while holding Kennedy on third. Phoenix struck out. Carlstrom singled to left and the game was over.

The New England league pennant for 1911 comes to Lowell, it matters not what happens today.

Such was the glad news received from Secretary J. C. Morse of the league last night.

When the rain prevented the game in Worcester yesterday it was given out that Worcester would play three games today, one in the morning and two in the afternoon. Under these circumstances if Worcester won first honors and whatever the result three games today and Lowell lost in of tomorrow's games, the last of the Brockton today, Worcester would tie the season, Lowell is champion.

Lowell for the pennant and a series to settle the championship would be necessary.

Last night, however, the Associated Press sent out the following dispatch: BOSTON, Sept. 8.—Lowell, despite its loss of today's game to Lawrence, 5 to 4 in 10 innings, has won the New England league championship for 1911.

Rain today destroyed the only chance that Worcester had to the Lowell for first honors and whatever the result three games today and Lowell lost in of tomorrow's games, the last of the Brockton today, Worcester would tie the season, Lowell is champion.

LOWELL'S 300 BATTERS

Up to today's game Lowell has five players who have batted for 300 for the season, as follows:

Barrows	137	103	161	373
Fluharty	120	78	148	346

Burkett Dies Game

When informed of the league's ruling relative to today's games Jesse Burkett of the Worcester team said that three games will be played, weather permitting, whether they count or not, the first in the morning and the second and third in the afternoon. "We'll play out the string anyway and show the public how we would have finished but for the rule," said Jesse with great confidence.

Lowell Players Pleased

While the members of the Lowell team were confident of winning today's game it was with a feeling of relief that they heard the news that Lowell gets the pennant anyway for they were nerved up over the closeness of the standing. The boys will go down to New Brunswick tomorrow night full of confidence, and they expect to clean up the Bluesoes.

Have Led Since June

Way back on June 12, Lowell stopped into first place and has never been ousted, though Worcester has given them a good chase. The team has played without friction throughout the season and has been absolutely free from the petty jealousies that crop out in some teams. On and off the field the members of the team have been gentlemen at all times and the umpires aver that they have had less trouble with the Lowell team than any other in the league.

Lowell's and the N. E. League Star Pitcher

SECY FISHER'S PLANS

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 9.—Secretary of the Interior Walter Fisher, at a dinner given here last night in his honor, declared Controller Bay to be neither the only nor the best harbor for the output of the Behring river coal fields, pronounced the extent and character of those fields "grossly exaggerated" and announced his policy to be the opening and development of the fields but not under unrestricted private ownership. The plan of leasing the coal lands, Mr. Fisher said, deserves consideration because it has the approval of the president.

He read extracts from reports showing the successful workings of this system in Australia and New Zealand, also cited the leasing law of Yukon territory.

"The third remedy," he continued, "is that the government shall own and operate the mines. Many thoughtful men here are of the opinion that the time will come when it becomes necessary for the nation to regulate the source of power—fuel and waterfalls upon which industry depends."

THE PROPOSED SEWER PUMP

The residents of the farther Oaklands and the adjoining district, in need of better sewerage, have little faith in the sewer pump arrangement favored by the committee. It would be a continual source of expense and a temporary arrangement at best. What is the use of expending any large amount of money for such a purpose while an extensive plan of sewerage for the whole district beyond the Oaklands has been started at considerable expense. The Andover street sewer was started with the intention that it should be extended to Rogers street. The city cannot build any great portion of this sewer this year but it should lay out the work so that a certain section will be built yearly until the work be complete. To erect a sewer pump at the foot of Wentworth avenue will only put off the proper solution of the sewer problem. It will be so much money thrown away. If the Oakland sewer were completed it would drain Wigginsville and South Lowell and would soon pay for itself in the revenue from the increased value of the land in a wide district of territory admirably adapted for residential purposes if proper drainage were provided. It is understood that City Engineer Kearney is not enthusiastic on the sewer pump question but stands ready to carry out the instructions of the city council and to give expert advice on every proposition submitted for his decision.

THE SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

There is a conference going on in England in regard to the simplification of our spelling. England stands pat on the spelling question. She is unwilling to relinquish the "u" in honour, labour and some other words while she still retains the double l in many words in which reason and analogy would dictate the omission of one. It would be useless to appeal to England in favor of phonetic spelling. That has been agitated for the past forty years but with little or no success. The late Sir Isaac Pitman was a great advocate of phonetic spelling but he accomplished little more than to bring its simplicity to public attention. The English language changes even in England, but it is hard to induce the educators to eradicate any irregular form of spelling that has become a fixture in the language. The Carnegie spelling reformers have accomplished little in this country and it is useless for them to try to carry the war into England. Their efforts there will be even less successful than in this country, if such a thing were possible.

The civil service commission in Great Britain and Ireland is the most powerful body in the land in regard to accepted forms in spelling. Whatever spelling the commission decides to adopt as regular will be adopted throughout the country not only by the civil service employees but by the vast number of aspirants for office, most of whom are drilled in preparatory schools for the examinations they wish to take. The primary schools even follow the edicts of the civil service examiners. The next best authority would be the British parliament. If Chancellor Lloyd George sees that it is necessary to give certain desirable changes the force of law, he might have it enacted that certain irregularities in spelling would be abolished.

In 1906 President Roosevelt after giving the movement for simplified spelling his endorsement sent a letter to the Public Printer directing him to use in all government publications of the executive departments the simpler spellings included in the 300 words enumerated in circular No. 5 of the simplified spelling board. Later in the year the house of representatives attached to an appropriation bill a clause providing that no part of the money should be used for printing in simplified spelling any of the documents authorized by act of congress. That limited the use of simplified spelling in government documents to those not authorized by congress, and it has since been abandoned, we believe, almost entirely even in these.

THE VOTERS TO HAVE THE VETO POWER

It would appear that a great many false ideas are being circulated in regard to the new city charter, many that should not receive a moment's consideration from intelligent men. For example, it is charged that three men would run the city and that they would have it in their power to order the heads of departments to throw out this or that man without any legitimate reason. Anybody who circulates that kind of stuff is misrepresenting the facts. The adoption of the new charter will not overturn the civil service law, nor will it injure the steady department employee who knows his business and attends to it. The street laborers, the men in the water department and the building department know their business and will remain.

Nor is it true, as the politicians assert, that a motley gang of foreigners will be brought here to work on the streets of our city. The voters would not tolerate it. None of these things prevail in the city of Haverhill nor in Lynn, although the Des Moines charter is in full force in both cities.

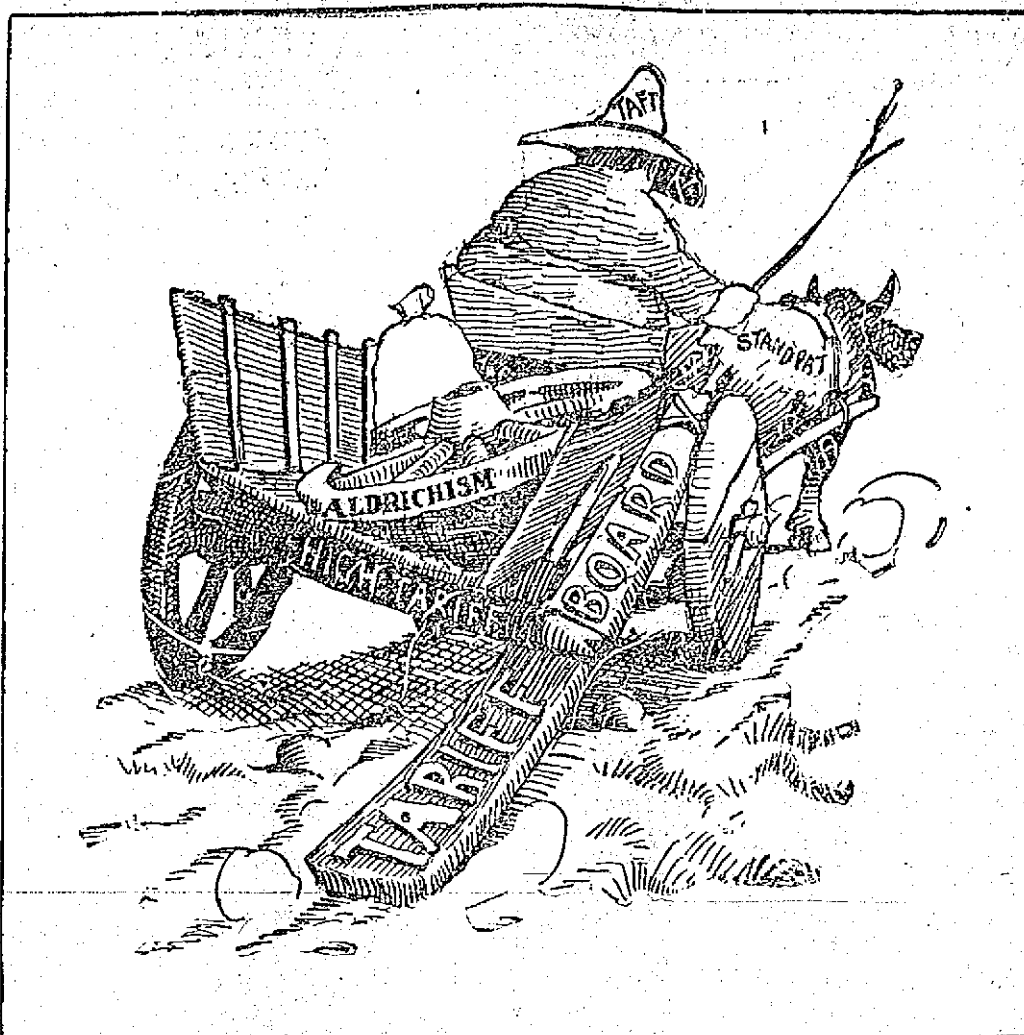

The men who are circulating these stories about the new charter do not state that the people will have lodged in their hands the power to prevent these abuses.

What is that power? It is the Referendum or veto power on measures adopted by the municipal board and the Recall of members of that board for neglect of duty, for malfeasance or incompetency.

Over in England recently we have seen one of the great struggles of the century settled in depriving the house of lords of the veto power on popular measures; but what would be said if the people were given a fixed veto power upon measures enacted by parliament? That is the power that the people of some American states already possess; but it has not yet been granted to the people of Massachusetts. The new charter upon which the people have to pass at the state election in this city will give the voters of Lowell the veto power upon all measures adopted by the municipal board provided for in the charter. That power together with the Recall which is also provided for will give the electorate absolute control of their elected officials.

Therefore, let it not be said that the municipal board will do this or that wrong to the men of any department. The regular men will get more work than ever, because they will not be removed to make way for political heelers as in the past.

Let it be understood that under the new charter the voters will elect men to be their servants, not their masters.

"Concerning Strauss and his banging, crashing music, Colonel Higginson used to tell a story.

"He said that Strauss went one summer on a hunting trip in the mountains. It chanced that on a certain afternoon a terrific storm descended on the hunting party. Amid ear-splitting thunder and blinding lightning, amid deluges of rain whipped by a roaring wind, the huntsmen all sought shelter.

"Where, though, was Strauss?

"Three friends set out in alarm to look for him. They feared that in the wild chase of the storm he had fallen down a precipice. After a long while they found him, they found him doing—what do you suppose?

"Strauss stood bareheaded on the summit of a lofty crag. The lightning played about him in vivid violet flashes; the rain deluged him; the thunder rolled and rumbled about him; the roaring wind flapped his coat tails about his head; and the musician, a ramrod in his hand, was busily engaged in his high crag in conducting the thunder storm!"

"ALL FOR THE BEST"

All's for the best, be sanguine and cheerful.

Troubles and sorrows are friends in disguise; Nothing, but folly goes faithless and fearful; Courage forever is happy and wise.

All's for the best, if a man will but know it.

Providence wishes us all to be blest; This is no dream of the pundit or poet; Heaven is gracious, and all's for the best.

All's for the best, then fling away terrors.

Meet all your fears and your foes in the van, And in the midst of your dangers and errors Trust like a child while you strive like a man.

All's for the best unbiased, unbounded, Providence reigns from the east to the west; And by both wisdom and virtue surrounded Hope and be happy that all's for the best.

An exact definition of a gentleman has been tried many times, never perhaps with entirely satisfactory results. Little Sadie had never heard of any of the various definitions, but she managed to throw a beam of light on the subject, albeit one touched with your mouth perfectly.

A New York "bird man" lately had in his shop a taciturn parrot. Day after day it sat silent on its perch, indifferent to every question.

At last a Cuban lady came into the shop and spoke to it in her native tongue. The parrot brightened up at once, opened its beak and emitted a jubilant volley of vehement Spanish words.

When the parrot finally ceased speaking the lady turned to Mr. Hoiden and, blushing violently, asked: "Do you understand Spanish?" "No," he replied.

"Thank God!" she replied and left the shop.—Success.

MR. I. L. SHOWEM CASHES A CHECK--GETS A MEAL AND MANY OTHER THINGS

MRS. RETZ' FORTUNE

It is Alleged That the Property Was Taken by Plot

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—George R. Blinn, special administrator of the estate of Mary Retz, who kept a lodging house for years at 147 Warren avenue, brought a bill in the supreme court yesterday against Joseph Bingham, his daughter Adelaide C. Bingham and Mary Pierce, seeking to recover the bulk of the estate of the late estate which he alleges the defendants procured from her fraudulently. Her property was worth about $30,000.

Others named as plaintiffs are Etta J. Davis, John H. Pratt, Letitia A. Pratt of West Hoboken and Jennie M. Williams of Union Hall, N. J., Grand-nieces and grandnephews.

Judge Hammond issued an order of notice returnable Wednesday next. The bill alleges that the Bingham family arranged to have Mary Pierce live with the intestate so that she could help to exert an influence over the woman, who was weak and feeble mentally and physically.

Mrs. Retz died May 20 and the special administrator was appointed July 3. Her husband, John Retz, died July 11, 1905. She was 71 years old.

The bill alleges the Bingham family conspired to get influence over her and obtained her property, to the exclusion of her relatives and others who had been close friends.

According to the allegations, she relied almost wholly on the advice of Joseph Bingham. The plaintiffs charge that Bingham threw influences around her that prevented her from getting advice from relatives and lifelong friends.

A Great Battle in the State of Maine

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Maine is paying more attention to the coming vote on the prohibitory amendment than to anything else today. It is the topic of conversation. With rallies every night, band concerts, placards, buttons, literature, and house-to-house solicitors, the prohibitionists are conducting the fight of their lives to retain the amendment. If they lose it will not be by default. Those who favor the repeal of the amendment are conducting a still hunt. They have not held a meeting, hired a band or put out a button. Their work has been entirely the distribution of literature, advertisement in the daily papers and personal solicitation and argument.

Men who have been active now predict as large a vote as that cast for governor last fall. Earlier in the campaign the same men were of the opinion that if the vote on the amendment was 50 per cent of the vote of the two principal parties last fall it could be considered large.

The registration boards have closed their sessions and an increased registration over 1910 is reported throughout the state, indicating an even larger vote than a year ago.

TO DECIDE STRIKE QUESTION

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Whether the Illinois Central railroad shopmen will strike because of the refusal of President Markham to recognize their recently formed federation will be decided tomorrow at a meeting of the executive board of the nine trade unions involved. Several officers of the federation have, it is said, been in favor of a strike ever since the railroad refused to grant their demands, but a number of other interested labor chiefs, including influential members of the international unions, are counseling peace at this time and will do everything in their power to prevent a walkout. The conservative labor chiefs admit that if a majority of the unions involved decide to strike they will join in the walkout. Talk of arbitration as a means of settling the dispute was revived today at several informal conferences.

The actual number of Illinois Central employees involved in the dispute is said to be 6074, including machinists and helpers, sheet metal workers and helpers, painters and helpers, blacksmiths and helpers, boilermakers and helpers, steamfitters and helpers, car repairers, car cleaners, car inspectors and laborers.

INDICTED FOR MURDER

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 9.—Three indictments charging murder in the first degree, one in the second degree and two of manslaughter were reported to Judge McLaughlin of the superior criminal court here today by the September session of the Middlesex county grand jury. The three persons charged with murder in the first degree were Bliss W. Darrah of Cambridge, who is charged with murdering his wife; Peter George, who is charged with murdering Spiro Stoyi at Natick on the Fourth of July, and Frank Blaskovo, who is alleged to have admitted that he murdered Mrs. Francis Wilkinson in Somerville on July 21 because he was laboring under the impression that the woman had given him consumption germs. Both Darrah and George are still at large. Blaskovo was taken into custody shortly after the murder.

DIAMOND NOTES

Once more the pennant will fly over Lowell. Hurrah!

We are the champs.

All honor to the hunch, not forgetting little Eddie, the mascot.

Lawrence holds third place and Little Jawn looks good for the first division.

The finish of yesterday's game was a heart breaker.

Lowell has the pennant, the best hitter in the league the best runner in the league, the fastest player in the league, Herb Young, six feet three inches, and the shortest player in the league, Al Moulton, five feet two inches.

Lowell certainly had some loyal supporters among the ladies. In the chilly April days down to yesterday's wintry atmosphere at Lawrence they were on hand.

Worcester postponed, on account of weather. The scheduled for yesterday with Haverhill, and that according to Sec. Morse, destroyed its last chance to come to a tie with Lowell.

In making his decision Sec. Morse quoted a rule adopted by the league last year that no more than two games in one day could count for the championship.

When told of this ruling last night in Worcester, Burkett showed no disposition to give up the fight, saying: "I'm running my own ball grounds here and three games will be played tomorrow, weather permitting. If Sec. Morse counts one out, well and good, but there will be three games, the first called at 10 o'clock."

The Boston Globe says today: Lowell, despite its loss of yesterday's game to Lawrence, has won the New England league championship for 1911, according to Sec. J. C. Morse, ranking official of the league, in the absence of Pres. T. H. Murnane.

Lowell is scheduled to play Brockton today and the schedule calls for two between Worcester and Haverhill.

If Lowell wins its game, Worcester cannot tie for the pennant, even though it play and be allowed to count three victories over Haverhill.

The final game is with Brockton this afternoon.

The Bull Durham people this morning informed the sporting editor of The Sun that they will present Charlie Wilson, who hit the Bull at Spalding park Wednesday, his check for $30, at the Worcester-Haverhill game today. Ordinarily the presentation would be made in this city but as the season closes today the company decided to give along the check. Capt. Barrows of Lowell, former catcher of Lawrence and Wilson of Worcester, the three lucky men to hit the Bull this season and in each case the company has promptly forwarded them each a check for $30. During the season the sporting editor of The Sun has given out 57 orders for home runs at Spalding park, the players making the home runs each receiving $30, in cases of Bull Durham smoking tobacco.

John Magee has the distinction of having played in every league game this season.

Al Moulton has established a new league record for run-getting with 112. The best previous record, 112, was made by Billy Hamilton at Haverhill in 1904.

RECIPES FOR FRUIT
PICKLES

PICKLED SWEET APPLES.

Get sweet apples that are not entirely ripe and soft. Pare, core and quarter them unless they are sufficiently small to cook evenly. In this case they merely require paring and taking out the blossom end. Make a sirup of three pounds of sugar to a pint of vinegar. Spice with a teaspoonful each of whole cloves, cinnamon and allspice and a nutmeg broken in pieces. Tie the spices in a cheesecloth bag. If the apples are whole stick a whole clove in each blossom end of the apple. When the sirup boils up hard skim and drop in the apples, seven pounds to the quantity of sirup given. Stir gently now and then, but do not break them. When they are tender enough to pierce with a straw place them in pickle jars and turn the hot sirup over them.

PICKLED LEMONS.

These are delicious to eat with cold meats and fish. Select small lemons with a thick rind. Rub them with a piece of flannel, then slit them half-way down in quarters, but do not cut all the way through to the pulp. Press as much salt as you can into the slits and place the lemons, on end, in a pan or earthen dish and let them stand for three or four days until the salt melts. Turn them three times a day in their own liquor until they are tender. Then make pickle enough to cover them, using vinegar, the brine from the lemons, a small piece of green ginger and a Jamaica pepper. Boil and skim carefully and let it get cold, then pour over the lemons with some white mustard seed, using two ounces of seed to six lemons.

PICKLED WATERMELON.

This is a good way to dispose of your watermelon when it is plumped and found not good enough for the table. Cut in longwise strips and peel and let stand overnight in water and vinegar in equal parts. To one pound of melon allow a half pound of sugar. Add cinnamon and spice to suit the taste. Cook at a gentle boil until you can pierce the melon with a fork and it looks clear. Take out and boil down the sirup until quite thick and pour over the melon while hot.

IF YOUR JELL WON'T "JELL."

An old and always successful housewife says she adds to every pint and a half of fruit juice that needs to jell two tablespoonfuls of good vinegar. As fruit is rather scalding and -res, if the fruit is sound, will make very good addition to the jell supply. Only by gathering up the fragments can true economy be practiced.

When the
Lamp Is Lit

Musings of Elinor Hite

If a woman wants to earn the admiration or love of a mere man she should study his temperament. This is the advice given by a woman who has mastered the secret of fascinating the stronger sex. "It is surprising," so this fair one says, "how a man is drawn to a woman tactful enough to display a sympathetic interest in his business affairs, his sports and his general welfare. We are all egotists at heart, and men are no exceptions to this rule of individualism. The woman who bears with his worries and difficulties is therefore high in his estimation while she is present and is held in grateful memory when absent."

"The practical woman is the feminine ideal of the modern man. Let the girls remember this, and when they are inclined to discuss the last confection of millinery with a man don't intelligently talk to him about the best way to broil a steak or make a salad."

"No matter how fine a conversationist a woman may be, if she is not a talented listener her drawing room will not be filled with members of the masculine element. It has been said that the true test of a wife's devotion lies in laughing at the moth eaten jokes of her husband."

"This rule holds good as well for the maid as the matron, for nothing ticks a man's vanity as a suspicion that he is a born comedian."

"A man, too, loves to talk his state secrets into the shell-like ear of a pretty woman provided the ear can be trusted. There are so few women who can be trusted in this respect that an absolutely trustworthy one is at a premium."

"Cultivate the art of being a man's companion, his sweetheart, his confidant, but beware of making incursions into his wardrobe or his stock of masculine attributes, for he loathes these degradations," concludes the wise one.

BASKETS FOR THE WARDROBE.

Baskets are beginning to take the place of fabric covered boxes for holding accessories of the wardrobe. The fad came in with the adoption of low, flat hampers for holding shirt waists, and these hampers have been so improved that the new ones have two trays placed one above the other, but so carefully fitted that the weight of the upper one does not in the least injure the freshness of whatever is placed on the lower tray.

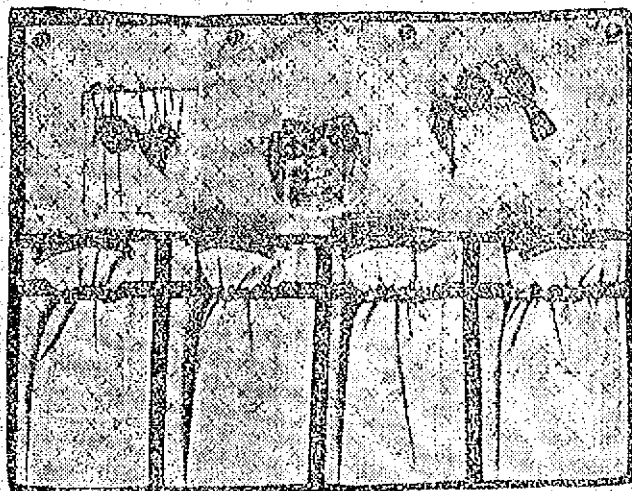

The first tray is usually designed for the very best blouses, those which are the most expensive to do up. This tray is first covered with a heavy white linen, then with a sheet of lavender scented cotton batting and finally with dotted Swiss or muslin embroidery. Attached to the inner long side of the tray are a half dozen little sheets or leaves of linen, one of which is laid over each freshly laundered blouse as it is placed in the hamper.

The lower tray, which is several inches deeper than the upper one, is for the tailored linen waists and the different sorts of outing shirts, and while it is sachet lined its covering is of lawn, and the sheets are of the same substantial material.

The lavender sachet is nicest because its evasive odor suggests the freshness of country laundering rather than a decided perfume, and it should be the only one associated with any garment that goes regularly to the laundress.

FASHIONABLE BEVERAGE.

The fashionable drink at afternoon teas and receptions is not tea iced or even Russianized. Instead it is chocolate made very thick and quite unsweetened. Over this, as the maid or butler hands it to you, is poured seltzer or carbonated water from a siphon. You are graciously permitted to add sugar if you so desire.

The Society Launcher

The Social Sea, Not the Briny Deep, Is Her
Sphere of Operation

A PROFESSION followed by many women of birth and breeding is that of launching on the social waves women who are ambitious of going where they have never been before—socially. The promoter is generally a kind hearted woman who begins her calling unconsciously. In fact, it usually happens in this way: She is asked by some one who has more money than opportunities to enjoy what it can procure for introductions. She manages them. Her client is enormously and substantially grateful.

populations. Even if Washington residents fight shy of the new people the launcher can always depend upon the foreign element to be attracted by wealth. The next step is a cottage at Newport. The next step is a winter in New York. Some of the foreigners have given invitations to visit their own homes. But if they have not the client is usually anxious to own a chateau or a villa or shooting box abroad, so abroad in the spring launcher and client betake themselves. Then the thing is done. It does not matter how new you are if you have enormous wealth and the prestige that attaches to an influential foreign visiting list.

"Meantime the launcher, in whom kindness and shrewdness are about equal, has known the delights of having no financial embarrassments. She is retained by her client whenever a move is in progress. 'New people are never at their ease alone upon unwanted soil. If there is no definite arrangement about fees the launcher has her hotel bills paid, her wardrobe supplied, her every wish gratified. She is treated as an honored guest and extends the hospitalities she enjoys to any personal friends she may wish to share them with.

"Another season may find her first client able to swim alone. But there are new 'new' people, and her fame is not unknown to them. Soon she has a clientele whose invitations make her independent of all home cares. She passes from Washington to Newport, from Newport to New York, from New York to Europe without expense and with the consciousness of being appreciated, wanted—nay, indispensable."

HOW THE SCHOOLGIRL WEARS HER HAIR THIS FALL

WHEN the young girl has reached sixteen or seventeen she is too big to wear her hair in curls or even in a braided "pigtail" down her back. She longs to "put up" her hair with a longing that is only outdone by the desire to "let down" her frocks. There are several pretty ways of doing the hair which do not suggest the conventional coiffure of womanhood, yet can be kept so beautifully clean and fluffy by constant brushing and frequently shampooing that every live, healthy hair stands up separately and gives that soft, luxurious appearance that only the hair of the young ever seems to possess. At night the hair should be well shaken to dry it thoroughly from the moisture of the head and to allow the air to blow through it and help make it light and fluffy.

The back. The coils are wound tightly and are pinned very firmly to the head, and the front of the hair is parted and pulled down softly over the forehead. This is a most satisfactory coiffure for horseback riding, tennis or any other strenuous exercise, as the firmly twisted and pinned hair does not readily become disarranged.

When the hair is long, coronet braids twisted around the head are charming. The hair is divided into two strands

THE TWIN COIL.

The one thing to be avoided in a young girl's coiffure is an artificial effect. The hair may be slightly waved overnight with kids or other curling devices if it is very straight and lank, but frizzes, undulations made with a hot iron or artificial waves and curls made in any way if pronounced are in bad taste. False hair of any sort is of course unspeakably awful on a girl's head. Usually the young girl has pretty enough hair of her own to be able to snap her fingers at any of these only suitable sort for young girlhood. A fresh and pretty girl is charming in a severe coiffure that would be cruelly trying to an older woman, and usually in girlhood the more severe the hair-dressing the more it seems to throw the fresh prettiness of the face into relief. Just now the twin coil or triple coil at the back is the fad with sixteen-year-olds, and one of the illustrations shows this triple coil arrangement. When the hair is not quite so thick twin coils may be used, one at either side of the center of the head, at

by a part straight down the back of the head, and each section is braided in a long braid, which goes all around the head. The braids are pinned under a barrette at the back and should be pulled well over the forehead in front, a little fringe of short hairs forming a softening "bang" beneath the rather hard lines of the braids.

A still more youthful arrangement is shown in another photograph, the long braid being simply looped up over a wide ribbon bow and the curled ends of hair falling below the loop in girlish and pretty effect.

THE NEWEST FALL
SUITINGS

THE fall suitings show many boucle or rough effects in two or many toned blendings. A reddish brown cloth with flecks of red, brown and black mingled is very new and good for tailored suits.

Plain serges show boucle borders in harmonious colorings that will appeal to lovers of these bordered stuffs, but the really smart tailored suit is without a border and is made up with no other fabric save perhaps a velvet or silk collar to relieve its severity.

There is a tendency toward heavier serges, which wear and make up beautifully. Some of the new Scotch mixtures that are sure to be popular are pebbled in appearance, with knotted threads in strong colors on their surface.

For dressy wear broadcloth and velvet will most probably lead in popularity. A rough finished material is never suitable for dressy suits, but a broadcloth is, and for afternoon or semi-evening wear a smooth, lustrous broadcloth is the ideal fabric. Besides, it can be worn on any occasion. A rough material of even velvet cannot.

A MOTOR MASCOT.

The inventor of the latest motor mascot evidently thinks one amulet will not prevent a smashup, so he has combined five of the best known emblems of good luck into one.

If you would make sure of coming home whole-machine and body-on your next tour go equipped with this mascot. It consists of a horseshoe with lucky upturned points and seven nail holes. At the base inside the horseshoe is one of the charm ornaments of the Kings of Babylon, an emblem of good fortune with ancient Romans—a wheel of the sun chariot. Above the wheel are two lunar crescents, typical of a lucky new moon. Topping all is the svastika, meaning happiness, good luck and pleasure.

If after all this one comes a cropper she is born under an evil star or has an abominable chauffeur.

New, Yet Old

VARIETY in the coloring of cigar jars is welcomed by the wife, no matter how indifferent her husband may be on this issue. And if a receptacle may be found that proves an artistic note in the living room great

A PATTERN BAG.

To the woman who does her own sewing a pattern bag is a necessity. A simple and commodious one is made of green denim or other firm material. There are two rows of pockets of the same material and deep enough to conceal the pattern well. The edges may be bound with tape of a deeper shade and tape hangers or strings stitched at each corner.

TIME TO BEGIN
CHRISTMAS WORK

IF any girl wants to undertake some rather elaborate but beautiful summer work of an absorbingly interesting kind let her begin one of the fashionable bead bags. Purses and card-cases of beads are also among the trifes turned out by the industrious summer maiden.

Another favorite pastime is the making of voile or marquisette blouses. The pattern is bought all stamped on the material, and to make French dots instead of outlining the design with beads is a newer and less hackneyed treatment. Most of us know how to make French knots, but instructions as to the others may not come amiss. Briefly, they are as follows:

To make a French knot draw the needle through the upper side of the fabric. Hold it in the right hand and with the left hand take hold of the silk at a point near the fabric and twist it two or three times around the needle, then put the point of the needle through the fabric again, very close to the point at which you brought it up, draw the twisted silk closely around it and push the needle through. Hold the twist tight against the goods with your left hand while you draw the length of silk through, so as to keep it from uncoiling. When the silk has been drawn quite through it holds the knot.

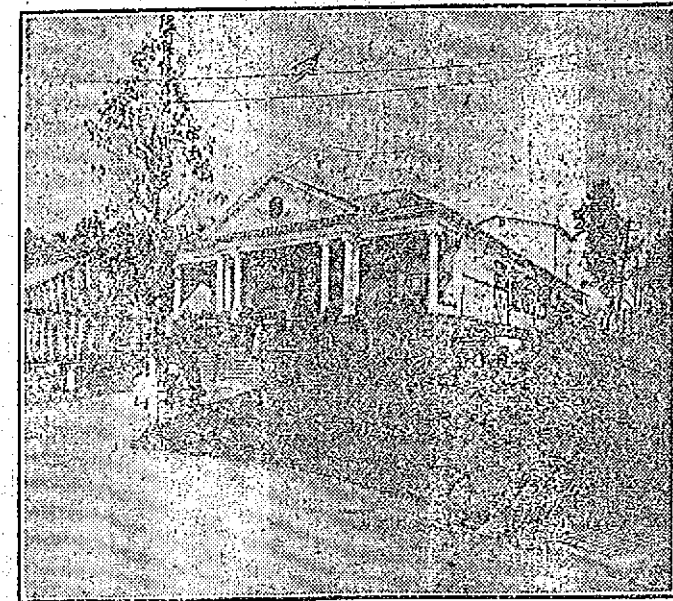

AMBER BEADS AGAIN.

Once more in favor are these glistening, gleaming yellow beads which since the time of our grandmothers have been worn as necklaces.

With the collarless blouses and the lingerie frocks, with their low necks, neck ornaments are especially fashionable, and this gives added opportunity for the wearing of this pretty old-fashioned bead.

All sizes are worn, from the small pea sized bead to the one large as a good sized marble. And in the jewelry shops one may purchase them by the string or by the dozen, in this latter way making it as one pleases.

WOMAN'S BUILDING AT APPALACHIAN EXPOSITION

ONE OF THE MOST ATTRACTIVE BUILDINGS ON THE GROUNDS.

THE woman's building at the Appalachian exposition, to be held in September at Knoxville, Tenn., is one of the most attractive and complete on the fair grounds. In it will be found exhibits of all kinds that are of interest to the fair sex. The work of the woman's board of the Appalachian exposition under the direction of Mrs. Percy Lockett has been not only remarkable, but almost marvelous. Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of the speaker of the house of representatives, will open the woman's congress of the exposition.

THE GREATER CARE OF FURNITURE

WHEN one has new and highly polished furniture to take care of, if the care for it is not done correctly there is sure to arise some dissatisfaction. For this there is only one remedy—to learn how to do it correctly and then follow the instructions always.

A furniture polish of which there is none better can be made of two parts crude oil, one part benzine and one part turpentine, but this should not be applied directly to the furniture without a preliminary cleaning.

Taking a chamol and cold water and rub the surface to be polished very gently after first having given it a careful dusting. When done rubbing with the chamol dry well with a soft pad of cheesecloth or some other equally soft rag, and then we are ready for the real polishing of the varnished surface.

There should be no dearth of wads of cheesecloth or any like cloth that will serve the same purpose, old discarded cotton kerchiefs the worse for trips to the laundry being quite suitable. Slightly saturate one of these wads with the oil mixture and go over the surface that is to be polished very briskly. After having done this the dry cloths are utilized in the taking up of the excess oil that is on the varnish, generally very little if applied with discretion. It is well to remember that it is far better to make several frequent applications than to try to apply an excess quantity of oil at one time to make it suffice for any length of time.

When an article of furniture is polished correctly as above set forth it will not require to be polished more than four to six times a year unless the air be very dusty, when a polishing every month or so will be none too much, as dust is injurious to nicely varnished surfaces, and the only thing to do is to give it polishings regularly.

THE DUTIES OF A CAREFUL WAITRESS

DINING rooms to be at all livable should be well ventilated to insure the air in them being kept fresh and sweet. Odors are not only obnoxious; they attract flies in summer and other household pests.

Tablecloths must be laid smooth and straight and napkins folded simple and not in fanciful shapes. The edge of a knife should be turned toward the plate. Knives and spoons are placed at the right of the plate, forks at the left.

Mustard, vinegar, oils, dressings, etc., should likewise be placed at the side table and served by the waitress. Absence of a waitress is the only excuse that permits the lumbering of the table.

Place a cruet for the use of every two persons and a salt and pepper box for every two persons. Cracked ice should be placed in the glasses.

For dinner lay a dinner plate for each person. On the right of each plate lay a soup spoon with the bowl turned up, a dinner knife with the sharp edge turned toward the plate, a fish knife (if fish is served), a tumbler for water, a glass for sherry and a glass for claret (if wines are served).

At the left of each plate lay a fork for fish and a larger one for roast. Lay them in the order in which they are to be used, the fish fork on the outside. At the left have the napkin folded and, if you wish, holding a piece of dinner bread to be used with the soup.

THE PICTURESQUE POKE IN NEW GUISE

JUST THE HAT FOR A PRETTY FACE.

ONLY a pretty girlish face should look out from beneath the wide brim of the new poke shaped chapeau—such as the one illustrated. Purple velvet is used for covering the frame, and the trimming of shaded mauve ostrich plumes gives the approved skyscraper effect at the back of the model. Under-brim trimming is a new departure this season, as this effect has not been employed by the milliners for several years. Consequently the fall of real velveteen lace at the back underbrim of this model has a decided cachet.

SKIRTS TO REMAIN SHORT

ADVICES from Paris state that short skirts are to be the same length they have been all summer, with the exception of the trailing evening gown. This makes it necessary for women to wear the smartest and indeed the most ultra smart shoes and hosiery, for never before have these articles of the toilet been allowed so prominent a place, never has the whole foot been exhibited so conspicuously as in the present modes.

HE COMMITTED SUICIDE

Lynn Man Who Was Jilted Ended His Life

LYNN, Sept. 9.—Holding in his hand a photograph of Miss Marion Collins, a handsome young woman with whom he was infatuated, but who spurned his offer of marriage, Lawrence E. Howard, a plumber, 36 years old, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, committed suicide some time Thursday by shooting himself in the head with an army service revolver.

His body was found yesterday afternoon in his room in the hotel Sagamore on Union street. He had ended his life after writing a farewell letter to Miss Collins and enclosing in the envelope a handsome diamond ring, which it is said he contemplated giving her if she had accepted his proposal of marriage.

The letter and the ring were turned over to Miss Collins at her home, 490 Chatham street, by Patrolman Callahan. After reading the letter, in which Howard bade her goodbye, Miss Collins broke down. She was unable to account for Howard's suicide as due to his infatuation for her, for she is only 18 years of age, while he was twice her age.

It is understood that Howard prepared to commit suicide after his offer to take Miss Collins and her parents on an automobile trip Wednesday night had been rejected. When he returned to the hotel he appeared downcast and worried.

He was friendly with Miss Collins' father and as both were dog fanciers

they often met. Howard fell in love with Miss Collins and recently his attentions to her reached such a stage that it became necessary for her to avoid him. She is employed in a department store and it was Howard's custom to wait for her every evening and accompany her home.

Of late she had gone to her home with her mother. The young woman has never been in love with Howard and told him so, but he persisted in forcing his attentions upon her. Howard was 36 years old, and is said to have been born in Peabody. He had been about Lynn for many years and had recently worked for a Nahant plumber. He had been living at the hotel Sagamore for two weeks and little was known of him there.

He was seen early yesterday morning and in the afternoon when the door to his room was found to be barred the police were called and Patrolman Linehan forced the door.

Howard's body was on the bed and in his hand he held the young woman's photograph, while the revolver rested beside him.

MRS. HELEN HOEY

Died at St. John's Hospital This Morning

Mrs. Helen Hoey, aged 40 years, wife of Michael Hoey of 2 Everett street, died at St. John's hospital at 5 o'clock this morning as a result of injuries which she received on Saturday, Aug. 19th, when she lost her footing and fell over an embankment in Perry street.

The woman was taken to the hospital shortly after she sustained her injuries and although the physicians at the hospital did everything in their power to save her life she was informed a couple of days ago that there was no chance for her recovery and she passed away this morning.

Medical Examiner Joe V. Meigs examined the body and in conversation with a representative of The Sun stated that death was due to a compound comminuted fracture of the leg.

On the morning of the accident Michael Hoey, the husband of the woman, was arrested on a technical charge of assault, it being alleged that he had thrown his wife over the embankment, but when Supt. Redmond Welch and Clerk Edward Trull of the police court interviewed the woman she exonerated her husband, stating that if there was any blame, she alone was responsible for the accident.

Hoey's case was continued from time to time in the police court and this morning he was brought before the court and Judge Hadley having learned of the death of the wife and the deposition made stated that he would drop the case against the man on file pending any further development of new evidence.

The body of the woman was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertakers Higgins Bros. in Lawrence street and subsequently to the home in Everett street.

BEATTIE IS GUILTY

CHESTERFIELD COURTHOUSE.

Y., Sept. 9.—Twelve Virginia farmers huddled at dusk last night in the obscurity of the small jury room of Chesterfield courthouse, praying fervently that they might pass judgment aright on Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife. Grimly determined, they arose a moment later and silently, one by one, recorded a unanimous verdict of "Guilty."

Pausing in solemn contemplation for 58 minutes, weighing carefully the meaning of their decision, and once more on bended knees beseeching divine assistance that they might not err, they fled into the hushed stillness of a crowded courthouse and with startling suddenness 12 voices, instead of the usual one of the foreman, spoke the single word "Guilty."

It was almost a shout. The spectre of death which stalked Middlethian township on July 18 last, when the wife of Mrs. Louise Owen Beattie was taken away with the single report of a shotgun, stared hard at the young husband, ready to claim his victim by electrocution on Friday, Nov. 24, next. But the prisoner returned the gaze, answering and unafraid.

"Haven't Lost Yet."

The court of appeals, to be sure, will be asked to grant a writ of error and a new trial. Young Beattie, cog-izant of the legal weapons yet at his disposal, did not surrender. Instead, he consoled his broken-down father, white-haired and wrinkled, and comforted him as he whispered: "I haven't lost yet, father."

Unusual as had been the tragedy and the gruesome stage where it occurred, the 12 jurymen did not hesitate to admit to their friends that they stood in judgment not only over the cold-blooded murderer, but upon his marital infidelity as well. It perhaps was the dramatic climax of Virginia justice, which in the last half century has swiftly sent to death such famous murderers as Claverius, Phillips and McCue.

At the close of a powerful address by L. O. Wendenburg, the voluntary assistant of the commonwealth in the case, the suspense was felt not alone in the courtroom, but in Richmond, where thousands of persons awaited the outcome.

The jury had for 11 days heard evidence, for two days speeches, but the words of Wendenburg rang in their ears as they left the courtroom to find their verdict.

"Let that man go free!" he cried. "What, let that man go free?" "Why, the motherhood of Virginia, the womanhood of this nation, will shudder in terror, as the security of its life is threatened. Let this man or go free? The man who basked in the

Verdict Announced

"Have you gentlemen agreed on a verdict?" asked Judge Watson.

"We have," said Foreman Burgess.

The prisoner had confidently expected a "hung jury"—neither acquittal nor conviction. The court requested the audience not to manifest its approval or disapproval, whatever the verdict. "And what is your verdict?" asked

Jury Retires

Mr. Wendenburg concluded his address a few minutes after 5 o'clock. A brief respite was given to the jury, and at 5:23 it began consideration of the case. For 58 minutes the jurymen were together in deep consultation—a jury of simple farmers, who each morning sang a hymn and strove to forget the story of dissipation as related day after day on the witness stand. What had been generally predicted was true—their minds were well made up before they left the courtroom.

W. L. Burgess, a square-jawed man with an earnest face, was elected foreman. They balloted and it was no surprise, they afterward declared, that all voted alike. They prayed that they might not take a life in vain, and they opened their consciences to one another for nearly an hour so that they might go back to the courtroom firmly convinced of their duty and of one mind.

And in the courtroom sat Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., the sporting page of a newspaper spread before him. But he did not read long. He folded the paper and concealed his face in it. Those who sat near the boy of iron nerve observed a twitching of his lips as though moving in prayer, as he sat with closed eyes awaiting the return of the jury.

He raised his head for a moment, dropped the paper again and began reading. Then he whispered a few words to his father and brother. It was for them he felt and to them he counseled cheerfulness. It was nearly dark in the courtroom when the jury returned. Three oil lamps gave a meager luster to the scene. Sunset's red rays still streaked down.

The perfunctory motions for a new trial were made by counsel for the defense. The usual permission even to argue the point was denied. Judge Watson, in a stern voice, declared that all rulings of the court were on comparatively unimportant detail and in no way could have influenced the verdict.

A stay of execution was granted, however, to give counsel an opportunity to apply for a writ of error when the court of appeals meets in November.

THE NEW PRIMARY LAW THE EVENING SCHOOLS

Instructions Were Issued by Secretary of State Langtry by Course of Study Prepared for the Classes by Principal Robbins

Detailed instructions as to the method of holding primaries under the new direct primary law, which becomes effective Sept. 26, were issued to election officers throughout the state yesterday by Sec. of State Albert P. Langtry, involving several innovations.

Republican ballots this year are to be light blue, while the democratic ballots are to be salmon colored and democratic progressive ballots black.

The instructions are as follows:

Primaries are to be conducted in general accordance with the provisions of law relating to elections. Section 20, chapter 550, acts of 1911, provides that "All existing provisions of law relating to primaries not inconsistent with this act shall apply thereto as far as practicable."

Section 151, chapter 550, acts of 1907, provides that the laws relating to election officers, voting places for elections, election apparatus and blanks, calling and conduct of elections, manner of voting at elections, counting and recounting of votes at elections, shall apply to primaries, except as otherwise provided in sections 144 to 160, inclusive, of said chapter.

Sections 215 to 258, inclusive, of chapter 550, acts of 1907, provide for the conduct of elections. Section 7, chapter 550, acts of 1911, provides that "the polls at every primary shall be open during such hours, not less than nine in cities or two in towns, as may be designated by the board of election commissioners in Boston, the aldermen in other cities, and the selectmen in towns."

"When a voter presents himself to vote he shall, after his name has been checked by the ballot clerk in the presence of the voters with which political party he desires to be polled, and the ballot clerk upon reply shall distinctly announce the name of such political party and give the voter the ballot of that party. (Acts of 1911, chapter 550, section 13.)

A separate set of tally sheets for each political party should be prepared and used prior to the day of the primary for printing or writing thereon the names and offices as printed on the ballot, and allow one line for each candidate as many lines as may be needed for scattering votes and one line for blanks for each office.

"The envelope and tally sheet for each block of ballots for each party should be numbered from 1 upward, and the tally sheet to be marked No. 1, the next envelope and tally sheet to be marked No. 2, etc.

"The ballots for each political party will be printed on paper of a different color: Republican, light blue; democratic, salmon; democratic progressive, black.

Section 15, chapter 550, acts of 1911, provides that "No ballots cast at a primary under this act shall be counted until the close of the polls." Sections 157 and 269 to 274, inclusive, of chapter 550, acts of 1907, provide for the counting of votes.

Before opening the ballot box for the removal of ballots, the presiding election officer should divide the election officers into groups, and designate those who are to count, record and summarize, viz: One officer of one of the two leading political parties to count and call off the votes, an officer of another political party to inspect or supervise; one officer of one of the two leading political parties to record the number of votes on the tally sheet, with an officer of another political party to inspect or supervise.

"After the ballots have been taken from the ballot box, the election officer should sort the ballots into separate piles, one for each party. The ballots of each party should then be examined separately. Lay aside those irregularly marked to be counted last, and count the remainder into blocks of 50. They should place the blocks of ballots in the block envelopes, with the flaps of the envelopes turned in on top of the ballots, the first block in envelope No. 1, the second block in envelope No. 2, etc., so that the last or fractional block will be canvassed last. The number of ballots in a fractional block should be written on the envelope and at the head of the tally sheet to be used in canvassing that block. One canvass of each block of ballots is all that is required.

"When all the ballots in a block have been counted, the vote for each office should be proved by adding the total vote for each candidate to the total number of blanks. When one person is to be voted for, the result should be 50, or the total number of ballots in the block; when two or more persons are to be voted for, the result should be two or more times the number of ballots in the block. If this does not prove the ballots and tally sheets should be examined and the errors corrected.

"When the count of a block of ballots is completed and proved, the ballots should be replaced in the envelope, with the flap of the envelope turned in on the ballots, the tally sheets should be signed by the group of canvassing and supervising election officers, and the block of ballots and tally sheets should be examined and the errors corrected.

"When the count of a block of ballots is completed and proved, the ballots should be replaced in the envelope, with the flap of the envelope turned in on the ballots, the tally sheets should be signed by the group of canvassing and supervising election officers, and the block of ballots and tally sheets should be examined and the errors corrected.

"Upon the completion of the canvass of each block of ballots, the result should be reported to the presiding election officer, who should cause each result to be recorded on the 'total vote' sheet.

"When all the totals have been entered on the 'Total Vote' sheet the figures in each column should be added together, and the figures showing the entire vote for each candidate and the blanks for each office and question should be entered in their appropriate places on said 'Total Vote' sheet, and on the records of the election and on the election returns.

"The presiding election officer should sign the certificate on the 'Total Vote' sheet and he should return the 'Total Vote' sheet and all the tally sheets to the city or town clerk.

"The ballots of any one party must be counted, the result announced and these ballots placed in the proper envelope, and this envelope sealed before the ballots of any other party are counted. It follows, therefore, and it is the law, that votes for a candidate shall be counted only toward his nomination by the political party on whose ballots they appear.

DR. WM. E. BARKER'S EXPERIENCE IN LONDON.

(From the Rochester Times)

Half a century ago there was no city in the world where an eminent specialist had the opportunities that were presented to one in London; realizing this fact Dr. Barker, after graduating from Heidelberg, located in London. His practice grew so rapidly that at the end of five years he established the largest practice of any physician in that city. His practice was confined to chronic cases only in the treatment of rheumatism, catarrh, kidney and bladder diseases. He used one never-failing prescription—this same prescription he had written thousands of times; and he had seen patients come into his office on crutches, who said they had been troubled with rheumatism for 15 and twenty years, and after they used this special prescription for two or three days, they would come walking to his office, as nimbly as a school boy, and thank him for the good he had done them. The doctor said in an interview that one man about 45 years old came to him one day and said he had been injured while working at the carpenter trade about twenty years before, and had suffered constantly since with kidney trouble. He had tried everything to get relief, but nothing seemed to do him any good. He asked the doctor if he really knew anything that would cure him, and he told him of a never-failing remedy for all chronic cases like his. He wrote him a prescription and told him to take it for a week and then come and let him know how he was getting along. The man came back to his office in just four days and said he had not felt as well in his life. He also stated that his daughter, whom he had taken out of school because her eyes were too weak to study, and she could hardly see from one of them at all; she had been treated by four eye specialists without relief, and after he had taken on this prescription for two days he says he saw it was helping him so much he let her take some of it, and to their great surprise, she improved wonderfully almost from the first dose. He told him that it was only a week's time after she commenced to take the medicine until she could see as well as ever and was able to return to school.

It was not until after hundreds of such remarkable cases had been treated by Dr. Barker with this same prescription that he was prevailed upon to allow the wonderful prescription to be put up to that every sufferer could have it at a very small cost. The public can be sure this prescription under the name of "Bloodline" at drug stores, or The Homeopathic Laboratories, Boston, Mass., will supply a six weeks' treatment in bottles for $2.50, 50 cents a bottle, trial bottle and booklet, 10 cents.

"THE CLIMAX"

In "The Climax" by Edward Locke, there is a startling defence of the women of the stage that will make the author a hero in the eyes of the many refined women who have given their lives to the art.

This is the play with incidental music by Joseph Carl Broll which Joe Weber again will present at the Opera House soon—Adv.

JUDGE HADLEY PLEASED WITH THE LIGHT DOCKET IN POLICE COURT

It required just eight minutes to dispose of the various cases in the police court this morning and as Judge Hadley left the bench he wore a smile which indicated that he was elated over the improved conditions relative to the court. His Honor dealt out good advice and instructions to the unfortunate who appear before him from time to time and is always elated when there is an absence of crime.

Ferdinando Mancini who was charged with assault and battery on Maria Stable on the fifth of September and threatening the same person on the seventh of the month. He entered a plea of not guilty and at the request of the government the case was continued until next Tuesday.

Frederick J. Fogarty pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with being drunk and was ordered to pay a fine of $5.

THE OPERA HOUSE

The second night of "At the Old Cross Roads" at the Opera House, brought forth another large attendance and the audience was well repaid, for the presentation of the play was still better than on the first night, and that is saying a lot.

This play is quite a drawing card and the fact that the negro characters are all taken by Southern people adds to the beauty of it. The play is an excellent piece of work interspersed with singing and a lot of comedy, while the tragic end of it is as deep as could be expected. The cast is strong throughout the ensemble, including the music and speciality by the Southerners in the play. Another large audience is expected this evening as the tickets are selling fast.

TAYLOR STOCK COMPANY

The popular Taylor Stock company and Harry Moore will begin a week's engagement at the Opera House on Monday night, presenting the well known military play, "In Arizona." Manager Taylor, it is said, has taken great care in selecting his plays and players this season and his efforts have been entirely successful. A matinee will be given daily starting Tuesday afternoon when the first 1000 women in line will be admitted free. The prices are 10c, 20c, 30c at night and matinees 10c; 10c tickets for Monday evening, 15c—Adv.

"GIRL IN THE TAXI"

Boston Globe said: "The Girl in the Taxi" is one of the merriest shows that ever set the Tremont theatre rocking with laughter. The house was packed to the last inch of standing room and at very short intervals roars of merriment swept across the stage, completely stopping the dialogue at times.

"The Girl in the Taxi" will be seen at the Opera House soon for an engagement of two days—Adv.

"THE CLIMAX"

In "The Climax" by Edward Locke, there is a startling defence of the women of the stage that will make the author a hero in the eyes of the many refined women who have given their lives to the art.

"THE NEWLYWEDS"

"The Newlyweds and Their Baby" after winning enormous success in almost every city in the east, is now shown here at the Opera House soon. 60% people are incorporated in the presentation of this big song and fun feast—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

The most successful opening week in the history of stock theatres in Lowell closes tonight at the Hathaway theatre with the Donald Meek stock company. The company will give the final performance of "Caught in the Rain" in which Mr. Meek and his clever company have scored a decided hit. Next week beginning with Monday's matinee the company will appear in Bronson Howard's great American comedy drama, "The Henrietta" in which Bronson Howard is ranked as one of the greatest of American playwrights and his name is a guarantee of rare merit. The additional fact that such celebrated names as Robson and Crane played "The Henrietta" from the Atlantic to the Pacific with crowded houses everywhere speaks for the character of the reproduction. The Donald Meek stock company will present "The Henrietta" from the original Robson and Crane manuscript and no pains nor expense will be spared in staging it. Donald Meek will be seen to excellent advantage in the role of "Bertie the Lamb," the part played so successfully by the late Stuart Robson. Mr. Meek, when appearing in the part some time ago at the Castle Square theatre in Boston was credited with being the logical successor of Mr. Robson, as "Bertie" so fine was his interpretation of the role. It is a well known fact that Mr. Meek is good in whatever part he assumes but he is better in some than others, according to their nature. The part of "Bertie the Lamb" is just what he is made for. If the playwright had him in mind when creating the character. All Bronson Howard plays call for a cast in which each character contributes a material share to the general success of the whole and hence the different members of the new company, particularly Miss Marie Horton and Mr. Rockliffe Fellow, will be seen to good advantage. While the company is in town, the audience had a great opportunity to exhibit their well known talent such as they will be given in "The Henrietta." Seats are now on sale for next week's performances and may be ordered in advance by telephone—$11—Adv.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

All is in readiness for the grand opening of Keith's new theatre in Bridge street on Monday afternoon when the first performance will be given at 2 o'clock. Workmen are busy on the roof of the Rumbels building setting up the mammoth electrical sign that is to emblazon Merrimack square by night in the future and it will probably be in place for the opening night. Since the stagings have been removed and the interior cleaned up the theatre appears much more beautiful appearance than was ever dreamed of and the lavish expenditure of money is evident throughout the building. The opening week bill is one that would draw big houses to any old kind of theatre not to speak of the prettiest in New England, for it is perhaps the strongest vaudeville bill ever presented here. The headline act which has had Boston going all week is known as "Paris by Night," and includes a company of 15 clever comedians and dancers under the leadership of one of the most noted of pantomimists. Let his name give a wrong impression it might be well to state that there is nothing cold nor slow about Prof. Molasso or his act which deals with some of the attractions of Naughty Paris by dark. It is a grand scenic production and the scenes are laid in front of the entrance of the famous Moulin Rouge of Paris. For a vaudeville act of the higher class nothing can beat that of J. K. Murray and Clara Lane, the noted opera stars formerly heading a successful vaudeville company. They are at present giving a limited engagement in vaudeville on the Keith circuit. They will present scenes and popular selections from the leading operas. The Crying Brunettes, Lowell boys who have wheeled themselves to the top notch in vaudeville, are on the bill for after making good with the entire country they are coming back to their old home town for a week. Flanagan and Edwards will present a most laughable satire on stage life entitled "On and On," while Gordon and Keys will be

WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

Have you overworked your nervous system and caused trouble with your kidneys and bladder? Have you pains in your side, back and bladder? Have you a flabby appearance of the face, and under the eyes? A frequent desire to pass urine? If so, Williams' Kidney Pills will cure you. Price 50c. Williams' Medical Co., Lowell, Mass. For sale by Fatta & Burdick.

(here with a brand new budget of fun and they are some funmakers. Col. Sam Holdsworth, who is long since over the three score and ten mark, will charm the audiences with his delightful tenor voice which "Time's effacing finger" has failed to mar. Col. Holdsworth is the oldest professional singer in America today. As a special added attraction the celebrated Frey Twins will give their entertaining act showing the pastimes of ancient Greece including the graceful Greco-Roman wrestling, of which art they are past masters. It's a strong bill from start to finish—Adv.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

A bill that compares favorably with the very best that Lowell theatregoers have had an opportunity to enjoy in many months is scheduled for the Merrimack Square theatre next week. Chiquita, the marvelous human doll, recognized as the tiniest morsel of humanity in the world today will appear daily. This wonderful little woman is perfectly formed, weighs 30 pounds, is 35 years old and is 28 inches tall. An ordinary man could carry her about in the palm of his hand. Chiquita, despite her diminutive size, has a wonderful mental development. She speaks English as fluently as the best scholars, talks Spanish and Italian well, and sings in all three languages. She has toured the entire world during the past twelve years and has met many of the reigning monarchs of Europe and other countries. Chiquita will hold a reception after her performance Saturday afternoon and the general public is cordially invited to attend. The reception will be held on the stage.

Our Stock company will be seen in an added attraction, the presentation of "J. G. Gray's" entertaining comedy "The Suffragette." The piece is said to be a most amusing skit, containing numerous laughable situations that are cleverly handled by Mr. Weston and his associate players. Frank Resse has been secured as the new juvenile man to succeed Mr. James Byrne, Jr., and judging from his reputation he is assured of enjoying a successful run. Who in Lowell, Miss Phelps will be the other member of the company. Next week, "Anniversary Week" the offering will be a delightful one-act play "For Him," written by Henry Pingle Coiffette, clerk of the Massachusetts senate.

The Cubanola Trio, three talented young women, will be heard in the latest songs and Dan Harrington, the ventriloquist is one of the cleverest entertainers in his line. He uses no less than seven characters. Miss Eva Weston will be the week's soloist and the photo-plays and life portrayals will include the best from American and Foreign markets.

The program for Sunday's sacred concert includes Brown and McDermott, an added attraction, a successful run, Anna McElahan, The Original Cowboy Four, and photo-plays that are approved by the state. Afternoon at 3 o'clock, evening at 7 and 9 o'clock.

Don't fail to have your name placed on the subscription list, if you care to have your favorite seat reserved for you weekly. It costs no more. Always something going on at the Merrimack Square theatre from 1.30 to 10.30 o'clock daily. Telephone 2053—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Theatre Voyons offers a distinct novelty in "Rory O'More," a motion picture telling the story of this well known Irish character, who is a classic actor in Ireland and staged with care and presented in the best possible manner. There is to be a special musical program to accompany Rory O'More—Adv.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

A WOMAN IN THE CASE

SEPTEMBER 9.—After King James IV, of Scotland had assembled his army of 20,000 and related and crossed Northumberland, that part of England nearest the border, one of the spoils of war, was Castle Ford. Lady Ford was taken prisoner. Being a wise old lady she began to make good eyes at Jimmy. That made him forget all about the fact that he was at war. All the time that was spent on the game of Dan Cupid was to the great advantage of the English who, under the Earl of Surrey, were sneaking up to check James. Both armies clashed on Flodden Field September 9, 1513, and when the ambulance surgeons counted the results, the Scotch were shy one king, James, 30 of his nobles and 10,000 men. The Scotch people were so chagrined that they claimed that James was not dead but had gone on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land. If he did he hasn't got back yet.

THE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Provided the clouds that completely obscured the sun did not bring rain, the weather this morning was considered distinctly favorable to the British lawn tennis team for the opening of the international elimination tournament at the West-Side Lawn Tennis club this afternoon. This tournament, which is scheduled to continue Monday and Tuesday, will decide whether Great Britain or the United States will send a team to Australia this winter to challenge for the Davis cup, now held by that country. The turf courts are in superb condition and the number of tickets sold indicated that a crowd of nearly 3000 persons would witness the opening matches. Singles were scheduled for today, William Larned, the national champion, being pitted against C. P. Dixon, captain of the British team, and Maurice McLoughlin of California, the challenger at the recent national championship tournament, against Arthur H. Lowe.

CHEAP FOOD DEMONSTRATIONS

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The government is sending additional troops to the northern departments of France to deal with the cheap food demonstrations which often are instigated by revolutionary societies or simply are riots of violently inclined persons who mix up with the genuine housewives processions. Two battalions of troops were sent to Valenciennes, department of Nord, from the Paris garrison today.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

Expect Large Registration at Monday's Opening

Rev. Fr. Harkins, pastor of St. Margaret's church, returned to Lowell today after making the two weeks' retreat held annually by the priests of the archdiocese at St. John's Seminary, Brighton. Fr. Harkins is much improved in health and is ready to devote himself to his pastoral labors. He expects that the new St. Margaret's will be ready for occupancy in eight or nine weeks. Among the other local clergymen who returned from the retreat today were Rev. Fr. J. Mullin of St. Michael's, Rev. W. George Mullin of St. Peter's, Rev. John J. McHugh of St. Patrick's and Rev. Fr. Walsh of Collinsville. Other local clergymen will enter the retreat during the next two weeks. The retreat has been conducted by Rev. Fr. Brett, S. J., and it will be continued for the next two weeks by Rev. Fr. Hearn, S. J.

Parochial School Opening
Nearly all of the parochial schools of the city will open on Monday, the Sacred Heart school having opened during the week with an increased attendance. The latter school cannot give out definite figures as to its registration until the first of the week as the children continue to come in daily. St. Patrick's, St. Michael's and the Immaculate Conception schools all open Monday morning with mass of the Holy Ghost in their respective churches preceding the opening of school. In each of the three schools an increased attendance is expected. At St. Michael's it will be necessary to open an additional room and an extra teacher has come to Lowell making the present teaching force 14 teachers. Notre Dame Academy will reopen in its present quarters in Adams street, though a new and modern academy in Tyngsboro is a thing of the near future. The nuns of Notre Dame have spent the summer at the Brinley estate in Tyngsboro, the present mansion being large enough to accommodate the nuns though not adequate to the demands of an academy. It is proposed to build a large academy in the rear of the estate on the highest land overlooking the river and with a beautiful pine grove directly in the rear.

St. Joseph's College
The fall term at St. Joseph's college and St. Joseph's convent, in St. Joseph's parish, will start Monday morning. There is no change in the teachers' staff at the convent which is composed of Grey Nuns of the Cross, while at the college, the teachers are practically the same with the exception of the director who this year is Brother Leon Bernardin, who is succeeding Brother Leon Marcel who will be stationed in Italy.

Brother Bernardin is well known in this city, having for the past two years with the exception of last year had charge of the highest grade in the college. His assistant will be Brother Henri Desire, also for a number of years at the Lowell house of the Marist Brothers.

The course of study in both schools will be the same as the previous years and the teachers of both houses wish it to be understood that English is being taught in both schools as well as Latin and French. The number of children in both schools will be about the same this year, the total number to nearly reach the 1500 mark.

WOMAN SUES MAN

WHO IS HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Papers in what is probably the first suit of its kind ever brought in Boston were filed yesterday by Mrs. Antonio Schiappa, attacking all property owned by Valentino Suss, who, together with three other men, is held in Charles street jail charged with the murder of her husband. The complaint asks for $20,000 damages incurred by the sufferings of the murdered man before he died.

Schiappa was killed on the night of July 3 in a fight which arose from a dispute between two boxes over a picture frame. Suss, it is alleged, drove away from the scene of the trouble, returned with his friends and in a fight which followed, Schiappa received seven slugs, from which he died. Mrs. Schiappa, who is a comely woman of about 21, was left by the death of her husband, with five small children and no means of support. Through her attorney she is trying to recover damages to support herself.

PROTEST FILED

BY CINCINNATI CLUB OF NATIONAL LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—A protest was filed last night with President Lynch of the National league by the Cincinnati club over the victory of the Cubs yesterday. This was the word that went the rounds last night, the protest being based on the play made on Evers when he attempted to score from third in the sixth inning while Evers was being put out and while the Cub players were arguing with Umpire O'Day after two Cincinnati players had counted on Richter's error. Cincinnati contends that as there were but eight men on the field and as two balls were on the diamond, Umpire O'Day should have called "time."

BIG DEMOCRATIC MEETING

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Faneuil hall, the scene of many a political gathering, witnessed this afternoon the gathering of the democratic city committee and their many prominent guests, a steady rain necessitating the change of the scene from Caledonian grove, where today's barbecue was to have been held. Because of the rain two mammoth steers which had been roasted for the feast in Caledonian grove, went untouched but arrangements were completed for another barbecue two weeks from today.

The principal address this afternoon was to be delivered by Gov. Harmon of Ohio. Governor Foss was scheduled to deliver an address, as was Mayor Fitzgerald.

SEN. LA FOLLETTE

To Make Contest for the Presidential Nomination

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 8.—Upon excellent authority it is learned that Sen. La Follette will wait until after congress convenes early in December before announcing his candidacy for president. Although leading progressive leaders throughout the country have been coming out in interviews endoring him for the presidency he will avoid precipitous haste to answer their call, preferring to wait until after Pres.

Taft has submitted his message.

Primarily, the senator wants to find out, it is said, what position the president will assume toward what are known as the progressive policies, the president's suggestions as to further revision of the tariff and his general stand on departmental and administration issues.

It is understood that Sen. La Fol-lette's failure to attack the executive in his recent Pennsylvania speech sprang from a desire to wait until his formal announcement of his candidacy shall have been made.

IN WIGGINVILLE

Two Routes Have Been Outlined for Sewer by City Engineer

Out of the sewer loan of $50,000, made the first of the year, the sum of $34,250 has been appropriated for sewer work and that amount includes the work that is being done at present, as follows: Cumberland road and Orleans street sewer, 1250 feet, $14,750; Willard street sewer, 162 feet, $1,425; Burlington avenue, 180 feet, $1,800; Richardson street, 210 feet, $2,100.

The two most important sewer questions entertained by the city at the present time have to do with the Oaklands and Wigginsville sewers and these propositions are up to the city engineer for estimates, details and advice.

Two routes have been outlined for the Wigginsville sewer. One for a trunk sewer from the present sewer in Lawrence street at South Whipple street to Billerica street, a distance of about 2000 feet, and the city engineer estimates the cost at $25,000. The other scheme is to run a sewer across the river from Lawrence street to a point on the premises of the American Hide & Leather company, thence along the railroad tracks to Lawrence street and then to Billerica street. The distance via this route would be about 4000 feet and the cost as estimated by the city engineer is $35,000.

At a recent meeting of the committee on sewer the engineer was instructed to confer with the Boston & Maine railroad company relative to rental along its tracks and also to ascertain how much of the cost should be paid by the American Hide & Leather company. City Engineer Kearney will treat with both of those companies as soon as possible.

The Oaklands Sewer
Naturally enough the people in the Oaklands district would like to see the big sewer that was started a few years ago pushed through, gradually. They realize that a speedy completion is impossible because of the great expense but they believe that the city should expend from $25,000 to $30,000 a year this sewer. A majority of the committee on sewers, however, seems to think that the city's finances at this time do not warrant the expenditure of any great amount of money on a job that will not show immediate results. The burglar did not damage the installation of a pump, to pump the sewage from the present floor bed in Rivers street to the top of Wentworth avenue. There are two kinds of pumps suggested, an automatic electric pump or another, presumably gasoline, that would require the manipulation of human hands.

The city engineer allows that the automatic electric pump scheme could be accomplished for about $2500 and that would include pump, building, pipes, etc. The other pump, not being automatic, would annex the extra cost of labor and that would mean the employment of three men. There would have to be a man there all the time and the eight hour law was not made to be broken.

The Highway Commission
In the proposition to run a sewer through Princeton street to Webster street and thence to Middlesex street

the next thing to be done there is to oil the street. A gang of men has been working in Washington street and that job is about done so far as the laying of stones is concerned.

Mr. Putnam said today that he expected to tackle the paving job in East Merrimack street from the railroad tracks to Howe street on Wednesday of next week. The street railway company will start in on Monday morning and get through in time to make way for the street department.

Other small jobs are being cleaned up and Supt. Putnam allows that Jack Frost will not catch him this year unless he puts in an appearance earlier than usual.

There was no fire Department Responded to a False Alarm

The ringing in of false alarms has been prevalent of late and during the past two weeks the department has made several unnecessary runs. This afternoon at three o'clock an alarm was sounded from box 338 and the apparatus had a long run to the corner of Gorham and Bowden streets only to find that there was no fire.

Chief Hosmer of the fire department upon arriving at the location and finding that there was no fire, started an investigation and as a result of his inquiry he learned that the alarm was sounded by Barker, aged 15 years, who resided in Bowden street, pulled in the alarm.
There have been so many false alarms pulled in lately that Chief Hosmer has decided that an example will have to be made of some of the boys who have called out the members of the department.

Mrs. J. S. Lapierre of Merrimack street is critically ill at her home suffering from a paralytic shock.

Miss Odella Beaudette of Beaulieu street has returned from a pleasant 9 weeks' trip to Canada.

Mrs. Ferdinand Moreau and her daughter, Alphonsine, have returned from Canada where they spent the past few weeks.

Rev. L. C. Bedard of New Bedford, the guest of Rev. J. N. Jacques, pastor of St. Louis' parish.

Rev. J. N. Jacques, pastor of St.
Louis' parish, has returned from Brighton, where he spent the week attending his annual retreat.

As well as that of Carillon council, the members will discuss the question of asking for a convention this year instead of next year.

The books of the union are now being inspected by an expert accountant, Mr.
Chaffin, who was appointed to do this work by a judge of the Rhode Island circuit court. The latter is to make his report at a convention he is to call in the near future. As this convention is to cost some $1500, and as the by-laws of the union call for an annual convention in 1912, the members of several councils have taken the initiative to hold the two conventions in one and that one to be this year.

The two local councils of the union have received circulars to that effect and at their next meeting they will take action on them, and the majority seems to be in favor of one convention, and they will ask that this convention be called immediately giving for one reason that the accountant ought to be ready with his report and that the latter ought to be submitted right away, this to avoid further expense on the question.

AMES DROPPED DEAD
BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Charles H. Ames, a prominent business man and native of Lowell, N. H., dropped dead in the dining room of the Boston City club this afternoon just as he was taking a seat at one of the tables for luncheon.
He was secretary and director of D. C.
Heath & Co.

CONNECTICUT FAIR CLOSED
HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 9.—Rain forced the closing of the Connecticut fair at Charter Oak park today. The attendance this year for five days is estimated at 150,000. Of the $25,000 paid out in prizes for the horse races
Ed Geers received $5750 and the Murphy stable about $9000. The balance was divided among a dozen other horsemen.

Supreme Court Sustains Bigelow
Co.'s Exceptions

The supreme court has handed down its decision in the case of the exceptions taken by the "Bigelow" Carpet company in its case against Burton H.
Wiggin, G. F. Parsons and Peter Davey, which grew out of the attempt of the Bigelow Carpet company to close the passageway running from Market street to the counting room of the Carpet company opposite the plant of the
I. C. Ayer company which connects with Carpet Lane, so-called, the latter running parallel with Market street in the rear and meeting another passageway next to Peter Davy's property which connects with Market street thus making a through passageway in the rear of the property from the upper part of the Bigelow Carpet company's property to the lower end opposite Palmer street which has been used for about 50 years.

When the Carpet company attempted to close up the upper passageway for the purpose of building over it, thus shutting off a through passageway
to the rear of the property of all the other abutters the latter objected and the matter was taken to the land court, with the Carpet company petitioning to have the place registered as its property. The abutters, Wiggin, Parsons and Davy objected. The land court sustained the contention of the abutters or respondents and the petitioners appealed, and asked for a jury trial. Then the judge of the land court framed the following question for the jury to pass upon in the superior court.

"Had the respondents, Burton H.
Wiggin, George F. Parsons and Peter Davy, or either of them acquired an easement of a right of way appurtenant to their several estates lying between Market street and Carpet Lane in Lowell over the land sought to be registered by the petitioners, by adverse use prior to the filing of the petition in this case?"

The case was tried before Judge
Hardy in the superior court with Hutchins and Wheeler appearing for the Bigelow Carpet company; Pratt and Devine of this city for Peter Davey; Judge Tickman for George F.
Parsons and Dunbar and Spaulding for Mr. Wiggin. The petitioners started to put in their case first, but Judge Hardy ruled that the respondents should have the opening and closing of the case to which the petitioners took exceptions and the case went to the jury under the procedure laid down by Judge Hardy. The jury after hearing the evidence returned to the answer "Yes" to the question place before them which meant that the respondents had acquired the necessary easement and that the Bigelow Carpet company could not close the passageway. But the case went up on exceptions and on the exceptions to Judge Hardy's ruling as to the manner of procedure the supreme court sustained the exceptions which virtually mean that the petitioners should have begun and finished the case instead of the respondents. Thus it would appear that if the Bigelow Carpet company desired another trial before a jury it is entitled to it. But the facts to be presented will be the same as in the former case when the jury found for the respondents. From a layman's point of view the case thus far appears to be a technical victory for the petitioners but a practical victory of the respondents.

EDDIE BERARD
Lowell's Mascot Gets Gift From Players

The members of the Lowell team were paid off this afternoon and the first thing they did at the instigation of Jimmie Magee was to chip in and purchase an outfit for Eddie Berard, the mascot of the team, which included underwear, shoes, stockings, suit, hat, shirt, necktie, collar and some change to put into the pockets. Eddie is the proudest kid in Lowell. He has been invited to make the trip to New-York-wick and will go for the purpose of warming up his friend Wolfgang.

All of the players with the exception of Captain Barrows and Pitcher Maybohm will leave for St. John on tomorrow morning and will be gone two weeks. They will return to Lowell where they will be rejoined by Barrows and Maybohm and given a banquet by the management.

FETE CHAMPETRE
WILL COME TO A CLOSE THURS-DAY NIGHT

The "fete champetre" which for the past two months has attracted such large crowds to the French American orphanage in Pawtucket street, will come to a close next Thursday evening.

This out-door attraction was started June 24, and was continued every Sunday afternoon and evening, and was of great benefit to the parish. An elaborate entertainment program was inorder every Sunday and the place was frequented by the best class of French speaking people, who will miss the cool air of the place and the pretty scenery of its environments.

Between two and three thousand is the number of people who made it a habit of going to the "fete champetre" every Sunday and the different tables and booths were well patronized. The place will be open again tomorrow if the weather is favorable and Thursday evening an elaborate program consisting of athletic feats and musical selections, both vocal and instrumental, will be given and then the place will close till next summer.

A FROSTY OUTING Held by Republicans in the Rain

The republican city committee consisting of Jim McDowell, Alex. Ray, a baptist, and four places, some speakers from Boston, a few of faithful and a lot of empty benches held an outing at Mountain Rock this afternoon.

Congressman Harris and a few prominent poets were met at the depot by Chairman McDowell of the city committee who informed them that the outing would be held under any old conditions and took them to Mountain Rock where they had a long wait for some one to talk to. The speaking was to take place at 2.30 o'clock, but it was after that time when the bold players came walking into Merrimack square accompanied by one boy bearing a banner inscribed "Republican Outing at Mountain Rock." The band waited for the regular Nashua car as the specials were not forthcoming and then proceeded to the grove where the momentous event was pulled off.

BUILDING PERMITS
Spencer D. Brown has been granted a permit for the erection of a two-tenement house in Gibson street. The building will be 22 by 54 feet, two and one-half stories, and the estimated cost is $4000.

Adam Guilmette will build a bakery at the rear of 335 Hildreth street. The building will be 22 by 50 feet, one story and the estimated cost is $1400.

Worth of jewelry, silverware and other valuables were taken by thieves last Saturday night from the residence of Nathan Jacobs, 529 Newbury street, Boston. The valuables were taken from a safe that stood in Mrs. Jacobs' room on the second floor. The safe was considered burglar-proof and the combination was known only to Mr.
Jacobs. The burglars did not damage the safe and left its door open. Apparently they found the combination by feeling in the cracks of the numbers. From the safe were taken a diamond ring valued at $1000, $350 cash

The Lesson

If there is a greater folly than for a family to have on the premises a "burglar-proof" safe, it will trouble one to make it. What more attractive inducement could be devised to bring the burglar in? Suppose the safe breaker is intercepted in his work
—what then? Is he to be provided with protection, will he hesitate to kill? Truly, it is not remarkable that a thinking man will consent to have a safe in the same building he and those he is supposed to protect, live and sleep? Years ago there might be excuse, but not today. The SAFETY DEPOSIT BOX in the modern hand-vault is the place, the only place for valuables.

The price for yearly rental is very reasonable and within the means of all.
The Middlesex Trust Co., Merrimack corner of Palmer street, have a system that they delight to show the public.
The customer has absolute control and access to his box. The box is burglar proof, fire-proof, proof against one's own careless methods.

1000 CHILDREN
HAVE BEEN VACCINATED AT CITY HALL SINCE AUGUST

About 1000 school children have been vaccinated at city hall, since August as compared with about 3400 a year ago. This falling off in the number of children vaccinated is due to the new law which went into effect last year and included the pupils of private as well as public schools. It's the day's best bet, however, that a goodly number of children will be vaccinated next week unless greater attention than usual has been paid this year to the importance of vaccination before the opening of the fall term. It has been the custom of Supt.
Whitcomb to announce in the papers at intervals before the opening of the schools that it is necessary for the children to be vaccinated, but all parents do not pay attention to this with the result that anywhere from 100 to 150 children have to be sent out on the 10 day because they have not been vaccinated. This makes it very bad for the children because it puts them back in their studies and it is also very inconvenient to the superintendent and teachers.

It will bring together not only the local lodges but many from out of town.

NO CHANGE YET

It is now the first of September, and there has been no change in the retail price of coal. A month ago the retail dealers in Boston advanced the price 25 cents per ton, but were determined in the Spring to make one price for the whole summer. Coal is costing 50 cents per ton more at wholesale now than it did in April, and we advise those who have not already placed their order to do so very soon.

The Horne Coal Company has taken particular pains this summer in laying in a stock of coal which is good old fashioned coal. If you have never burned Horne's Coal give it a try, even if it's only a quarter of a ton.

EX-PRESIDENT'S SON

Wants Brest for Port
for Steamers

PARIS, Sept. 9.—Claude Casimir Peller, son of the former president of the republic, is making a campaign in favor of substituting Brest for Havre as the French port for steamers from the United States. He admits that the inferior place held by French steamers in Atlantic traffic is due to the activities of the Germans and English in building larger and faster steamers but contends that the French could better their position by reducing the distance between France and New York which a change to the more westerly Brest would bring about. The distance from Brest to Paris is considerably longer than that between Havre and Paris. Nevertheless, M. Peller declares, the inauguration of a series of fast express trains would notably decrease the existing train voyage and the total saving of time between Paris and New York would be at once a distinct advantage to French transatlantic traveling.

The remarkable and constant transference of the atmosphere was the cause of the terrible heat wave in France, according to M. Deslandres, the director of the observatory of Meudon. M. Deslandres made this report to the Academy of Sciences. He added: "This transparency, long continuing, has brought about the high temperatures. I may add that it has been an uncomfortable thing for man it has been a helpful condition for astronomers. We have been able to make some remarkably clear observations of the heavens."

The Catholic population of Savoy, forming an impressive procession of many thousands has participated in the transfer of the ashes of Saint Francois de Sales and Saint Jeanne de Chantal. The ceremony was held at the village of Annecy. The ashes were taken from the old convent of the Visitation where they had reposed during three centuries and placed in the new convent which the sisters of the Visitation have recently built on the heights overlooking the beautiful Lake Annecy.

Leon Cavallo, now staying at Montecarlo, Switzerland, is well along in the composition of a new opera to be produced in Milan and New York. It is named La Foresta Marmorata and has only two acts. The story is from a romance by Korolenko. The libretto is by Enrico Cavacchioli.

French hunters are cleaning their shot-guns for the annual hunt season opening during the closing days of August and which this year is particularly alluring. Game is abundant. Partridge, pheasant, hare, rabbits, roebuck and even deer have been sighted in unusual numbers in the considered areas of woodland which do not come under the heading of private hunting grounds.

Of these private grounds there are many. M. Lebaudy, the so-called sugar king, pays $16,000 a year for the right to control the hunting in the famous forest of Fontainebleau. But even so, the forest is a public domain and any person who wishes may follow the Lebaudy hunts. In France hunting comes within the ambitions and reach of the masses of the people who may have a fancy for that form of sport. The only requisite after the gun and powder is a governmental permit which costs about $5.60 yearly.

Quantities of game are found within a short distance of Paris. Invitations are already out for the more pretentious hunts of the rich man on his private domain. In these custom, dictates that the hunter shall be accompanied by two men, a valet, and a guard. Sometimes there is even a third—the gun-carrier. The gun-carrier carries the weapon to the guard who gives it in turn to the valet who then hands it to his master. This complication is a remnant of the magnificent hunts in the early days of France when the joyous tumult of hound and horse, and valet and "piqueur" rang through the court of the chateau.

To the modern hunt many prominent Frenchmen of today are ardent devotees. The young Duc de Noailles is a clever shot, and the Countess of Chezyne, the Duchess d'Uzes, the Countess de Hon, the Countess de Fels and Madames Georges Raoul-Duval, du Gast, and Brazier all have won their laurels as good markswomen.

CONTRACT AWARDED

For a Big "Dreadnought" Battleship for Turkey

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Turkey has at last definitely awarded the contract for a battleship of the so-called "Dreadnought" type to W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Company of Newcastle-on-Tyne and to Vickers Limited, the latter to furnish the armament. The government reserves the right of ordering another vessel at the same price. The new battleship, it is said, will be the largest warship in the world. The price to be paid is considerably higher than that at which the Bethlehem Steel company of America, in conjunction with another English firm offered to build the ships. However, as the grand vizier candidly told a diplomat who was supporting the tender of the American company, Turkey by placing the contract with the successful tenderers will obtain compensation in other directions which will more than make up for the increased cost of the ship.

It has not yet been disclosed of what these compensations will consist, but it is generally understood that the British minister at Constantinople was able to inform the Porte that the acceptance of the Armstrong tender might induce the British government to look with a kinder eye on the Turkish proposals for the settlement of certain questions outstanding between the two countries. Among these questions arising out of the steamer monopoly held by a British company, to operate steamers on Turkish rivers; non-interference with Turkey's plans in Albania; and the long-standing dispute over the building of the Bagdad railway. On the latter subject active negotiations are now proceeding in the Turkish capital with good prospects of success and the ultimate completion of the line, the ultimate support of the government the British shipbuilders have good press agents, and frequent paragraphs appear in the London papers in which it is intimated that among other contracts for the building of the British warships is to be given to England. As a matter of fact, the contracts have not been let and it may be months before they are. American, British and continental firms all have agents in the Turkish capital and even before the fall of the late government very little progress had been made towards the signing of the contracts.

An effort is at last to be made to relieve the newspapers of England from some of the evils they suffer under the present law of libel. Besides having to pay many claims of a blackmailer character, invariably when a newspaper defends an action for libel the jury gives the claimant heavy damages, very often against the advice of the judge. To avoid this Sir George Toulmin has introduced a bill in the house of commons, which provides that if a judge is satisfied that the alleged libel is trivial, and that the newspaper has been in good faith, he may stay all proceedings, unless the plaintiff gives security for the defendant's costs.

Other provisions of the bill are that fair and accurate reports of public meetings, proceedings in court and the finding of the courts, although the finding may be subsequently varied, and any fair and bona fide comment thereon, shall be privileged. At present a paper cannot comment on any verdict until it has reached the final court, by which time in many cases, all public interest in the matter has been lost.

The house of commons has lost one of its oldest and most popular figures. In the sudden death of Collins, the headmaster of the smoking-room. He had charge of what is known as the exclusive rooms into which the members cannot introduce a stranger. Collins, an Irish coachman, one of those quiet, unobtrusive servants of the club school, who knew the wants of all his clients and took them their accustomed drink as soon as they entered the room. He, too, was full of information and Chancellor Lloyd George once said that when he wished to know what the house of commons was going to do he went to the best informed man—Collins.

One of the interesting features of the procession of the Goreds Bard to the Mystic Circle at the Elstead, the national assembly of Welsh bards at Carmarthen, Wales, was the presentation of a daughter of the poet Henry W. Longfellow to the venerable Archdruid.

In company with a party of 100 Welsh-Americans, the poet's daughter, the pilgrim from Boston and the Welsh-Americans expect to make an annual pilgrimage to the gathering. Before the presentation a representative of the Breton Goreds mounted the Logan-stone and made an address in excellent Welsh. The same day also saw the investiture and initiation of the successful candidates for bardic degrees.

PAINFUL TROUBLE WITH FINGER NAILS

Sometimes Three Fingers Without Nails at One Time. Began 25 Years Ago. No Permanent Cure. Began to Use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In a Short Time Nails Were Well. No Further Trouble.

"I have suffered from the same trouble (painful finger nails) at different periods of my life. The first time of its occurrence, perhaps twenty-five years ago, after trying some remedies without getting helped, I asked my doctor to prescribe for me, but he was not for a year or more that my nails and fingers were well. The inflammation and suppuration began at the base of the finger nail, sometimes it was so painful that I had to use a poultice to induce suppuration. After the pus was discharged the swelling would go down until the next period of inflammation, possibly not more than a week or two afterwards. These frequent inflammations resulted in the loss of the nail.

Perhaps ten years later, I began again to suffer from the same trouble. Again I tried various remedies, among them a prescription from my doctor, of a friend of mine who had suffered from a like trouble. This seemed to help somewhat for a time, but it was not a permanent cure, next tried a prescription from my own doctor, but this was so irritating to the sensitive, diseased skin that I could not use it. I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It was in effecting a cure." (Signed) Mrs. L. J. Horton, Kalamazoo, Mich., Apr. 10, 1910. On Sept. 21, Mrs. Horton writes: "I have had no further return of the trouble with my finger nails. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. austere officials of a presentation portrait of Captain Webb, the famous channel swimmer. Captain Webb was a native of Wolverhampton; in the painting he is shown wearing the customary swimming trunks, only, and his brevity of attire affected the sensibilities of local officials. George Phoenix, the artist, in presenting the picture, recommended that it be hung in the municipal baths, which, in winter, are used also for public meetings.

In a letter acknowledging the artist's offer the town clerk says that the chairman of the baths committee considered the portrait an excellent one in every respect but could not recommend the committee to accept it. The artist is insisting the picture be hung in his studio to pass upon the propriety of his work, and local feeling runs high.

DR. DWIGHT DEAD

WELL KNOWN MEDICAL TEACHER PASSED AWAY

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Dr. Thomas Dwight, Parkman professor of anatomy of Harvard medical school and prominent in church and charitable organizations of Boston, died at his summer home in Nahant, just after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Dr. Dwight was ill for some time and had been in a very serious condition for two weeks.

Dr. Thomas Dwight was born in Doughton, Oct. 13, 1849, the son of Thomas and Mary Collins (Warren) Dwight. His early education was received in this city and he graduated from Harvard in the class of 1868. He took his M. D. from the Harvard medical school in 1867, and in 1872 the degree of A. M. was conferred upon him.

After two years abroad in the study of medicine Dr. Dwight returned to Boston in 1873 and established a practice here. In 1872 he became instructor in comparative anatomy at the Harvard medical school and until 1878 he was a lecturer and professor of anatomy at Bowdoin college.

After serving as instructor in hisiology at Harvard from 1874 to 1883 and as instructor in topographic anatomy from 1880 to 1883, Dr. Dwight in that year succeeded Oliver Wendell Holmes as Parkman professor, holding the chair until his death.

From 1874 to 1878 Dr. Dwight was editor of the Boston Medical Journal and in 1884 he delivered a course of lectures at the Lowell institute on the "Mechanism of Bone and Muscle." In 1889 the degree of LL. D. was conferred upon him by Georgetown university.

COL. ASTOR WEDS

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 9.—Colonel John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeleine T. Force were married this morning at "Beechwood" by Rev. Dr. Joseph Lambert, pastor of Elmwood Temple Congregational church.

William H. Force of Brooklyn, the father of the bride, gave his daughter away.

The other witnesses to the ceremony were Miss Katherine Emmans Force, a sister of the bride, and Vincent Astor, the son of Colonel Astor.

"Beechwood," Colonel Astor's Newport residence near Mrs. O. P. Belmont's marble palace, was beautifully decorated with flowers in honor of the event. The Noma, the steam yacht on which the wedding party made the trip from New York, was a veritable floating floral bower.

The Noma arrived in the harbor about eight o'clock this morning. Vincent Astor rushed to be the first person to board the yacht. He was beaten in the race, however, by Deputy Sheriff King, who was the first up the gangway and who served Colonel Astor with a writ of summons issued by a Providence telephone company. While inspecting the telephone wires in the basement of Colonel Astor's summer house he came in contact with an electric feed wire, the shock causing his death. The writ is returnable in the superior court on Oct. 2 next.

Vincent Astor then joined the party on board the yacht and after all had breakfasted on board, the party came ashore. In a motorboat, Colonel Astor was at the wheel. The party landed at the foot of Wellington avenue. In an auto the party went to city hall, where a marriage license was issued. During the city hall proceedings Colonel Astor appeared greatly agitated and nervous but soon recovered his composure.

The announcement of the engagement of the couple was made this summer. Previously, Mr. Astor and his first wife, who was Miss Ann Willing of Philadelphia had been separated after a decree of divorce. Soon after the engagement was announced several prominent prelates of the Episcopal church, including Bishop David Greer of New York, William Doane of Albany, William Lawrence of Massachusetts and James Perry of Rhode Island publicly denounced the pending marriage because Col. Astor's first wife was still living.

During the past few weeks several clergymen were requested to perform the ceremony but none of them would accept the commission until Mr. Straight, a retired Baptist minister, consented to officiate. Two other Rhode Island clergymen had previously refused to unite the couple in marriage although it was said Colonel Astor's legal representative had offered a fee of $1000 to the minister who would perform the ceremony.

The secrecy with which the arrangements for the marriage were made and the ceremony performed led to the report that Edwin Straight, a retired Baptist clergyman at Providence, at present working as a four-wheel carter, had officiated and it was not until some time after the wedding that it was announced authoritatively by a member of the Astor household that the clergyman who united the couple was Rev. Dr. Joseph Lambert, pastor of the Elmwood Temple Congregational church in Providence.

Miss Katherine Force was her sister's bridesmaid and Colonel Astor's son, Vincent, was the best man. Others who were present were Mrs. Force, the mother-in-law, Mrs. Elder of New York, a friend of the Force family, former Congressman Sheffield of this city, Colonel Astor's Newport attorney, William Boblyn, Colonel Astor's secretary, and Thomas Hade, an employee of Colonel Astor.

Fifteen minutes after the ceremony had been performed, Col. Astor and his bride left for the boat landing at the foot of Wellington avenue. A few moments later they were on board the Noma, which sailed immediately. The destination of the yacht has been kept a secret.

When Col. Astor and his bride departed from "Beechwood" for the boat landing they made the trip in a taxicab hired by one of the newspaper correspondents. The Astor auto was not on hand, the chauffeur evidently believing that his services would not be needed so soon. Later the correspondent whose taxicab was used as the bridal car was brought into Newport from the Astor residence in the colonel's private automobile.

Just after leaving "Beechwood" Col. Astor gave a statement to the Associated Press. It follows: "Now that we are happily married I do not care how difficult divorce and remarriage laws are made. I sympathize heartily with the most straightforward people in most of their ideas but believe re-marriage should be made possible, as marriage is the happiest condition for the individual and the community."

GERMANY'S REPLY

In the Moroccan Dispute Received

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The text of Germany's reply to France's proposals offered with a view to settling the Moroccan dispute only reached the French ambassador, M. Cambon, last night. The draft of the German counter proposals was revised after the interview between the French ambassador and the German foreign minister, Herr Von Kiderlin Waechter, last Thursday and the text is not expected to reach the French foreign office until tomorrow. No immediate development in the situation therefore is likely. The general impression here is that much further negotiation is likely before an agreement is reached.

RINDGE FAMILY

HAVE DECIDED TO FORM A CORPORATION

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 9.—Members of the Rindge family, well known to Cambridge, Mass., residents, have decided to incorporate their vast land holdings in southern California and yesterday, through Ally O'Melveny, for the Rindge estate, filed papers for the Rindge company, with a nominal capital of $450,000.

The directors of the company are to be Mary K. Rindge, Samuel K. Rindge, Frederick H. Rindge and Henry W. O'Melveny.

"It is merely to obviate some of the difficulties of handling some of the Rindge property as individual pieces and to prevent other trouble that might arise in the future that the incorporation has been made, merely a matter of convenience for the family and nothing at all to do with the distribution or segregation of the properties, as reported by people who think they know it all," said O'Melveny.

HAS BEEN AT WORK IN VERMONT

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Sept. 9.—Since the joke on the burglars who blew open an empty safe at Darling's drug store in East Burke early Thursday morning has become known it has also developed that nearly the entire official force of Caledonia county were among those fooled. In some manner State Atty R. W. Simonds learned that a break was intended and, accompanied by Sheriff Worthen and six deputies, went to East Burke by auto.

There they were stationed in and around the building, where they remained until 2:30 when it was decided that the job had been called off. The watch was broken and the official force started back, on the way meeting another auto which it was afterward learned contained the cracksmen. They had made the trip from White River Junction and arrived at East Burke just half an hour after the sheriff's posse had left.

The break is believed to be the work of an organized gang which has been working in Vermont for the past year.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The growling of a bulldog in the room of a down town hotel next to that occupied by Benjamin Boulton of Montpelier, Vt., and ten-year-old Mabel Bryant, led to Boulton's arrest here today. Boulton was charged with abducting the child. She is the daughter of a Salvation Army officer of Montpelier.

When arraigned in police court Boulton said that the parents of the child had asked him to take the little girl from Montpelier to Winsted, Conn., where she was to enter school. This he did, he said, afterwards obtaining permission of the captain of the barracks to bring Mabel to New York for a few days.

Besides the abduction charge, one of a more serious nature was also lodged against Boulton.

VERY NARROW ESCAPE KILLED BY AN ENGINE

Big Electric Light Pole Dropped in Middle Street

Just why nobody was killed or injured in Middle street this afternoon is one of the miraculous events that now and then attract public attention.

Usually about 1 o'clock in the afternoon lower Middle street is crowded with autos, carriages and their occupants as the result of the traffic regulations relative to the crowding of Central street. Today the horse and carriage of Willis D. Dodge, the well known Central street real estate broker, stood outside of Carroll Bros. store, alone.

Across the street in front of the Joyce company's new saloon stood a huge pole bearing a swinging electric light and shortly after one o'clock the pole without a moment's warning toppled over and fell across the street, striking Mr. Dodge's horse on the hind quarters bearing it to the ground as if the animal were shot. The pole crashed through the shafts and cross bars of the carriage, smashing them to atoms while the lamp struck the sidewalk with a resounding crash. A man who was standing in Carroll Bros. doorway, attracted by the ripping sound as the pole gave way, darted into the store just in time to escape a shower of broken glass and splinters. The horse reared its front and was held from running away by witnesses to the accident and in a few moments a great crowd gathered, all expecting that someone had been injured. The horse was detached from the carriage and taken to a veterinary for examination. It is not believed that the animal is seriously injured as its position was such that the pole barely scraped its hind quarters. Had the animal been standing a foot or more further down the street the chances are it would have been dismembered. As a general rule some of the wagons of the Joyce company are standing near where the pole stood, at that time of day, but today there was none around. There were no people on the street at the particular moment that the pole dropped, which was another fortunate and unusual happening. An examination of the stump of the pole showed that the wood had rotted away.

MAN WAS FOUND DEAD

Body of Eugene E. Leavitt Found in His Home in Central St.

Eugene E. Leavitt, aged 70 years, was found dead on the floor of his tenement in the rear of 355 Central street last night by Sergt. Bart Ryan and Patrolman Simon Lane, who broke into the house in order to make an investigation of the condition of affairs. Death was evidently due to natural causes and after the matter had been reported at police headquarters the body was removed to the funeral parlors of J. A. Weinbeck, in Middlesex street.

The deceased was employed in the Hamilton mills but had not been to work for a number of days, owing to illness. He lived alone and last Tuesday when his dinner was brought to him by a little girl from a boarding house nearby he spoke to the girl and so far as was known the child was the last person to see Leavitt alive.

The neighbors grew suspicious when none of them saw him or any signs of activity in the house for several days and the matter was reported to the police and last night Sergt. Ryan and Patrolman Lane forced an entrance and found the man dead on the floor.

The medical examiner was notified and will make an examination although the death was from natural causes, probably old age.

The only known relative of the dead man is Charles Farrington of Andover street, who was notified last night and will take charge of the body.

JOHN T. NIXON

CITY SOLICITOR DIED OF NERVOUS PROSTRATION

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 9.—John T. Nixon, city solicitor, died last night at 9 o'clock at the Elliot hospital after a nervous prostration where he had been under treatment for several days.

He first showed symptoms of this ailment three months ago, and by the advice of a physician went into the country for a rest. Returning, apparently much improved, he again entered upon the duties of his office, which were exceedingly arduous, and a nervous

APOSTOLIC BLESSING

Rev. D. J. Kelcher, Ph. D., pastor of St. Peter's church has announced that on Sunday at the high mass he will bestow the apostolic benediction upon the congregation. This was a privilege granted him on the occasion of his recent visit to Europe when he was allowed an audience with the pope.

MAIDEN MAN MET DEATH ON GRADE CROSSING

MALDEN, Sept. 9.—"Dead man" crossing, as the place where the Sauquoit branch trains cross Main street in this city, is called, claimed another victim last night in Michael Burke, 70 years old, living on Evans court, off Eastern avenue. Burke had lived in Malden more than 50 years and during nearly all that time had worked in the rubber shoe shops at Edgewater. He leaves a wife and a grown-up son.

He was returning from work shortly before 5 last night and when he reached the railroad crossing the gates were down but no train was in sight on account of a curve in the tracks. Burke stepped under the gate and started to cross the tracks ahead of an inward bound freight train and stepped directly in front of an outward bound passenger train.

The locomotive struck Burke and he was thrown 50 feet. He was picked up unconscious and hurried to the Malden hospital, where it was found he had a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. He died about an hour later. This crossing has been the scene of several fatal accidents and many narrow escapes. On two occasions teams have been hit and horses and occupants of the wagons have been maimed and killed. Electric cars loaded with passengers have narrowly escaped being hit by trains at this crossing more than once.

There has been an unsuccessful effort made to have the grade crossing at this point abolished. It is one of several bad railroad crossings in this city. The Pleasant street and Medford street crossings of the Western division have been abolished in recent times.

Stephen Barton of Boston visited her yesterday.

A BEAUTIFUL EDIFICE

Is Star of the Sea Church in East Boston

Lowell friends of Rev. Wm. H. McDonough, formerly attached to St. Peter's church, now pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, East Boston, will be interested to learn that he has in process of construction one of the finest parish churches in all New England. Indeed when the structure shall have been completed Fr. McDonough will have within the confines of his parish, some of the finest property in the whole diocese of Boston.

Just a little over four years ago that Fr. McDonough assumed the pastorate and in that short space of time he has accomplished much for the benefit of the parishioners.

The new church, the basement of which is completed, takes the place of the wooden structure, which will be utilized by the parish societies. The edifice when completed will be of absolutely fire proof construction of the first class, with the exception of the pews, and wooden material in the organ. It will be of cement construction principally, and everything that makes for stability is put into its combination so that 100 years hence, the church will be in as good condition as on the day of its dedication. The steam pipes are concealed under the floors, the only portion of the heating apparatus exposed being the radiators. The pews have a slope of 2 1/2 inches from the last pew to the first pew, thus affording a view of the beautiful marble altars.

The flooring of the altar is of a cement like construction. The stations of the cross, are built out as it were from the walls, a portion of the wall serving as a framework, while the pictures depicted in the stations are painted over copper. The Rev. Fr. McDonough and his parishioners are enthusiastic over the new church, and the work of building the superstructure will be pushed along steadily.

WOULD BEN FALL FOR SUCH SKIRT MUSIC?

LAWRENCE WON OUT

But it Took Them 10 Innings to Do it

Lowell lost a heart-breaking 10 inning game to Lawrence yesterday afternoon before a small attendance which was over half from Lowell, including quite a number of Lowell ladies. The game looked good for the visitors up to the ninth when Lawrence tied up the score. In the 10th Lowell got three men on bases but failed to score while Lawrence pulled off the winning run in the 10th.

An unusual and amusing feature of the game was the fact that both pitchers, Yount and Kolsel, two of the most indifferent batters in the business, each knocked home runs over the center field fence with a man on base and each did it in the second inning.

Lowell scored one in the first on a single by Barrows followed by Carlstrom's fumble of Cooney's grounder and Fluharty's timely single. In the second with one out, Huston got a base on balls and then Duckie Yount surprised himself and everyone else by knocking the ball over the center field fence for a homer.

ton beat the ball out and there were two on. Then Cooney fied out to Carlstrom and there were two out. Kolsel walked Magee and the bases were full. But Fluharty fied to Briggs. In the home team's half Kennedy opened with a two-bagger. Catterson sent him to third with a single. Briggs hit to Boulters, who threw Catterson out at second while holding Kennedy out third. Phoenix struck out. Carlstrom singled to left and the game was over.

After that there was nothing doing in the scoring line until the seventh when Boulters got a single and Huston sent him to second with a sacrifice. Kolsel then made two wild pitches in succession sending Jake home. It looked as if Lowell had the game all sewed up when in the last half of the ninth Phoenix opened with a single and went to second on a sacrifice. The next two were easy outs when a passed ball sent Phoenix to third. Kolsel came along with the single that tied the score.

The New England league pennant for 1911 comes to Lowell, it matters not what happens today.

Such was the glad news received from Secretary J. C. Morse of the league last night.

When the rain prevented the game in Worcester yesterday it was given out that Worcester would play three games today, one in the morning and two in the afternoon. Under these circumstances if Worcester won three games today and Lowell lost to the Brookton today, Worcester would tie

Lowell for the pennant and a series to settle the championship would be necessary.

Last night, however, the Associated Press sent out the following dispatch: BOSTON, Sept. 8.—Lowell, despite its loss of today's game to Lawrence, 5 to 4 in 10 innings, has won the New England league championship for 1911. Rain today destroyed the only chance that Worcester had to the Lowell for first honors and whatever the result three games of tomorrow's games, the last of the season, Lowell is champion.

LOWELL'S 300 BATTERS

Up to today's game Lowell has five players who have batted for 300 for the season, as follows:

	ab	r	h	ave
Barrows	437	103	164	.375
Fluharty	429	73	148	.345
Moulton	453	116	167	.370
Cooney	509	75	157	.311
Magee	452	90	149	.302

This statement is on the authority of J. C. Morse, secretary of the league, and the ranking official in the absence of President Timothy B. Murman. In making his decision tonight, Secretary Morse quoted a rule adopted by the league last year that no more than two games in one day could count for the championship.

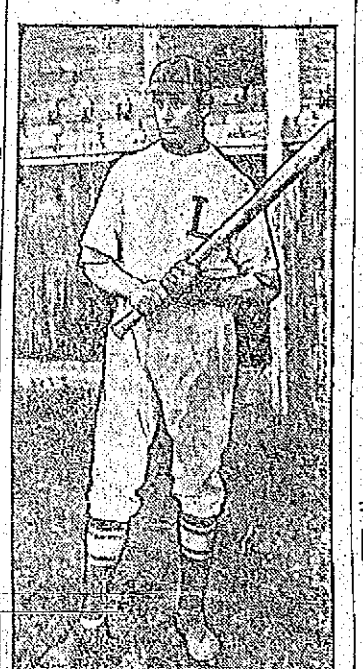

Burkett Dies Game

When informed of the league's ruling relative to today's games Jesse Burkett of the Worcester team said that three games will be played, weather permitting, whether they count or not, the first in the morning and the second and third in the afternoon. "We'll play out the string anyway and show the public how we would have finished but for the rule," said Jesse with great confidence.

Lowell Players Pleased

While the members of the Lowell team were confident of winning today's game it was with a feeling of relief that they heard the news that Lowell gets the pennant anyway for they were nerved up over the closeness of the

SECY FISHER'S PLANS

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 9.—Secretary of the Interior Walter Fisher, at a dinner given here last night in his honor, declared Controller bay to be rather the only nor the best harbor for the output of the Behring river coal fields, pronounced the extent and character of those fields "grossly exaggerated" and announced his policy to be the opening and development of the fields but not under unrestricted private ownership. The plan of leasing the coal lands, Mr. Fisher said, deserves consideration because it has the approval of the president.

He read extracts from reports showing the successful workings of this system in Australia and New Zealand, also cited the leasing law of Yukon territory.

"The third remedy," he continued, "is that the government shall own and operate the mines. Many thoughtful men here are of the opinion that the time will come when it becomes necessary for the nation to regulate the source of power—fuel and waterfalls upon which industry depends."

THE PROPOSED SEWER PUMP

The residents of the farther Oaklands and the adjoining district, in need of better sewerage, have little faith in the sewer pump arrangement favored by the committee. It would be a continual source of expense and a temporary arrangement at best. What is the use of expending any large amount of money for such a purpose while an extensive plan of sewerage for the whole district beyond the Oaklands has been started at considerable expense. The Andover street sewer was started with the intention that it should be extended to Rogers street. The city cannot build any great portion of this sewer this year but it should lay out the work so that a certain section will be built yearly until the work be complete. To erect a sewer pump at the foot of Westworth avenue will only put off the proper solution of the sewer problem. It will be so much money thrown away. If the Oakland sewer were completed it would drain Wigginsville and South Lowell and would soon pay for itself in the revenue from the increased value of the land in a wide district of territory admirably adapted for residential purposes if proper drainage were provided. It is understood that City Engineer Kearney is not enthusiastic on the sewer pump question but stands ready to carry out the instructions of the city council and to give expert advice on every proposition submitted for his decision.

THE SIMPLIFIED SPELLING

There is a conference going on in England in regard to the simplification of our spelling. England stands pat on the spelling question. She is unwilling to relinquish the "u" in honour, labour and some other words while she still retains the double l in many words in which reason and analogy would dictate the omission of one. It would be useless to appeal to England in favor of phonetic spelling. That has been agitated for the past forty years but with little or no success. The late Sir Isaac Pitman was a great advocate of phonetic spelling but he accomplished little more than to bring its simplicity to public attention. The English language changes even in England, but it is hard to induce the educators to eradicate any irregular form of spelling that has become a fixture in the language. The Carnegie spelling reformers have accomplished little in this country and it is useless for them to try to carry the war into England. Their efforts there will be even less successful than in this country, if such a thing were possible.

The civil service commission in Great Britain and Ireland is the most powerful body in the land in regard to accepted forms in spelling. What ever spelling the commission decides to adopt as regular will be adopted throughout the country not only by the civil service employees but by the vast number of aspirants for office, most of whom are drilled in preparatory schools for the examinations they wish to take. The primary schools even follow the edicts of the civil service examiners. The next best authority would be the British parliament. If Chancellor Lloyd George sees that it is necessary to give certain desirable changes the force of law, he might have it enacted that certain irregularities in spelling would be abolished.

In 1906 President Roosevelt after giving the movement for simplified spelling his endorsement sent a letter to the Public Printer directing him to use in all government publications of the executive departments the simpler spellings included in the 300 words enumerated in circular No. 5 of the simplified spelling board. Later in the year the house of representatives attached to an appropriation bill a clause providing that no part of the money should be used for printing in simplified spelling any of the documents authorized by act of congress. That limited the use of simplified spelling in government documents to those not authorized by congress, and it has since been abandoned, we believe, almost entirely even in these.

THE VOTERS TO HAVE THE VETO POWER

It would appear that a great many false ideas are being circulated in regard to the new city charter, many that should not receive a moment's consideration from intelligent men. For example, it is charged that three men would run the city and that they would have it in their power to order the heads of departments to throw out this or that man without any legitimate reason. Anybody who circulates that kind of stuff is misrepresenting the facts. The adoption of the new charter will not overturn the civil service law, nor will it injure the steady department employee who knows his business and attends to it. The street laborers, the men in the water department and the building department know their business and will remain.

Nor is it true, as the politicians assert, that a motley gang of foreigners will be brought here to work on the streets of our city. The voters would not tolerate it. None of these things prevail in the city of Haverhill nor in Lynn, although the Des Moines charter is in full force in both cities. The men who are circulating these stories about the new charter do not state that the people will have lodged in their hands the power to prevent these abuses.

What is that power? It is the Referendum or veto power on measures adopted by the municipal board and the Recall of members of that board for neglect of duty, for malfeasance or incompetency.

Over in England recently we have seen one of the great struggles of the century settled in depriving the house of lords of the veto power on popular measures; but what would be said if the people were given a fixed veto power on measures enacted by parliament? That is the power that the people of some American states already possess; but it has not yet been granted to the people of Massachusetts. The new charter upon which the people have to pass at the state election in this city will give the voters of Lowell the veto power upon all measures adopted by the municipal board provided in the charter. That power together with the Recall which is also provided for will give the electorate absolute control of their elected officials. Therefore, let it not be said that the municipal board will do this or that wrong to the men of any department. The regular men will get more work than ever, because they will not be removed to make way for political dealers as in the past.

Let it be understood that under the new charter the voters will elect men to be their servants, not their masters.

"Mother," she said, "that lobster salad looks most 'vittin'."

"Does it, dear?" answered the mother.

"Yes." Then, after a moment, "Mother, don't you think it would be nice if you was just to ask me to have a little at the table? You could say, 'Emily, will you have some lobster salad?' Of course, I needn't take any you know. But your asking me would look nice 'fore Mrs. Brown. Don't you think so?"

Her mother agreed, and during luncheon Emily was a model of propriety. When the salad came her mother said: "Emily, will you have some lobster salad?"

"Huh," was the prompt response, "don't care if I do!"

When the parrot finally ceased speaking the lady turned to Mr. Hoiden and, blushing violently, asked:

MR. I. L. SHOWEM CASHES A CHECK—GETS A MEAL AND MANY OTHER THINGS

MRS. RETZ' FORTUNE

It is Alleged That the Property Was Taken by Plot

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—George R. Blinn, special administrator of the estate of Mary Retz, who kept a lodging house for years at 147 Warren avenue, brought a bill in the supreme court yesterday against Joseph Bingham, his daughter, Adelaide C. Bingham, and Mary Pierce, seeking to recover the bulk of the estate of the intestate which he alleges the defendants procured from her fraudulently. Her property was worth about $30,000.

Others named as plaintiffs are Flattie J. Davis, John H. Pratt, Letitia A. Pratt of West Hoboken and Jennie M. Williams of Union Hall, N. J., Grandniece and grandnephew.

Judge Hammond issued an order of notice returnable Wednesday next.

The bill alleges that the Bingham family had arranged to have Mary Pierce live with the intestate so that she could help exert an influence over the woman, who was weak and feeble mentally and physically.

Mrs. Retz died May 20 and the special administrator was appointed July 11, 1905. She was 71 years old.

The bill alleges the Bingham family conspired to get influence over her and obtained her property to the exclusion of her relatives and others who had been close friends.

According to the allegations, she relied almost wholly on the advice of Joseph Bingham. The plaintiffs charge that Bingham threw influences around her that prevented her from getting advice from relatives and lifelong

A Great Battle in the State of Maine

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Maine is paying more attention to the coming vote on the prohibitory amendment than to anything else today. It is the only topic of conversation. With rallies every night, band concerts, placards, buttons, literature, and house-to-house solicitors, the prohibitionists are conducting the fight of their lives to retain the amendment. If they lose it will not be by default. Those who favor the repeal of the amendment are conducting a still bait. They have not held a meeting, hired a band or put out a button. Their work has been entirely

TO DECIDE STRIKE QUESTION

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Whether the Illinois Central railroad shopmen will strike because of the refusal of President Markham to recognize their recently formed federation will be decided tomorrow at a meeting of the executive board of the nine trade unions involved. Several officers of the federation have, it is said, been in favor of a strike ever since the railroad refused to grant their demands, but a number of other interested labor chiefs, including influential members of the international unions, are counseling peace at this time and will do everything in their power to prevent a walkout. The conservative labor chiefs admit that if a majority of the unions involved decide to strike they will join in the walkout. Talk of arbitration as a means of settling the dispute was revived today at several informal conferences.

The actual number of Illinois Central employees involved in the dispute is said to be 6074, including machinists and helpers, sheet metal workers and helpers, painters and helpers, blacksmiths and helpers, boilermakers and helpers, steamfitters and helpers, car-repairers, car cleaners, car inspectors and laborers.

INDICTED FOR MURDER

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 9.—Three indictments charging murder in the first degree, one in the second degree and two of manslaughter were reported to Judge McLaughlin of the superior criminal court here today by the September session of the Middlesex county grand jury. The three persons charged with murder in the first degree were Bliss W. Darrah of Cambridge, who is charged with murdering his wife; Peter George, who is charged with murdering Spiro Stoyi at Natick on the Fourth of July, and Frank Blaskovo, who is alleged to have admitted that he murdered Mrs. Francis Wilkinson in Somerville on July 21 because he was laboring under the impression that the woman had given him consumption germs. Both Darrah and George are still at large. Blaskovo was taken into custody shortly after the murder.

DIAMOND NOTES

Once more the pennant will fly over Lowell, Hurray!

We are the champions.

All honor to the bunch, not forgetting little Eddie, the mascot.

Lawrence holds third place and Little John looks good for the first division.

The finish of yesterday's game was a heart breaker.

Lowell has the pennant, the best hitter in the league the best runner in the league, the tallest player in the league, Herb Young, six feet three inches, and the shortest player in the league, Al Moulton, five feet two inches.

Lowell certainly had some loyal supporters among the ladies. From the chilly April days down to yesterday's wintry atmosphere at Lawrence they were on hand.

Worcester postponed, on account of weather, its game scheduled for yesterday with Haverhill, and that, according to Sec. Morse, destroyed its last chance to come to a tie with Lowell.

In making his decision Sec. Morse quoted a rule adopted by the league

last year that no more than two games one day could count for the championship.

When told of this ruling last night in Worcester, Burkett showed no disposition to give up the fight, saying: "I'm running my own ball grounds here and three games will be played tomorrow, weather permitting. If Sec. Morse counts one out, well and good, but there will be three games, the first called at 10 o'clock."

The Boston Globe says today: Lowell, despite its loss of yesterday's game to Lawrence, has won the New England league championship for 1911, according to Sec. C. C. Morse, ranking official of the league, in the absence of Pres. T. H. Murawski.

Lowell is scheduled to play Brockton today and the schedule calls for two between Worcester and Haverhill.

If Lowell wins its game, Worcester cannot tie for the pennant, even though it play and be allowed to count three victories over Haverhill.

The final game is with Brockton this afternoon.

The Bull Durham people this morning informed the sporting editor of The Sun that they will present Christy Wilson, who hit the Bull at Spaulding park Wednesday, his check, for $100, at the Worcester-Haverhill game today. Ordinarily the presentation would be made in this city but as the season closes today the company decided to hurry along the check. Capt. Barrows of Lowell; Tommy Catterton of Lawrence and Wilson of Worcester were the three lucky men to hit the Bull this season and in each case the company has promptly forwarded them each a check for $50. During the season the sporting editor of The Sun has given out 57 orders for home runs at Spaulding park; the players making the home runs each receiving 50 packages of Bull Durham smoking tobacco.

Jim Magee has the distinction of having played in every league game this season.

Al Moulton has established a new league record for run-getting with 115. The best previous record, 112, was made by Billy Hamilton at Haverhill in 1904.

WORCESTER GAMES POSTPONED

New England at Worcester-Haverhill-Worcester three games cancelled, on account of rain.

New England at Lynn-Lawrence-Lynn game cancelled, rain.

LAWN TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—H. Whitney of Harvard today won the Intercollegiate lawn tennis championship singles by defeating in the final round, A. Mann, Jr., of Yale, on the courts of the Merion Cricket club at Haverford. The scores were 6-4, 6-2 and 6-2.

When the

Musings of Elinor Hite

"If a woman wants to earn the admiration or love of a mere man she should study his temperament." This is the advice given by a woman who has mastered the secret of fascinating the stronger sex. "It is surprising," so this fair one says, "how a man is drawn to a woman tactful enough to display a sympathetic interest in his business affairs, his sports and his general welfare. We are all egotists at heart, and men are no exceptions to this rule of individualism. The woman who bears with his worries and difficulties is therefore high in his estimation while she is present and is held in grateful memory when absent.

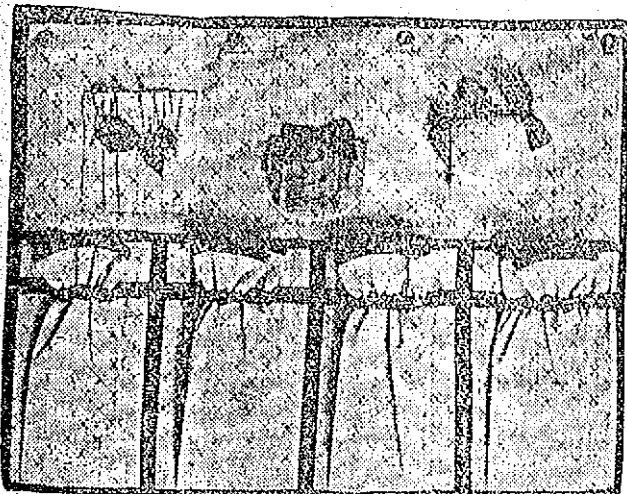

"The practical woman is the feminine ideal of the modern man. Let the girls remember this, and when they are inclined to discuss the last concoction of millinery with a man don't intelligently talk to him about the best way to broil a steak or make a salad.

"No matter how fine a conversationist a woman may be, if she is not a talented listener her drawing room will not be filled with members of the masculine element. It has been said that the true test of a wife's devotion lies in laughing at the moth eaten jokes of her husband.

"This rule holds good as well for the maid as the matron, for nothing tickles a man's vanity as a suspicion that he is a born comedian.

"A man, too, loves to talk his state secrets into the shell-like ear of a pretty woman provided the ear can be trusted. There are so few women who can be trusted in this respect that an absolutely trustworthy one is at a premium.

"Cultivate the art of being a man's companion, his sweetheart, his con-

PICKLES

PICKLED SWEET APPLES.

Get sweet apples that are not entirely ripe and soft. Pare, core and quarter them unless they are sufficiently small to cook evenly. In this case they merely require paring and taking out the blossom end. Make a sirup of three pounds of sugar to a pint of vinegar. Spice with a teaspoonful each of whole cloves, cinnamon and allspice and a nutmeg broken in pieces. Tie the spices in a cheesecloth bag. If the apples are whole stick a whole clove in each blossom end of the apple. When the sirup boils up hard skin and drop in the apples, seven pounds to the quantity of sirup given. Stir gently now and then, but do not break them. When they are tender enough to pierce with a straw place them in pickle jars and turn the hot sirup over them.

PICKLED LEMONS.

These are delicious to eat with cold meats and fish. Select small lemons with a thick rind. Rub them with a piece of flannel, then slit them halfway down in quarters, but do not cut all the way through to the pulp. Press as much salt as you can into the slits and place the lemons, on end, in a pan or earthen dish and let them stand for three or four days until the salt melts. Turn them three times a day in their own liquor until they are tender. Then make pickle enough to cover them, using vinegar, the brine from the lemons, a small piece of green ginger and a Jamaica pepper. Roll and skin carefully and let it get cold, then pour over the lemons with some white mustard seed, using two ounces of seed to six lemons.

PICKLED WATERMELON.

This is a good way to dispose of your watermelon when it is plucked and found not good enough for the table. Cut in lengthwise strips and peel and stand overnight in water and vinegar in equal parts. To one pound of melon allow a half pound of sugar. Add cinnamon and spice to suit the taste. Cook at a gentle boil until you can pierce the melon with a fork and it looks clear. Take out and boil down the sirup until quite thick and pour over the melon while hot.

IF YOUR JELL WON'T "JELL."

An old and always successful housewife says she adds to every pint and a half of fruit juice that refuses to jell two tablespoonfuls of good vinegar. As fruit is rather scarce this season remember that the peelings and cores, if the fruit is sound, will make very good addition to the jell supply. Only by gathering up the fragments can true economy be practiced.

stant, but beware of making incursions into his wardrobe or his stock of masculine attributes," concludes the wise one.

BASKETS FOR THE WARDROBE.

Baskets are beginning to take the place of fabric covered boxes for holding accessories of the wardrobe. The fad came in with the adoption of low, flat, hampers for holding shirt waists, and these hampers have been so improved that the new ones have two trays placed one above the other, but so carefully fitted that the weight of the upper one does not in the least injure the freshness of whatever is placed on the lower tray.

The first tray is usually designed for the very best blouses, those which are the most expensive to do up. This tray is first covered with a heavy white linen, then with a sheet of lavender scented cotton batting and finally with dotted swiss or muslin embroidery. Attached to the inner long side of the tray are a half dozen little sheets or leaves of linen, one of which is laid over each freshly laundered blouse as it is placed in the hamper.

The lower tray, which is several inches deeper than the upper one, is for the tailored linen waists and the different sorts of outing shirts, and while it is sachet lined its covering is of lawn, and the sheets are of the same substantial material.

The lavender sachet is nice because its evasive odor suggests the freshness of country laundering rather than a decided perfume, and it should be the only one associated with any garment that goes regularly to the laundress.

FASHIONABLE BEVERAGE.

The fashionable drink at afternoon teas and receptions is not tea iced or even Russianized. Instead it is chocolate made very thick and quite unsweetened. Over this, as the maid or butler hands it to you, is poured seltzer or carbonated water from a siphon. You are graciously permitted to add sugar if you so desire.

The Society Launcher

Sphere of Operation

A PROFESSION followed by many women of birth and breeding is that of launching on the social waves women who are ambitious of going where they have never been before socially. The promoter is generally a kind hearted woman who begins her calling unconsciously. In fact, it usually happens in this way: She is asked by some one who has more money than opportunities to enjoy what it can procure for introductions. She manages them. Her client is enormously and substantially grateful.

"Washington is usually the scene of the debut," says a social observer who has witnessed many successful launchings. "The reason is not far to find, for the cosmopolitan character of the society makes the advent of strangers less noticeable than in less mixed

populations. Even if Washington residents fight shy of the new people the launcher can always depend upon the foreign element to be attracted by wealth. The next step is a cottage at Newport, to be followed by a winter in New York. Some of the foreigners have given invitations to visit their own homes. But if they have not the client is usually anxious to own a chateau or a villa or shooting box abroad, so abroad in the spring launcher and client betake themselves. Then the thing is done. It does not matter how new you are if you have enormous wealth and the prestige that attaches to an influential foreign visiting list.

"Meantime the launcher, in whom kindness and shrewdness are about equal, has known the delights of having no financial embarrassments. She

is retained by her client whenever a move is in progress. 'New people are never at their ease alone upon unwonted soil. If there is no definite arrangement about fees the launcher has her hotel bills paid, her wardrobe supplied, her every wish gratified. She is treated as an honored guest and extends the hospitalities she enjoys to any personal friends she may wish to share them with.

WHEN the young girl has reached sixteen or seventeen she is too big to wear her hair in curls or even in a braided "pigtail" down her back. She longs to "put up" her hair with a longing that is only outdone by the desire to "let down" her locks. There are several pretty ways of doing the hair which do not suggest the conventional coiffure of womanhood, yet can be kept so beautifully clean and fluffy by constant brushing and fortnightly shampoos that every live, healthy hair stands up separately and gives that soft, luxurious appearance that only the hair of the young ever seems to possess. At night the hair should be well shaken to dry it thoroughly from the moisture of the head and to help the air to blow through it and help make it light and fluffy.

the back. The coils are wound tightly and are pinned very firmly to the head, and the front of the hair is parted and pulled down softly over the forehead. This is a most satisfactory coiffure for horseback riding, tennis or any other strenuous exercise, as the firmly twisted and pinned hair does not readily become disarranged.

When the hair is long, coronet braids twisted around the head are charming. The hair is divided into two strands

THE TWIN COIL.

IN CORONET EFFECT.

The one thing to be avoided in a young girl's coiffure is an artificial effect. The hair may be slightly waved overnight with keds or other curling devices if it is very straight and lack but frizzes, undulations made with a hot iron or artificial waves and curls made in any way if pronounced are in bad taste. False hair of any sort is of course unbecomingly awful on a girl's head. Usually the young girl has pretty enough hair of her own to be able to snap her fingers at any of these

The simplest hairdressings are the only suitable sort for young girlhood. A fresh and pretty girl is charming in a severe coiffure that would be cruelly trying to an older woman, and usually in girlhood the more severe the hairdressing the more it seems to throw the fresh prettiness of the face into relief. Just now the twin coil or triple coil at the back is the fad of the season. When the hair is not quite so thick twin coils may be used, one at either side of the center of the head, at

by a part straight down the back of the head, and each section is braided in a long braid, which goes all around the head. The braids are pinned under a barrette at the back and should be pulled well over the forehead in front, a little fringe of short hairs forming a softening "bang" beneath the rather hard lines of the braids.

A still more youthful arrangement is shown in another photograph, the long braid being simply looped up over a wide ribbon bow and the curled ends of hair falling below the loop in girlish and pretty effect.

SUITINGS

THE fall suitings show many boucle or rough effects in two or many toned blendings. A reddish brown cloth with flecks of red, brown and black mingled is very new and good for tailored suits.

Plain serges show boucle borders in harmonious colorings that will appeal to lovers of these bordered stuffs, but the really smart tailored suit is without a border and is made up with no other fabric save perhaps a velvet or silk collar to relieve its severity.

There is a tendency toward heavier serges, which wear and make up beautifully. Some of the new Scotch mixtures that are sure to be popular are pebbled in appearance, with knotted threads in strong colors on their surface.

For dressy wear broadcloth and velvet will most probably lead in popularity. A rough finished material is never suitable for dressy suits, but a broadcloth is, and for afternoon or semicovering wear a smooth, lustrous broadcloth is the ideal fabric. Besides, it can be worn on any occasion. A rough material of even velvet cannot.

A MOTOR MASCOT.

The inventor of the latest motor mascot evidently thinks one amulet will not prevent a smashup, so he has combined five of the best known emblems of good luck into one.

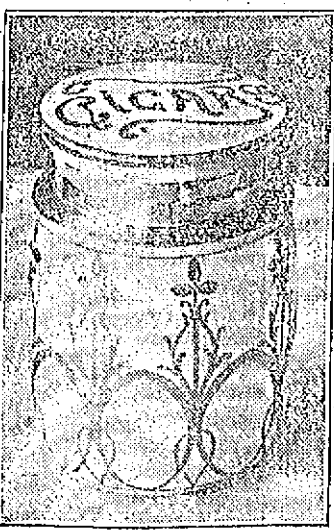

If you would make sure of coming home whole—machine and body—on your next tour go equipped with this mascot. It consists of a horseshoe with lucky upturned points and seven nail holes. At the base inside the horseshoe is one of the charm ornaments of the kings of Babylon, an emblem of good fortune with ancient Romans—a wheel of the sun chariot.

Above the wheel are two lunar crescents, typical of a lucky new moon. Topping all is the swastika, meaning happiness, good luck and pleasure.

If after all this one comes a cropper she is born under an evil star or has an abominable chauffeur.

New, Yet Old

VARIETY in the coloring of cigar jars is welcomed by the wife, no matter how indifferent her husband may be on this issue. And if a receptacle may be found that proves an artistic note in the living room great

A PATTERN BAG.

To the woman who does her own sewing a pattern bag is a necessity. A simple and commodious one is made of green denim or other firm material. There are two rows of pockets of the same material and deep enough to conceal the pattern well. The edges may be bound with tape of a deeper shade and tape hangers or strings attached at each corner.

TIME TO BEGIN

IF any girl wants to undertake some rather elaborate but beautiful summer work of an absorbingly interesting kind let her begin one of the fashionable bead bags. Purses and card-cases of beads are also among the trifles turned out by the industrious summer maiden.

Another favorite pastime is the making of rollo or marquette blouses. The pattern is bought all stamped on the material, and to make French dots instead of outlining the design with beads is a newer and less hackneyed treatment. Most of us know how to make French knots, but instructions as to the others may not come amiss. Briefly, they are as follows:

To make a French knot draw the needle through the upper side of the fabric. Hold it in the right hand and with the left hand take hold of the silk at a point near the fabric and twist it two or three times around the needle, then put the point of the needle through the fabric again, very close to the point at which you brought it up. Draw the twisted silk closely around it and push the needle through. Hold the twist tight against the goods with your left hand while you draw the length of silk through, so as to keep it from uncoiling. When the silk has been drawn quite through it holds the knot.

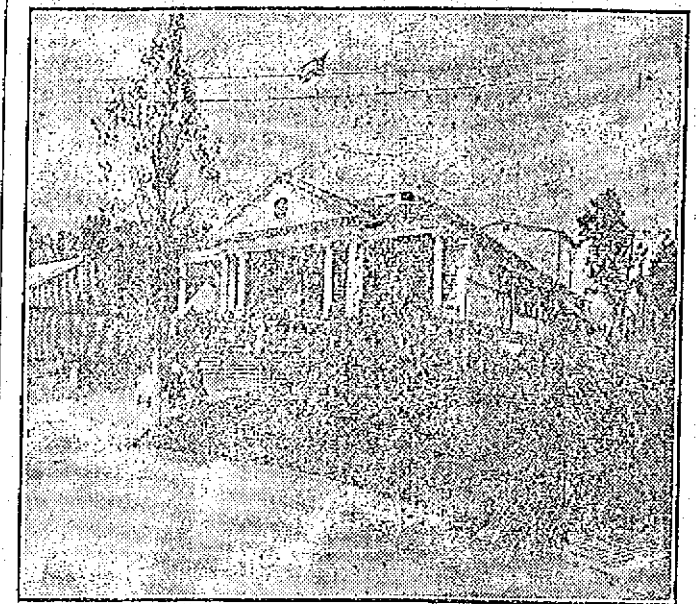

AMBER BEADS AGAIN.

Once more in favor are these glistening, gleaming yellow beads which since the time of our grandmothers have been worn as necklaces.

With the collarless blouses and the lingerie frocks, with their low necks, neck ornaments are especially fashionable, and this gives added opportunity for the wearing of this pretty old-fashioned bead.

All sizes are worn, from the small pea sized bead to the one large as a good sized marble. And in the jeweler's shops one may purchase them by the string or by the dozen, in this latter way making it as one pleases.

WOMAN'S BUILDING AT APPALACHIAN EXPOSITION

ONE OF THE MOST ATTRACTIVE BUILDINGS ON THE GROUNDS.

THE woman's building at the Appalachian exposition, to be held in September at Knoxville, Tenn., is one of the most attractive and complete on the fair grounds. In it will be found exhibits of all kinds that are of interest to the fair sex. The work of the woman's board of the Appalachian exposition under the direction of Mrs. Percy Lockett has been not only remarkable, but almost marvelous. Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of the speaker of the house of representatives, will open the woman's congress of the exposition.

WHEN one has new and highly polished furniture to take care of, if the care for it is not done correctly there is sure to arise some dissatisfaction. For this there is only one remedy—to learn how to do it correctly and then follow the instructions always.

A furniture polish of which there is none better can be made of two parts crude oil, one part benzine and one part turpentine, but this should not be applied directly to the furniture without a preliminary cleaning.

Taking a chamol and cold water and rub the surface to be polished very gently after first having given it a careful dusting. When done rubbing with the chamol dry well with a soft pad of cheesecloth or some other equally soft rag, and then we are ready for the real polishing of the varnished surface.

There should be no dearth of wads of cheesecloth or any like cloth that will serve the same purpose, old discarded cotton kerchiefs the worse for trips to the laundry being quite suitable. Slightly saturate one of these wads with the oil mixture and go over the surface that is to be polished very briskly. After having done this the dry cloths are utilized in the taking up of the excess oil that is on the varnish, generally very little if applied with discretion. It is well to remember that it is far better to make several frequent applications than to try to apply an excess quantity of oil at one time to make it suffice for any length of time.

When an article of furniture is polished correctly as above set forth it will not require to be polished more than four to six times a year unless the air be very dusty, when a polishing every month or so will be none too much, as dust is injurious to nicely varnished surfaces, and the only thing to do is to give it polishers regularly.

THE DUTIES OF A CAREFUL WAITRESS

DINING rooms to be at all livable should be well ventilated to insure the air in them being kept fresh and sweet. Odors are not only obnoxious; they attract flies in summer and other household pests.

Tablecloths must be laid smooth and straight and napkins folded simple and not in fanciful shapes. The edge of a knife should be turned toward the plate. Knives and spoons are placed at the right of the plate, forks at the left.

Mustard, vinegar, oils, dressings, etc., should likewise be placed at the side table and served by the waitress. Absence of a waitress is the only excuse that permits this cumbering of the table.

Place knives and forks in the order in which they are to be used, with the first one to be used at the outside. Most housekeepers err in this.

Place a card for the use of every two persons and a salt and pepper box for every two persons. Cracked ice should be placed in the glasses.

For dinner lay a dinner plate for each person. On the right of each plate lay a soup spoon with the bowl turned up, a dinner knife with the sharp edge turned toward the plate, a fish knife (if fish is served), a tumbler for water, a glass for sherry and a glass for claret (if wines are served).

At the left of each plate lay a fork for fish and a larger one for roast. Lay them in the order in which they are to be used, the fish fork on the outside. At the left have the napkin folded and, if you wish, holding a piece of dinner bread to be used with the soup.

THE PICTURESQUE POKE IN NEW GUISE

JUST THE HAT FOR A PRETTY FACE.

ONLY a pretty girlish face should look out from beneath the wide brim of the new poke shaped chapeau—such as the one illustrated. Purple velvet is used for covering the frame, and the trimming of shaded mauve ostrich plumes gives the approved skyscraper effect at the back of the model. Underbrim trimming is a new departure this season, as this effect has not been employed by the milliners for several years. Consequently the fall of real venise face at the back underbrim of this model has a decided cachet.

SKIRTS TO REMAIN SHORT

ADVICES from Paris state that skirts are to be the same length they have been all summer, with the exception of the trailing evening gown. This makes it necessary for women to wear the smartest and indeed the most ultra smart shoes and hosiery, for never before have these articles of the toilet been allowed so prominent a place, never has the whole foot been exhibited so conspicuously as in the present modes.

HE COMMITTED SUICIDE

Lynn Man Who Was Jilted Ended His Life

LYNN, Sept. 8.—Holding in his hand a photograph of Miss Marion Collins, a handsome young woman with whom he was infatuated, but who spurned his offer of marriage, Lawrence B. Howard, a plumber, 36 years old, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, committed suicide some time Thursday by shooting himself in the head with an army service revolver.

His body was found yesterday afternoon in his room in the hotel Sagamore on Union street. He had ended his life after writing a farewell letter to Miss Collins and enclosing in the envelope a handsome diamond ring, which it is said he contemplated giving her if she had accepted his proposal of marriage.

The letter and the ring were turned over to Miss Collins at her home, 490 Chatham street, by Patrolman Callahan. After reading the letter, in which Howard bade her goodbye, Miss Collins broke down. She was unable to account for Howard's suicide as due to his infatuation for her, for she is only 18 years of age, while he was twice her age.

It is understood that Howard prepared to commit suicide after his offer to take Miss Collins and her parents on an automobile trip Wednesday night had been rejected. When he returned to the hotel he appeared downcast and worried.

He was friendly with Miss Collins' father and as both were dog fanciers

they often met. Howard fell in love with Miss Collins and recently his intentions to her reached such a stage that it became necessary for her to avoid him. She is employed in a department store and it was Howard's custom to wait for her every evening and accompany her home.

Of late she had gone to her home with her mother. The young woman has never been in love with Howard and told him so, but he persisted in forcing his attentions upon her. Howard was 36 years old and is said to have been born in Peabody. He had been about Lynn for many years and had recently worked for a Nahant plumber. He had been living at the hotel Sagamore for two weeks and little was known of him there.

He was seen early yesterday morning and in the afternoon when the door to his room was found to be barred the police were called and Patrolman Linehan forced the door.

Howard's body was on the bed and in his hand he held the young woman's photograph, while the revolver rested beside him.

MRS. HELEN HOEY

Died at St. John's Hospital This Morning

Mrs. Helen Hoey, aged 40 years, wife of Michael Hoey of 2 Everett street, died at St. John's hospital at 5 o'clock this morning as a result of injuries which she received on Saturday, Aug. 19th, when she lost her footing and fell over an embankment in Perry street.

The woman was taken to the hospital shortly after she sustained her injuries and although the physicians at the hospital did everything in their power to save her life she was informed a couple of days ago that there was no chance for her recovery and she passed away this morning.

Medical Examiner Joe V. Meigs examined the body and in conversation with a representative of The Sun stated that death was due to a compound comminuted fracture of the leg.

On the morning of the accident Michael Hoey, the husband of the woman, was arrested on a technical charge of assault, it being alleged that he had thrown his wife over the embankment, but when Supt. Redmond Welch and Clerk Edward Trull of the police court interviewed the woman she exonerated her husband, stating that if there was any blame, she alone was responsible for the accident.

Hoey's case was continued from time to time in the police court and this morning he was brought before the court and Judge Hadley having learned of the death of the wife and the deposition made stated that he would place the case against the man on file pending any further development of new evidence.

The body of the woman was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertakers Higgins Bros. in Lawrence street and subsequently to the home in Everett street.

BEATTIE IS GUILTY

Jury Returns Verdict of Murder in the First Degree in 58 Minutes

CHESTERFIELD COURTHOUSE, Va., Sept. 8.—Twelve Virginia farmers knelt at dusk last night in the obscurity of the small jury room of Chesterfield courthouse, praying fervently that they might pass judgment afloat on Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., indicted for the murder of his wife. Grimsly determined, they arose a moment later and silently, one by one, recorded a unanimous verdict of "Guilty."

Pausing in solemn contemplation for 58 minutes, weighing carefully the meaning of their decision and once more on bended knees beseeching divine assistance that they might not err, they filed into the hushed stillness of a crowded courthouse and with

startling suddenness 12 voices, instead of the usual one of the foreman, spoke the single word "Guilty."

It was almost a shout. The specter of death which stalked Middleman turnpike on July 18 last, when the life of Mrs. Louise Owen Beattie was taken away with the single report of a shotgun, stared hard at the young husband, ready to claim its victim by electrocution on Friday, Nov. 24, next. But the prisoner returned the gaze, unspeaking and unafraid.

"I Haven't Lost Yet."

The court of appeals, to be sure, will be asked to grant a writ of error and a new trial. Young Beattie, cognizant of the legal weapons yet at his disposal, did not surrender. Instead, he consoled his broken-down father, white-haired and wrinkled, and comforted him as he whispered: "I haven't lost yet, father."

Unusual as had been the tragedy and the gruesome stage where it occurred, the 12 jurymen did not hesitate to admit to their friends that they stood in judgment not only over the cold-blooded murderer, but upon his marital infidelity as well. It perhaps was the dramatic climax of Virginia justice, which in the last half century has swiftly sent to death such famous murderers as Cluverius, Phillips and McCue.

At the close of a powerful address by L. O. Wendenburg, the voluntary assistant of the commonwealth in the case, the suspense was felt not alone in the courtroom, but in Richmond, where thousands of persons awaited the outcome.

The jury had for 11 days heard evidence, for two days speeches, but the words of Wendenburg rang in their ears as they left the courtroom to find their verdict.

"Let that man go free!" he cried. "What, let that man go free?" "Why, the motherhood of Virginia, the womanhood of this nation, will shudder in terror, as the security of its life is threatened. Let this man go free? The man who basked in the

Verdict Announced

"Have you gentlemen agreed on a verdict?" asked Judge Watson.

"We have," said Foreman Burgess.

The prisoner had confidently expected a "hung jury"—neither acquittal nor conviction. The court requested the audience not to manifest its approval or disapproval, whatever the verdict.

"And what is your verdict?" asked

Jury Retires

Mr. Wendenburg concluded his address a few minutes after 5 o'clock. A brief respite was given to the jury, and at 5:23 it began consideration of the case. For 58 minutes the jurymen were together in deep consultation—a jury of simple farmers—who each morning sang a hymn and strove to forget the story of dissipation as related day after day on the witness stand. What had been generally predicted was true—their minds were well made up before they left the courtroom.

W. L. Burgess, a square-jawed man with an earnest face, was elected foreman. They halted and it was no surprise, they afterward declared, that all voted alike. They prayed that they might not take a life in vain, and they opened their consciences to one another for nearly an hour, so that they might go back to the courtroom firmly convinced of their duty and of one mind.

And in the courtroom sat Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., the sporting page of a newspaper spread before him. But he did not read long. He folded the paper and concealed his face in it. Those who sat near the boy of iron nerve observed a twitching of his lips as though moving in prayer, as he sat with closed eyes awaiting the return of the jury.

He raised his head for a moment, dropped the paper again and began reading. Then he whispered a few words to his father and brother. It was for them he felt and to them he counseled cheerfulness.

It was nearly dark in the courtroom when the jury returned. Their oil lamps gave a meager luster to the scene. Sunset's red rays still streaked

Judge Watson, turning again to Foreman Burgess.

Unversed in law and the forms of a murder trial, the jurymen had not specified what degree of murder. Asked what degree, Mr. Burgess answered simply "Guilty as indicted." Under Virginia practice, murder is presumed to be second degree unless otherwise specified. It was incumbent upon the jury to fix the degree, so Judge Watson advised the jurymen to confer again on this point, and seven minutes later they returned, this time with the verdict of "murder in the first degree."

The prisoner stood motionless. His face, in color yellowish-green throughout the day, was immobile. He fastened his eyes on the faces of the 12 men who had pronounced his punishment, as if to penetrate their minds and determine the reason why. It was not a resentful expression, however, and when the court asked if he had anything to say, he answered:

"I have nothing to say," and sat down. The perfunctory motions for a new trial were made by counsel for the defense. The usual permission even to argue the point was denied. Judge Watson, in a stern voice, declared that all rulings of the court were on comparatively unimportant detail and in no way could have influenced the verdict.

A stay of execution was granted, however, to give counsel an opportunity to apply for a writ of error when the court of appeals meets in November.

THE NEW PRIMARY LAW THE EVENING SCHOOLS

Instructions Were Issued by Course of Study Prepared for the Secretary of State Langtry Classes by Principal Robbins

Detailed instructions as to the method of holding primaries under the new direct primary law, which becomes effective Sept. 26, were issued to election officers throughout the state yesterday by Sec. of State Albert P. Langtry, involving several innovations.

Republican ballots this year are to be light blue, while the democratic ballots will be salmon colored and democratic progressive ballots lilac.

The instructions are as follows: "Primaries are to be conducted in general accordance with the provisions of law relating to elections. Section 20, chapter 550, acts of 1907, provides that 'All existing provisions of law relating to primaries not inconsistent with this act shall apply thereto as far as practicable.'"

"Section 151, chapter 550, acts of 1907, provides that the laws relating to election officers, voting places for elections, election apparatus and blanks, calling and conduct of elections, manner of voting at elections, counting and recounting of votes at elections, shall apply to primaries, except as otherwise provided in sections 144 to 210, inclusive, of said chapter.

"Sections 152, 153, 154 and 200 to 210, inclusive, of chapter 550, acts of 1907, provide for the appointment and designation of election officers.

"Sections 248 to 258, inclusive, of chapter 550, acts of 1907, provide for the conduct of elections. Section 3, chapter 550, acts of 1911, provides that the polls at every primary shall be open during such hours, not less than three in cities or two in towns as may be designated by the board of election commissioners in Boston, the aldermen in other cities and the selectmen in towns.

"When a voter presents himself to vote he shall, after his name has been checked by the ballot clerk in charge of the ballots with which political party he desires to be enrolled, and the ballot clerk upon reply shall distinctly announce the name of such political party and give the voter the ballot of that party. (Acts of 1911, chapter 550, section 152.)

"A separate set of tally sheets for each political party should be prepared for use prior to the day of the primary by printing or writing thereon the names and offices as printed on the specimen ballot; allow one line for each candidate, as many lines as may be needed for scattering votes and one line for blanks for each office.

"The envelope and tally sheet for each block of ballots for each party should be numbered from 1 upward, inclusive. One envelope and tally sheet to be marked No. 1; the next envelope and tally sheet to be marked No. 2, etc.

"The ballots for each political party will be printed on paper of a different color: Republican, light blue; democratic, salmon; democratic progressive, lilac.

"Section 15, chapter 550, acts of 1911, provides that 'No ballots cast at a primary under this act shall be counted until the close of the polls.' Sections 147 and 150 to 174, inclusive, of chapter 550, acts of 1907, provide for the counting of votes.

"Before opening the ballot box for the removal of ballots, the presiding election officer should divide the election officers into groups, and designate those who are to count, record and supervise, viz.: One officer of one of the two leading political parties to count and call off the votes, an officer of another political party to inspect or supervise; one officer of one of the two leading political parties to record the number of votes on the tally sheet, with an officer of another political party to inspect or supervise.

"After the ballots have been taken from the ballot box, the election officer should sort the ballots into separate piles, one for each party. The ballots of each party should then be examined separately. Lay aside those irregularly marked to be counted last, and count the remainder into blocks of 10. They should place the blocks of 10 in the block envelopes, with the flaps of the envelopes turned in on top of the ballots, the first block in envelope No. 1, the second block in envelope No. 2, etc., so that the last or fractional block will be canvassed last. The number of ballots in a fractional block should be written on the envelope and at the head of the tally sheet to be used in canvassing that block. One canvass of each block of ballots is all that is required.

"When all the ballots in a block have been counted, the vote for each office should be proved by adding the total vote for each candidate to the total number of blanks. When one person is to be voted for, the result should be 50, or the total number of ballots in the block; when two or more persons are to be voted for, the result should be two or more times the number of ballots in the block. If this does not prove, the ballots and tally sheets should be examined and the errors corrected.

"When the count of a block of ballots is completed and proved, the ballots should be replaced in the envelope, with the flap of the envelope turned in on the ballots, the tally sheets should be signed by the group of canvassing and supervising election officers, and the block of ballots and tally sheets should be examined and the errors corrected.

"Upon the completion of the canvass of each block of ballots, the result should be reported to the presiding election officer, who should cause each result to be recorded on the total vote sheet.

"When all the totals have been entered on the 'Total Vote' sheet the figures in each column should be added together, and the figures showing the entire vote for each candidate and the blanks for each office and question should be entered in their appropriate places on said 'Total Vote' sheet, and on the records of the election and on the election returns.

"The presiding election officer should sign the certificate on the 'Total Vote' sheet and he should return the 'Total Vote' sheet and all the tally sheets to the city or town clerk.

"The ballots of any one party must be counted, the result announced and these ballots placed in the proper envelope, and this envelope sealed before the ballots of any other party are counted. It follows, therefore, and it is the law, that votes for a candidate shall be counted only toward his nomination by the political party on whose ballots they appear.

EXPERIENCE IN LONDON.

(From the Rochester Times)

Half a century ago there was no city in the world where an eminent specialist had the opportunities that were presented to one in London; realizing this fact Dr. Barker, after graduating from Heidelberg, located in London. His practice grew so rapidly that at the end of five years he established the largest practice of any physician in that city.

His practice was confined to chronic cases only in the treatment of rheumatism, catarrh, kidney and bladder diseases. He used one never-failing prescription—this same prescription he had written thousands of times; and he had seen patients come into his office on crutches, who said they had been troubled with rheumatism for 15 and 20 years, and after they used this special prescription for two or three days, they would come walking to his office, as nimbly as a school boy, and thank him for the good he had done them.

The doctor said in an interview that one man about 45 years old came to him one day and said he had been injured while working at the carpenter trade about twenty years before, and had suffered constantly since with kidney trouble. He had tried everything to get relief, but nothing seemed to do him any good. He asked the doctor if he really knew anything that would cure him, and he told him of a never-failing remedy for all chronic cases like his. He wrote him a prescription and told him to take it for a week and then come and let him know how he was getting along. This man came back to his office in just four days and said he had not felt as well in his life. He also stated that his daughter, whom he had taken out of school because her eyes were too weak to study, and she could hardly see from one of them at all; she had been treated by four eye specialists without relief, and after he had taken this prescription for two days his eyes were as good as new. He said he was only a week's time after she commenced to take the medicine until she could see as well as ever and was able to return to school.

It was said that over hundreds of such remarkable cases had been treated by Dr. Barker with this same prescription that he was prevailed upon in the last of humanity to allow the writer to publish a prescription to be put up to that every sufferer could have it at a very small cost. The public can now secure this prescription under the name of "BARKER'S KIDNEY PILLS," at The Bloodline Laboratories, Boston, Mass. It will supply a six weeks' treatment (six bottles) for $2.50; 10 cents a bottle, trial bottle and booklet 10 cents.

JUDGE HADLEY
PLEASED WITH THE LIGHT DOCKET IN POLICE COURT

It required just eight minutes to dispose of the various cases in the police court this morning and as Judge Hadley left the bench he wore a smile which indicated that he was elated over the improved conditions relative to crime in this city. His Honor dealt out good advice and instructions to the unfortunate who appeared before him from time to time and is always elated when there is an absence of crime.

THE OPERA HOUSE

The second night of "At the Old Cross Roads" at the Opera House, brought forth another large attendance and the audience was well repaid, for the presentation of the play was still better than on the first night, and that is saying a lot.

This play is quite a drawing card and the fact that the negro couple adds to the beauty of it. The play is an excellent piece of work interspersed with singing and a lot of comedy, while the tragic end of it is as deep as could be expected. The cast is strong throughout the ensemble, including the musical specialty by the Southerners in the third act, is O. K. in every respect. Another large audience is expected this evening as the tickets are selling fast.

TAYLOR STOCK COMPANY

The popular Taylor Stock company and Harry Moore will begin a week's engagement at the Opera House next Monday night, presenting for the first time at popular prices the well known military play, "In Arizona." Manager Taylor, it is said, has taken great care in selecting his plays and players this season and his efforts have been entirely successful. A matinee will be given daily starting Tuesday afternoon when the first 100 women in line will be admitted free. The prices are 10c, 20c, 30c at night and matinees 10c. Ladies' tickets for Monday evening, 15c.—Adv.

"GIRL IN THE TAXI"

Boston Globe said: "The Girl in the Taxi" is one of the merriest shows that ever set the Tremont theatre rocking with laughter. The house was packed to the last inch of standing room and at very short intervals bursts of merriment swept across the stage, completely stopping the dialogue at times.

"The Girl in the Taxi" will be seen at the Opera House soon for an engagement of two days.—Adv.

"THE CLIMAX"

In "The Climax" by Edward Locke, there is a startling defence of the women of the stage that will make the author a hero in the eyes of the many refined women who have given their lives to this art.

This is the play with incidental music by Joseph Carl Brill which Joe Weber again will present at the Opera House soon.—Adv.

"THE NEWLYWEDS"

"The Newlyweds and Their Baby," after winning enormous success in almost every large city in the east, is now heading this way and will be shown here at the Opera House soon. 500 people are incorporated in the presentation of this big song and fun feast.—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

The most successful opening week in the history of stock theatricals in Lowell closes tonight at the Hathaway theatre when the Donald Meek stock company will give the final performance of "Caught in the Rain" in the role of Bertie the Lamb. Mr. Meek and his clever company have scored a decided hit. Next week beginning with Monday's matinee the company will appear in Bronson Howard's great American comedy drama, "The Henrietta," in which those celebrated actors, Robson and Crane scored a great triumph. Bronson Howard is ranked as one of the greatest of American playwrights and his name is a guarantee of success. The additional fact that such celebrated men as Robson and Crane played "The Henrietta" from the Atlantic to the Pacific with crowded houses everywhere speaks for the character of the reproduction. The Donald Meek stock company will present "The Henrietta" from the original Robson and Crane script and no more new comedy will be staged in Lowell. Donald Meek will be seen to excellent advantage in the role of "Bertie the Lamb," the part played so successfully by the late Stuart Robson. Mr. Meek, when appearing in the part some time ago at the Castle Square theatre in Boston was credited with being the logical successor of Mr. Robson, as "Bertie" is his own interpretation of the role. It is a well known fact that Mr. Meek is good in whatever part he assumes but he is better in some than others, according to their nature. The part of "Bertie the Lamb" couldn't suit him better if the playwright had him in mind when creating the character. All Bronson Howard plays call for a cast in which each character contributes a material share to the general success of the whole and hence the different members of the new company, particularly Miss Marie Horton and Mr. Rockliffe Fellows will be seen to good advantage. While both made most favorable impressions in "Caught in the Rain" neither was a great opportunity to exhibit their well known talent such as they will be given in "The Henrietta." Seats are now on sale for next week's performances and may be ordered in advance by telephone—311.—Adv.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

All is in readiness for the grand opening of Keith's new theatre in Centre street on Monday afternoon when the first performance will be given at 2 o'clock. Workmen are busy on the roof of the Runcles building setting up the mammoth electrical sign that is to emblazon Merrimack square by night in the future and it will probably be in place for the opening night. Since the stagings have been removed and the interior cleaned up the theatre presents a much more beautiful appearance than was ever dreamed of and the lavish expenditure of money is evident throughout the building. The opening week bill is one that would draw big houses to any old kind of theatre not to speak of the prettiest in New England, for it is perhaps the strongest vaudeville bill ever presented here. The headline act which has had Boston going all week is known as "Paris by Night," and includes a company of 15 clever comedians and dancers under Sig. Molasso, one of the most noted of pantomimists. Last night he gave a wrong impression it might be well to state that there is nothing cold nor slow about Prof. Molasso or his act which deals with some of the attractions of Naughty Paris by dark. It is a grand scenic production and the scenes are laid in front of the entrance of the famous Moulin Rouge of Paris. For a vaudeville act of the higher class nothing can beat that of J. K. Murray and Clara Lane, the noted opera stars formerly heading a successful English opera company who are at present filling a limited engagement in vaudeville at the Keith circuit. They will present scenes and popular selections from the leading operas. The Cycling Brunettes, Lowell boys who have wheeled themselves to the top notch in vaudeville, are on the bill for after making good with the entire country they are coming back to their old home town for a week. Managan and Edwards will present a most laughable satire on stage life entitled "On and Off," while Gordon and Keys will be there with a brand new budget of fun and they are some funmakers. Col. Sam Holdsworth, who is long since over the three score and ten mark, will charm the audiences with his delightful tenor voice which time's effacing finger has failed to mar. Col. Holdsworth is the oldest professional singer in America today. As a special added attraction the celebrated Frey Twins will give their entertaining act showing the pastimes of ancient Greece including the graceful Greco-Roman wrestling, of which art they are past masters. A strong bill from start to finish.—Adv.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

A bill that compares favorably with the very best that Lowell theatregoers have had an opportunity to enjoy in many months is scheduled for the Merrimack Square theatre next week. Chiquita, the marvelous human doll, recognized as the finest morsel of humanity in the world today will appear daily. This wonderful little woman is perfectly formed, weighs 30 pounds, is 35 years old and is 28 inches tall. An ordinary man could carry her about in the palm of his hand. Chiquita, despite her diminutive size, has a wonderful mental development. She speaks English, Spanish and Italian well, and sings in all three languages. She has toured the entire world during the past half-dozen years and has met many of the reigning monarchs of Europe and other countries. Chiquita will hold a reception after her performance Saturday afternoon and the general public is cordially invited to attend. The reception will be held on the stage.

Our Stock company will be seen in an added attraction, the presentation of J. G. Gray's entertaining comedy "The Suffragette." The piece is said to be a most amusing skit, containing numerous laughable situations that are cleverly handled by Mr. Weston and his associate players. Frank Besso has been secured as the new juvenile man to succeed Mr. James Byrne, Jr., and judging from his reputation he is assured of enjoying a successful run while in Lowell. Miss Phelps will be the other member of the company. Next week, "Anniversary Week" the offering will be a delightful one-act play, "The Clerk," written by Henry Plingo Coolidge, clerk of the Massachusetts senate.

The Cuban Trio, three talented young women, will be heard in the latest songs, and Dan Harrington, the ventriloquist is one of the cleverest entertainers in his line. He uses no less than seven characters. Miss Eva Weston will be the week's soloist and the photo-plays and life portrayals will include the best from American and Foreign markets.

The program for Sunday's sacred concert includes Brown and McDermott, Bessell and LeComet, Edward Graybe, Anna McMahon, The Original Cowboy Four, and Photo-plays that are approved by the state. Afternoon at 3 o'clock, evening at 7 and 9 o'clock.

Don't fail to vote your name placed on the subscription list if you care to have your favorite seat reserved for you weekly. It costs no more. Always something going on at the Merrimack Square theatre from 1.30 to 10.30 o'clock daily. Telephone 2053.—Adv.

THEATRE VOYONS

Next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the Theatre Voyons offers a distinct novelty in "Rory O'More," a motion picture telling the story of this well known Irish character, every scene of which was taken or photographed in Ireland. The great natural beauties of the Emerald Isle are used to their fullest extent in the background of this picture. The costumes are absolutely correct and the story is well told. This combination is something never before offered the lovers of Ireland, her songs and her stories. That is an Irish story that has become a classic acted in Ireland and staged with care and presented in the best possible manner. There is to be a special musical program to accompany Rory O'More.—Adv.

HELPFUL HINTS ON CANARIES

If you want your Canary to sing, first of all be sure it is a male bird. Female Canaries do not sing. Keep him away from all drafts. Feed him on Bird Manna. This is the secret preparation used by the world famous Canary Breeders of the Andenberg Mountain, Germany. Occasionally put a few drops of Bird Bitters in his drinking water. Do not under any circumstances take chances with your bird's life by giving him inferior food. There is only one genuine Bird Manna. It is put up in white metal cans with the letters P. B. & Co. in red. Any preparation not so marked is a worthless and dangerous imitation. Bird Manna can be had at your druggist or it will be sent by mail, together with true 32-page Bird Book for the asking. Write for the Bird Book anyhow. It is yours for the asking. THIS DAY IN HISTORY

A WOMAN IN THE CASE

SEPTEMBER 9.—After King James IV, of Scotland had assembled his army of 50,000 and raided and ravaged Northumberland, that part of England nearest their border, one of the spoils of war, was Castle Ford. Lady Ford was taken prisoner. Being a wise old lady, she began to make good use of her situation. She made him forget all about the fact that he was at war. All the time that was spent on the game of chess, she was to the great advantage of the English who, under the Earl of Surrey, were sneaking up to check James. Both armies clashed on Flodden Field September 9, 1513, and when the substance of the battle was over, the results, the Scotch were only one king, James, 30 of his nobles and 10,000 men. The Scotch people were so elated that they claimed that James was not dead but had gone on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land. If he did he hasn't got back yet.

EXCUSE ME!

THE TENNIS TOURNAMENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Provided the clouds that completely obscured the sun did not bring rain, the weather this morning was considered distinctly favorable to the British lawn tennis team for the opening of the international elimination tournament at the West Side Lawn Tennis club this afternoon. This tournament, which is scheduled to continue Monday and Tuesday, will decide whether Great Britain or the United States will send a team to Australia this winter to challenge for the Davis cup, now held by that country. The turf courts are in superb condition and the number of tickets sold indicated that a crowd of nearly 3000 persons would witness the opening matches. Singles were scheduled for today, William Larned, the national champion, being pitted against C. P. Dixon, captain of the British team, and Maurice McLoughlin of California, the challenger at the recent national championship tournament, against Arthur H. Lowe.

PARIS, Sept. 9.—The government is sending additional troops to the northern departments of France to deal with the cheap food demonstrations which often are instigated by revolutionary societies or simply are riots of violently inclined persons who mix up with the genuine housewives processions. Two battalions of troops were sent to Valenciennes, department of Nord, from the Paris garrison today.

Expect Large Registration at Monday's Opening

Rev. Fr. Harkins, pastor of St. Margaret's church, returned to Lowell today after making the two weeks' retreat held annually by the priests of the archdiocese at St. John's Seminary, Brighton. Fr. Harkins is much improved in health and is ready to devote himself to his pastoral labors. He expects that the new St. Margaret's will be ready for occupancy in eight or nine weeks. Among the other local clergymen who returned from the retreat today were Rev. J. J. Mullin of St. Michael's; Rev. W. George Mullin of St. Peter's; Rev. John J. McHugh of St. Patrick's; and Rev. Fr. Walsh of Collinsville. Other local clergymen will enter the retreat during the next two weeks. The retreat has been conducted by Rev. Fr. Brett, S. J., and it will be continued for the next two weeks by Rev. Fr. Hearn, S. J.

Parochial School Opening
Nearly all of the parochial schools of the city will open on Monday. The Sacred Heart school having opened during the week with an increased attendance. The latter school cannot give out definite figures as to its registration until the first of the week as the children continue to come in daily.

St. Patrick's, St. Michael's and the Immaculate Conception schools all opened Monday morning with mass of the Holy Ghost in their respective churches preceding the opening of school. In each of these schools an increased attendance is expected. At St. Michael's it will be necessary to open an additional room and an extra teacher has come to Lowell making the present teaching force 14 teachers. Notre Dame Academy will reopen its present quarters in Adams street, years at the Lowell house of the Marist Brothers.

The course of study in both schools will be the same as the previous years and the teachers of both houses wish it to be understood that English is being taught in both schools as well as Latin and French. The number of children in both schools will be about the same this year, the total number to nearly reach the 1500 mark.

WOMAN SUES MAN

WHO IS HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Papers in what is probably the first suit of its kind ever brought in Boston were filed yesterday by Mrs. Antonio Schiappa, attaching all property owned by Valentino Sussal, who, together with three other men, is held in Charles street jail charged with the murder of her husband. The complaint asks for $20,000 damages incurred by the sufferings of the murdered man before he died.

Schiappa was killed on the night of July 3 in a fight which arose from a dispute between two boys over a picture frame. Sussal, it is alleged, driven away from the scene of the trouble, returned with his friends and in a fight which followed, Schiappa received seven stabs, from which he died.

Mrs. Schiappa, who is a comely woman of about 24, was left by the death of her husband, with five small children and no means of support. Through her attorney she is trying to recover damages to support herself.

PROTEST FILED

BY CINCINNATI CLUB OF NATIONAL LEAGUE
CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—A protest was filed last night with President Lynch of the National league by the Cincinnati club over the victory of the Cubs yesterday. This was the word that went the rounds last night, the protest being based on the play made on Esmond when he attempted to score from third in the sixth inning while Evers was being put out and while the Cub players were arguing with Empire O'Day after two Cincinnati players had counted on Richter's error. Cincinnati contends that as there were but eight men on the field and as two balls were on the diamond, Empire O'Day should have called "time."
